YOUTH COURT REPORT

January 1, 1986, through December 31, 1986

As required by Section 43-21-257 of the Mississippi Code of 1972, Annotated, the Mississippi Department of Youth Services has the statutory authority to collect and report the statistical information of the Mississippi Youth Courts regarding juvenile offenses such as delinquency and status offenses.

The data in this report was taken from a statistical card developed and provided by the Mississippi Department of Youth Services. For each court, Youth Service Counselors or other designated persons complete a record on every case disposed of during the calendar year. The statistical cards are then forwarded to the Central Office of the Department of Youth Services where the data is compiled. The following information is included on all statistical cards: age, sex, race, reason for referral, type of care received pending disposition, manner of handling the case (i.e., officially or unofficially) and case disposition.

This report covers the period from January 1, 1986, to December 31, 1986. A deadline of January 16, 1987, was established for receipt of all statistical cards for that period. The data in this statistical report should be used to indicate trends or characteristics of youth court cases rather than an exact accounting of cases handled by the courts.

A total of 14,607 cases were reportedly disposed of during calendar year 1986. Eighty-one counties reported at least one or more cases referred and carried to disposition. A total of over 6,152 cases were disposed of in six counties, with each county reporting 600 or more cases. These were as follows:

Hinds . . . . .	1,521
Harrison . . . . .	1,220
Jackson . . . . .	1,073
Washington . . . . .	955
DeSoto . . . . .	731
Lauderdale . . . . .	652

When a judge, referee or probation officer handles a case formally and a written petition is filed, the case is known as an official case. Of the 14,607 cases reported, 5,789 were handled officially. When a judge, referee or probation officer handles a case informally and no petition is filed, the case is known as an unofficial case. There were 8,818 unofficial cases handled during the reporting period.

Each offense committed by a youth is processed by the courts either as a separate case or as a new referral for delinquency, status offense, abuse or neglect. Therefore, the total of 14,607 does not include the actual number of youths who have had more than one referral to the court during the year.

Of the 14,607 cases disposed of during 1986, 67 percent were referrals for delinquent offenses, 18 percent were referrals for status offenses and 14 percent were neglect or abuse cases brought before the youth courts. The remaining 1 percent of the referrals required special procedures. As in past years, more cases were handled unofficially (60 percent) than officially (40 percent). Males composed over 71 percent of the total number of referrals and 29 percent of the cases were female. Forty-nine percent of all referrals were white, 50 percent were black and 1 percent were of another race. A total of 1,563 referrals violated probation or parole, with 1,141 cases of probation violation and 422 cases of parole violation. 1,697 cases were classified as children in need of supervision.

A status offense is noncriminal behavior by a juvenile, which would not be a crime if committed by an adult. In 1986, there were 2,628 referrals to the youth court for status offenses. The average age for the status offender was 15.2 years, whereas the most often reported age for the status offender was 16. Ungovernable behavior was the most prevalent offense, and running away was second, with 966 referrals.

A delinquent offense is the commission of an illegal act by a juvenile which would be a crime if committed by an adult. In 1986, there were 9,784 referrals to the youth court for delinquent acts. The most often reported age for the delinquent offender was 17, and the average age for the delinquent offender was 15.1. The three most common reasons for delinquent referrals were shoplifting (1,928 cases), burglary (1,519 cases) and larceny (945 cases).

In 1986, a total of 18 violent crimes were reported. These include four murders, one negligent manslaughter and thirteen rapes. Four males and one female were referred for murder and negligent manslaughter. Ten black and three white males were referred for rape. There were 147 reported cases of juveniles carrying and/or using guns in the commission of offenses. Knives were reportedly involved in 216 cases.

A drug offense, including sales, manufacture, use and possession, was listed as the primary reason for referral in 245 cases; however, 634 cases involved drugs or drug use. 1,213 cases cited possession or use of alcohol as the primary reason for referral; however, 1,697 listed alcohol involvement.

Males were referred more often than females for all delinquent offenses except prostitution. However, twice as many females as males were referred as runaways, a status offense. In addition, females were listed as the victims of abuse more often than males.

Out of the 2,628 status offenders, only 594 were held overnight or longer. Twenty-two percent of that number were detained in jail or a police station and 52 percent were held in a detention center. Twenty-three percent were given shelter care and 3 percent were given care in a foster home or in other facilities.

Most of the youths referred for delinquency were not detained overnight. Of the 1,527 children requiring detention, 34 percent were held in jails or police stations and 62 percent were held in detention centers. The remaining 4 percent were held in other facilities. Eighty-two percent of the juveniles held overnight in jails, police stations or detention centers were males. The average length of stay in a jail was 6.3 days, whereas the average length of stay in a detention center was 6.37 days.

Of the juveniles referred to the youth courts, 77 percent were reported to be enrolled in school. Of that percentage, 58 percent of the juveniles were placed according to expected grade level, 36 percent were placed below expected grade level, and less than one percent were placed above expected grade level. Additionally, 4 percent of the juveniles were enrolled in special education programs and one percent were enrolled in vocational programs.

Twenty-eight percent of the juveniles referred to the Mississippi Youth Courts lived at home with both natural parents, 12 percent lived with one natural parent and one stepparent, and 46 percent lived in a single parent home. Approximately one percent lived in a foster family home, an institution, or in an independent living arrangement, respectively.

Juvenile delinquents are committed by Youth Court Order to the Mississippi Department of Youth Services for institutionalization on either the Oakley or Columbia Campus. In 1986, 30 percent of the juveniles were committed for an offense which was a violation of parole and 70 percent of the juveniles committed were for a violation of probation and/or other offenses. Juveniles age 16 accounted for the greatest number of commitments in 1986, with 25 percent. The predominant number of commitments by sex was male and the predominate number of commitments by race was black.

The majority of institutionalized juveniles were from households with one parent, with as few as 15 percent from two parent households. Only 56 percent of the juveniles were enrolled in school at the time of commitment. More than half of those who were enrolled in school were performing below their expected grade level. Forty-three percent of the juveniles were not enrolled in school at the time of commitment according to reported data.

Twelve percent of institutionalized juveniles were committed for delinquent acts including murder, manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault and carrying/possessing weapons. Burglary, larceny, motor vehicle theft, arson, forgery/counterfeiting, fraud, embezzlement and buying/receiving/possessing stolen property accounted for another 65.1 percent of the commitments.

Additional data relating to juvenile commitments to the Mississippi Department of Youth Services is reported in tables and charts beginning on page 7 of this report.
