Director's Message

Dear Ohioan,

The mission of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction is to manage institutional and community activities related to convicted adult felons. We do this through two avenues - management of offenders inside the correctional institutions and community supervision such as parole, probation and residential programs.

Community protection and security are the department's primary responsibilities, both inside the institutions and out in the community. Security is maintained by trained and diligent staff and by the use of state-of-the-art security technology. These factors combine to maintain our reputation for having one of the lowest escape records in the country - well below the national average.

Our inmate programs are centered on providing safe and humane living conditions for the people committed to our custody, offering all inmates an equal opportunity to improve their chances of a successful return to society through educational and work related programs. Inmates are also provided with complete medical care, nutritious meals and recreational opportunities. We are proud that we can operate a quality prison at one of the lowest per-inmate costs in the country, saving taxpayer dollars while protecting our communities by operating secure institutions.

It is the department's hope that we can meet the concerns of public safety, carry out the sentences of the courts and encourage and train inmates to become productive and law-abiding citizens upon release. All of the department's staff are committed to these goals and we pledge to do our part to make Ohio a safe and just place to live.

Richard P. Seiter was appointed director of the Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction in January 1983 by Gov. Richard F. Celeste.

A native of Marion Co., Seiter earned bachelor of science, master of public administration and doctorate of public administration and criminal justice degrees from the Ohio State University.

Between 1976 and 1983 he held several positions with the Federal Bureau of Prisons including superintendent of the National Academy for Corrections in Boulder, Colorado.

Richard P. Seiter, Director

The Department

The Ohio Department of Rehabilitation and Correction was established July 12, 1972 by the 109th General Assembly's passage of Amended House Bill 494. For over one hundred years the correctional system in Ohio was administrated by a branch of the state's mental institutions. The separate cabinet-level department became necessary by the early 1970s because of a dramatic increase in the number of felons being sentenced to serve time in Ohio's prisons.

Rehabilitation and Correction currently employs about 6,500 persons throughout the state and is responsible for administration and operation of both the institutional and community related phases of Ohio's adult correctional system.

The mission of the department is to provide community protection and public safety through the operation of safe, secure and humane facilities that offer inmates rehabilitative opportunities.

The department is headed by a director who is appointed by the governor.

Major functions and responsibilities are shared by three administrators who report to the director:

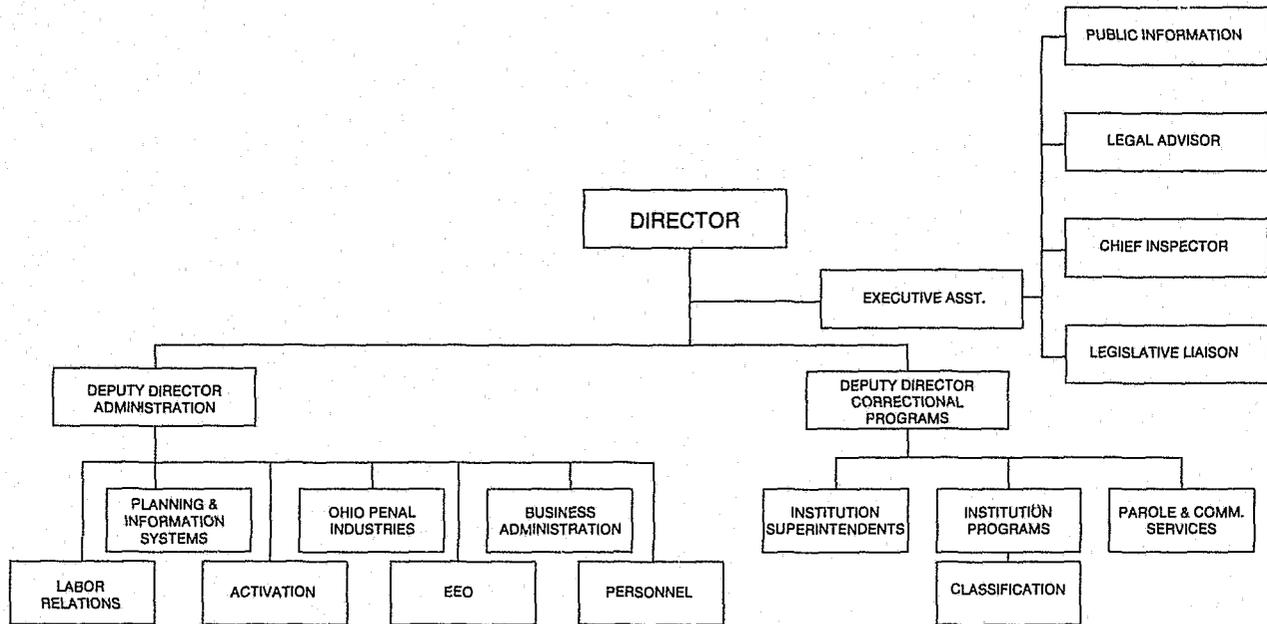

The Executive Assistant to the Director Responsible for the executive branch. Program areas include public information, legal services, the Office of Chief Inspector, legislative matters and prison construction.

The Deputy Director for Administration Fiscal, personnel and record keeping matters are handled by five divisions and bureaus; Planning and Information System, Business Administration, the Bureau of Personnel, Ohio Penal Industries and Labor Relations. Program areas include food service, affirmative action, employee training and research. Each division is headed by a chief. The Bureau of Personnel is headed by an administrator. They report to the deputy director.

The Deputy Director for Correctional Programs Responsible for the overall operation of correctional facilities and community supervision programs through three divisions; Institutions, Institution Programs and Parole and Community Services. Institution programs is in charge of inmate classification, security, education, recreation, medical, social, psychological and religious services. The Division of Parole and Community Services supervises the Adult Parole Authority, the Parole Board, probation, community corrections, halfway houses and local jail inspections. Division chiefs report to the deputy director. Each correctional institution has a separate administrative staff headed by a superintendent. Superintendents report to the deputy director.

The Institutions

The Chillicothe Correctional Institute is a medium-security prison housing older and repeat offenders. Located just north of Chillicothe in Ross County, the institution consists of over 50 buildings on a 72 acre compound and a 1,500 acre farm. The facility first opened as an Ohio prison in 1966.

The Pickaway Correctional Institution was formerly named the Correctional Pre-Release Center. It was created in 1984 to provide training and job-hunting skills to male inmates anticipating release from Ohio's correctional system. Inmates are provided with six weeks of training to aide them in their transition from the institution to society.

The Hocking Correctional Facility is a medium-security institution housing older male inmates. Located in Hocking County near Nelsonville, the prison operates a 412 acre farm.

The Lebanon Correctional Institution a close-security institution, is located on 40 acres in Warren County. Outside the fence, a 1,700 acre farm is operated by the inmates. LECI opened in 1960.

The Lima Correctional Institution is a medium-security prison housing male offenders in Lima in Allen County. Formerly an institution for the mentally ill, the facility opened as a prison in 1982.

The London Correctional Institution is a medium-security prison housing male offenders. Located on 3,000 acres of land near London in Madison County, LOCI operates the largest prison farm in the state, over 2,500 acres.

The Marion Correctional Institution is a close-security prison for male offenders. Opened in 1956, the institution is located near Marion in Marion County. The facility contains 12 housing units, all under one roof, on 60 acres. Outside the fence there is a 925 acre farm, and an honor dormitory.

The Ohio Reformatory for Women is Ohio's only correctional institution for adult female offenders. Located on 260 acres of land outside of Marysville in Union County, the prison ranges from minimum to maximum security and houses both young and repeat offenders.

The Ohio State Reformatory located on 600 acres of land near Mansfield in Richland County. An honor farm is located outside the walls, and the 2,000 acre Grafton Farm located in Lorain County is also operated by the facility. Opened in 1896, OSR is an 18-acre facility that also serves as the reception center for reformatory offenders.

The Orient Correctional Institution is a medium-security prison housing male offenders. Located in Pickaway County south of Columbus, the institution was transferred to the department from the Department of Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities and received its first inmate in June 1984.

The Southeastern Correctional Institution, formerly Fairfield School for Boys, opened in 1981. It houses male reformatory offenders near Lancaster in Fairfield County on 1,687 acres of land.

The Southern Ohio Correctional Facility Ohio's maximum-security prison houses repeat male offenders and young male offenders accused of more serious and violent crimes. The institution is located on a 1,000 acre site in Scioto County near Lucasville and consists of a 22 acre complex of structures, all under one roof. The facility opened in 1972.

Major Changes In 1986

Two major programs initiated in 1986 will have a long-lasting beneficial effect on the operation of Ohio's adult correctional institutions.

The Ohio Plan for Productive Prisons emphasizes work linked to training and education. Prison work assignments are based on the Training, Industries and Education (TIE) concept. Idleness is reduced, inmates are more active and inmate personal career programming becomes better directed. These active, well-structured programs contribute to a safer, more controlled, more positive prison environment. Through the TIE program, inmates acquire more skills to become better prepared for the job market when they are released from prison.

Also contributing to a more positive prison environment is a change in the way staff supervise inmates.

Through Unit Management, six staff - a unit manager, two correctional counselors, two case managers and a secretary - work in each housing unit. The direct contact with smaller groups of inmates enables staff to spot problems sooner and allows inmates to communicate their needs more easily.

Ohio's 14 new prisons have been designed for Unit Management supervision. Several existing facilities were converted in 1986.

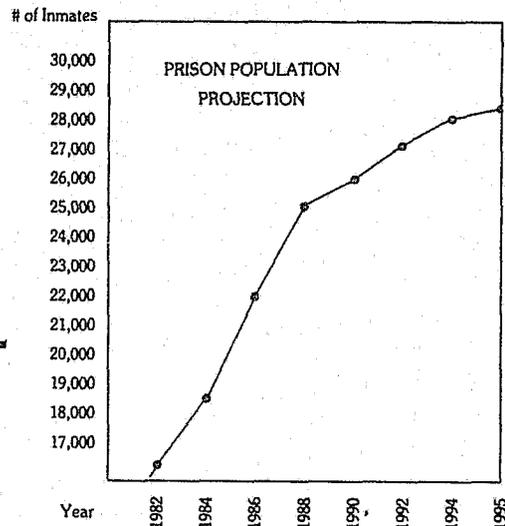

Prison Overcrowding

Ohio's prisons are grossly overcrowded. As of January 1, 1987, 22,175 inmates were housed in institutions designed to hold only 13,000. In many cases, area once used for program space (recreation, counseling, education, etc.) is now used for housing.

The state's prison population has been rising steadily for several years. Public outcry for tougher laws has resulted in longer sentences for felony convictions increasing the average stay in prison by 60 percent.

Projections indicate longer sentences will cause Ohio's prison population to increase by 1,000 inmates a year and by 1995 it is expected to have doubled from its 1980 level to almost 30,000.

Recognizing the need for more prison space, the Ohio General Assembly approved House Bill 530 in 1982. The bill authorizes the Ohio Building Authority to issue $638 million in bonds to finance the construction of 14 new state prisons and the expansion of two existing facilities (see next page). Along with the state projects, the bill contains authorization to spend $50 million to upgrade or build local jails.

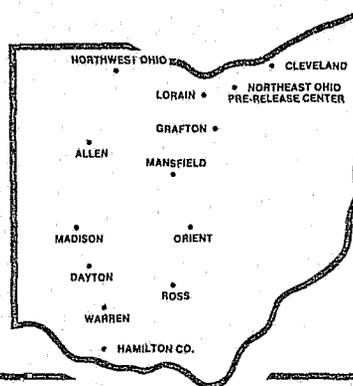

The prison construction bill is one of the biggest building programs ever undertaken by Ohio. All the projects are underway (see next page) and several are scheduled to open in the next two years.

Despite the massive scope of the building program, Ohio's prisons will remain short of space even when all the new prisons open. Construction will add about 9,000 beds to the system giving the department a design capacity of 21,500 - far short of the projected inmate population.

A 21-member task force appointed by Gov. Richard F. Celeste has made several recommendations to deal with the problems caused by overcrowded prison conditions. The recommendations include changes in the sentencing structure, the elimination of most mandatory minimum sentences, increased incentives for good behavior, and housing of non-violent offenders in local facilities and more use of intensive probation. The committee also recommends building up to four additional 500-bed prisons if necessary.

Members of the Ohio General Assembly are expected to act on the committee's report in 1987.

Prison Construction

Ross Correctional Institution The 250-bed minimum-security dormitory opened in June 1985. The 1000-bed medium-security penitentiary is scheduled to open in early 1987. Ross Correctional is located on state Rt. 104 north of Chillicothe directly across the highway from CCI. Cost of the project is $75 million.

Dayton Correctional Institution Located on the west side of Dayton adjacent to the city workhouse. A ground-breaking ceremony was held March 18, 1985. The 500-bed medium-security reformatory is expected to open in early 1987 at a cost of $25 million.

Madison Correctional Institution Located in Madison Co. across state Rt. 56 from LOCI. Ground was broken May 21, 1985 for the 1000-bed medium-security penitentiary. It's scheduled to open in mid 1987 at a cost of $35 million.

Allen Correctional Institution A ground-breaking ceremony was held June 21, 1985 adjacent LCI in Allen Co. beginning construction on this 500-bed medium-security penitentiary. Cost of the project is $28 million. It's scheduled to open in the summer of 1987.

Correctional Reception Center Construction on this 900-bed penitentiary/reception center/psychological facility complex on the grounds of Orient Correctional Complex south of Columbus began with the ground-breaking ceremony October 4, 1985. Completion is expected in 1987 at a cost of $40 million.

Grafton Correctional Institution Located in Lorain Co. at the site of the Grafton Prison Farm. Construction on the 500-bed institution began in 1986. The institution will be completed in 1988 at a cost of $30 million.

Warren Correctional Institution Construction will begin in 1986 on this 750-bed close-security reformatory located adjacent to LECI in Warren Co. Cost of the project is $44 million and it's expected to open in 1988.

Cleveland Correctional Institution The 500-bed medium-security institution will be built in Cleveland at Coit Rd. and 140th St., at a cost of $39 million.

Lorain Correctional Institution The 750-bed reformatory/reception center will be built adjacent to the Grafton Correctional Institution in Lorain Co. Construction began in 1986 with completion estimated in mid 1988. Cost of the project is $44 million.

Mansfield Correctional Institution Construction of the 1,200-bed penitentiary began in 1986 near OSR. The $54 million project will be completed in 1988.

Northeast Ohio Pre-Release Center Located near downtown Cleveland at Orange and 30th St. Construction on the 350-bed $14.3 million center began in 1986 and is scheduled to be completed in 1988.

Hamilton County Pre-Release Center Site selection for 350-bed $14.3 million center is underway.

Franklin County Pre-Release Center Construction on 250-bed center at Frank Rd. and Harmon Ave. just south of downtown Columbus began in 1987. The $7 million project is scheduled to open in 1988.

Northwest Ohio Pre-Release Center A site has yet to be determined for 200 bed, $8.5 million institution.

Institution Programs

Religious Services An inmate is able to choose from a number of religious faiths in the institution. Each prison has a chapel and clergy are on staff. Outside clergy are also invited to hold services and to counsel inmates.

The department recognizes the importance of religion. Participation in religious services helps inmates prepare for the time when they will be released. Services in institution chapels are well attended.

Inmate Medical Services The Frazier Health Center at the Orient Correctional Complex provides inmate care for non-emergency and chronic medical cases. Doctors on duty at institution infirmaries are able to handle minor problems and make diagnosis for further treatment. Surgical and emergency care is provided by contracted hospitals.

Social Services Social workers counsel inmates in a variety of areas including family problems, visiting, drug and alcohol abuse and employment possibilities on release. The social services staff provide invaluable counseling for inmates on an as-needed basis. Many problems are often remedied during counseling sessions. Social workers also provide the Parole Board with inmate institutional reports. The information includes reports of an inmate's institutional adjustment and parole plans.

Inmate Education The department's accredited Ohio Central School System gives inmates the opportunity to improve academic skills. Many inmates enter the correctional system unable to read and write or do even the simplest math. Illiteracy is a prime factor in criminal behavior and the department strives to offer learning opportunities to all inmates. The opportunities include required basic education courses to college degrees offered in conjunction with local colleges and universities.

Vocational education opportunities are also offered. Several certified programs such as auto mechanics, electronic equipment repair, computer programming and cosmetology are available providing inmates with the necessary training and skill to compete in the job market on release.

Ohio Penal Industries Along with vocational training, Ohio Penal Industries (OPI) offers inmates an opportunity to learn work habits and skills that are useful in the job market.

OPI manufactures and markets products for inside and outside sales. Inmates provide the necessary labor and are paid (an average of $25 per month) for their work. Sales are made primarily to local and state government. OPI generates its own capital from sales (See OPI statement last page).

Items manufactured by OPI include license plates and validation stickers for the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles, signs for the Department of Transportation, high-quality office furniture, inmate garments, custodial supplies and flags.

Inmate Grievance Procedure The grievance procedure gives inmates in Ohio correctional institutions a standardized method of presenting complaints concerning the conditions of their incarceration.

A grievance may relate to almost any aspect of institutional life. It may concern departmental or local policies, procedures, rules and regulations. It may also pertain to any actions on the part of any staff member or inmate affecting the person filing the grievance. It is to be filed with the inspector of institutional services and it must be specific in its description of the complaint or problem.

Parole and Community Services

Adult Parole Authority Under Ohio's current sentencing laws, judges have the option of sending felons to prison for either a fixed time (determinate sentence) or a period of time that includes minimum and maximum lengths of time to serve (indeterminate sentence).

All indeterminate sentenced offenders are eligible for release after meeting specific time requirements determined by the state Legislature.

The Ohio Parole Board reviews the cases of all eligible inmates. The seven board members are appointed from the civil service ranks by the chief of the Adult Parole Authority. The board, with the help of hearing officers, decided over 10,000 cases in 1986 (see page 21).

After release on parole, the department continues to supervise offenders before a final release is granted. The adjustment of parolees back into society is closely monitored by caseworkers in regional Adult Parole Authority offices. Violation of strict guidelines could result in a revocation of parole and a return to prison for the offender.

Probation Development Services Judges have the option of sentencing first-time and non-violent offenders to serve their sentences on probation instead of in an institution. Probation Development works with local courts in supervising offenders given probation.

Halfway House Program The department contracts with private halfway houses throughout the state providing housing and counseling to parolees and some probationers.

The Bureau Of Adult Detention Facilities And Services The bureau has the responsibility for developing and implementing minimum standards for local jails in Ohio. Four jail inspectors work out of regional offices. They routinely inspect all village, municipal and county jails and, if necessary, make recommendations on what must be done to bring the facility into compliance with state standards. The bureau works closely with local governments to ensure Ohio's jails are safe, secure and humane.
