A Network of Knowledge

About the National Institute of Justice

The National Institute of Justice is a research branch of the U.S. Department of Justice. The Institute's mission is to develop knowledge about crime, its causes and control. Priority is given to policy-relevant research that can yield approaches and information that State and local agencies can use in preventing and reducing crime. The decisions made by criminal justice practitioners and policymakers affect millions of citizens, and crime affects almost all our public institutions and the private sector as well. Targeting resources, assuring their effective allocation, and developing new means of cooperation between the public and private sector are some of the emerging issues in law enforcement and criminal justice that research can help illuminate.

Carrying out the mandate assigned by Congress in the Justice Assistance Act of 1984, the National Institute of Justice:

- Sponsors research and development to improve and strengthen the criminal justice system and related civil justice aspects, with a balanced program of basic and applied research.
- Evaluates the effectiveness of justice improvement programs and identifies programs that promise to be successful if continued or repeated.
- Tests and demonstrates new and improved approaches to strengthen the justice system, and recommends actions that can be taken by Federal, State, and local governments and private organizations and individuals to achieve this goal.
- Disseminates information from research, demonstrations, evaluations, and special programs to Federal, State, and local governments, and serves as an international clearinghouse of justice information.
- Trains criminal justice practitioners in research and evaluation findings, and assists practitioners and researchers through fellowships and special seminars.

Authority for administering the Institute and awarding grants, contracts, and cooperative agreements is vested in the NIJ Director. In establishing its research agenda, the Institute is guided by the priorities of the Attorney General and the needs of the criminal justice field. The Institute actively solicits the views of police, courts, and corrections practitioners as well as the private sector to identify the most critical problems and to plan research that can help resolve them.

From the Director

A Network of Knowledge, the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources, Sixth Edition, issued by the National Institute of Justice/National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS), is part of the continuing effort by the National Institute of Justice to foster the exchange of information and to open channels of communication among those who have an interest in the field of criminal justice. By providing a reference tool such as this Directory, NIJ helps all concerned with law enforcement and the criminal justice system keep abreast of the available resources and services of many agencies. We hope this centralized listing of services assists busy criminal justice professionals as they work to meet the challenges of their important role in our society.

Introduction

The National Institute of Justice/NCJRS published the first edition of the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources in 1977. This sixth edition updates previous editions and is based on a 1986 survey of more than 400 criminal justice agencies. Questionnaires were mailed to all agencies listed in the fifth edition (1984) and to additional agencies identified by NCJRS staff.

Criteria for selection

The following guidelines were used to select entries for the Directory:

- The organization's service area is national or regional in scope;
- The provision of criminal justice-related information is a major function of the organizations;
- The organization's information services include one or more of the following: data base searches, document dissemination or delivery, practical information on setting up programs, reference services, and technical assistance;
- The organization answers telephone and mail requests and does not require users to visit the facility to obtain information; and
- Costs for services or membership are not prohibitive or excessively restrictive.

The following types of organizations are not included in the Directory:

- Publishers and agencies that provide only consulting services, technical assistance, or training; and
- All foreign-based organizations.

Although every effort was made to contact known criminal justice information sources, this Directory should not be considered exhaustive. Editorial selection requirements, unanswered inquiries, and lack of information may have excluded some sources.

Arrangement of the Directory

The Directory contains information 170 organizations. Information includes the following:

PARENT ORGANIZATION/SPONSORING AGENCY
INFORMATION CENTER/LIBRARY
ADDRESS
TELEPHONE NUMBER(S)
USER RESTRICTIONS
YEAR ESTABLISHED
HEAD OF CENTER
NUMBER OF STAFF (Professional, Support, Volunteer)
CONTACT PERSON

OBJECTIVES SERVICES OFFERED

COLLECTION SIZE (Periodical Subscriptions; Audiovisual Items; Books, Reports, Documents; Microform Collection; Vertical File Drawers; Special Resources)

PUBLICATIONS

The headings for each entry appear only when information is available. If, for example, an organization did not list a telephone number on its response form, the heading TELEPHONE NUMBER(S) does not appear in the entry. Readers have several options for finding specific organizations in the Directory. Entries appear alphabetically by Parent Organization/Sponsoring Agency, with all information centers or libraries under the same Parent Organization/Sponsoring Agency appearing on consecutive pages. Readers may also find particular organizations by using the Information Center/Library, Subject, and Geographic indexes at the end of the Directory. Appendixes also contain the following information:

- A listing of members of the Criminal Justice Information Exchange (CJIE) group and their addresses;
- A listing of State criminal justice system representatives;
- A listing of Federal Information Centers and telephone numbers; and
- Organizational charts of the U.S. Department of Justice and the National Institute of Justice (NIJ).

NIJ/NCJRS plans to continue providing biennial updates of the Directory of Criminal Justice Information Sources. Feedback from Directory users will assist us in making this publication more useful. If your agency would like to be listed in the next edition and meets the criteria listed on the previous page, please complete the survey form on page G-l and mail it to the address below (guidelines for completing the form appear opposite the blank response form):

OBJECTIVES:

The Institute is an educational and policy center concentrating on the policy issues of sentencing, the use of prison and jail, and the management of corrections resources. Through education and training, policy analysis, program development, and research, NISA provides services to legislators and elected officials, law enforcement agencies, corrections and judicial administrators, and others with a stake in the justice system. The Institute seeks to increase understanding of the risks and needs of criminal offenders; the feasibility of prisons for punishment and public protection; and the emergence of sentencing alternatives such as restriction, intensive supervision, house arrest, and community service.

SERVICES OFFERED:

NISA maintains a library of justice information on sentencing alternatives that is made available to interested parties. Materials are disseminated in response to telephone or mail inquiries, usually free of charge. NISA offers referrals to other justice agencies when unable to provide requested information, and access to justice professionals in the field through an extensive consultant network.

NUMBER OF STAFF:

Professional: 10 Support: 4

CONTACT PERSON:

Ilene R. Bergsmann, Director of Information and Training

OBJECTIVES:

The Commission is a private, nonprofit, independent organization, which administers the only national voluntary correctional accreditation program. Its two principal goals are (1) improved administration and operation of correctional agencies through the implementation of the accreditation program, and (2) ongoing revision of standards in conjunction with the American Correctional Association to maintain their relevance and usefulness.

SERVICES OFFERED:

Pre-accreditation assessments measure agency readiness for application for accreditation. Accreditation orientation seminars, conducted on request of applicant agencies, are designed to familiarize agency staff with the mechanics of accreditation and to provide an understanding of the standards. Field consultations are arranged at the request of the agency to provide onsite assistance in explaining accreditation policy and procedure, interpreting the applicability of standards, and evaluating the appropriateness and thoroughness of documentation to support standards compliance. Standards interpretations are provided by Commission staff to agencies in accreditation and to those considering participation. Written and oral interpretations are available. OBJECTIVES:

The Eisenhower Foundation is a private, nonprofit, non-partisan institution dedicated to implementing many of the recommendations of the 1968-1969 Presidential Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence through private-sector action. The Foundation serves as a "mediating" institution within and among financial institutions and inner-city neighborhood organizations. The Foundation helps neighborhood organizations in inner-city communities to lessen crime and sustain themselves. The self-help philosophy is the Foundation's highest priority program. The Foundation also administers programs and conducts research on employment and family stabilization as strategies for combating urban crime and violence.

SERVICES OFFERED:

Through its Neighborhood Anti-Crime Self-Help Program
Guide, the Foundation networks among inner-city neighborhood organizations and helps these groups learn about crime prevention. The Foundation challenges grants from one source and leverages them with matching funds from other sources. Through the employment and family programs, the Foundation provides technical assistance to other programs around the country interested in implementing these models.

The Fortune Society's objectives are to increase public awareness of the prison system; to help the public understand the problems confronting inmates during incarceration and when they return to society; to work with released prisoners as they readjust to society; and to develop community involvement with crime prevention programs by creating alternatives for released convicts.

SERVICES OFFERED:

Fortune reaches the public by sending teams of speakers to schools, churches, and civic groups, and by providing witnesses and testimony before city, State, and Federal legislators. In addition, Fortune provides counseling to exoffenders on a one-to-one basis. Through Fortune's Job Development Department, ex-offenders find employment. Fortune's volunteers operate a one-to-one educational tutorial program for ex-offenders. Fortune works with legislators in drafting bills, challenges -- in court -- archaic and harmful laws, and works to restructure the prison system.

OBJECTIVES:

The chief goals of the National Crime Prevention Council are to reduce crime and the fear of crime and to prevent people from becoming victims of crime. The National Crime Prevention Council serves as secretariat to the Crime Prevention Coalition, with 103 member organizations. NCPC and the Coalition work nationally to promote a positive, take-action approach to crime prevention that involves citizens working together to "watch out"—by making homes more secure, teaching children emergency numbers, and reporting suspicious activity; and "help out"—by neighbors looking out for each other, getting together to clean up streets and parks, and seeking ways to use the talents of teenagers.

SERVICES OFFERED:

Services include coordinating the nationwide McGruff, "Take A Bite Out of Crime," advertising campaign; exchanging information among State, regional, and local crime prevention programs; developing materials for community level crime prevention programs; assisting with comprehensive crime prevention planning for local jurisdictions; building State and national networks for crime prevention; and providing technical assistance in program development.

OBJECTIVES:

The objectives of the Metro Transit Police Informational Programs have been to educate the public in the areas of safety and crime prevention in mass public transportation. For children, a McGruff Safety Crime Prevention slide presentation has been developed and is currently being shown to school children in the Washington metropolitan area. Another successful program has been the fingerprinting of children under the age of 18. The parents maintain possession of the fingerprint card in the event the child is lost or missing. Another area of concern has been crime prevention in Metro stations and parking lots. Pamphlets and other materials have been developed to make the riding public more aware of the active role that they must take along with Metro Transit Police to assure themselves of a safe Metrorail/Metrobus environment.

SERVICES OFFERED:

The agency will provide information relative to transit safety and crime in the Metro system to agencies or persons who need to know this information. If the agency is unable to supply certain information, appropriate referrals will be made.

Criminal Justice Information Exchange (CJIE) Group Members

The Criminal Justice Information Exchange (CJIE) Group is an informal, cooperative association of libraries serving the criminal justice community. The Group aims to foster communication and cooperation among member libraries and to enhance user services. Group members will provide information to criminal justice patrons about their collection, policies, and services. The National Institute of Justice/National Criminal Justice Reference Service, a CJIE member, serves as the Group coordinator.
