The Honorable Federico Peña
Mayor, City and County of Denver
350 City and County Building
Denver, CO 80202

Dear Mayor Peña:

It is with sincere pleasure that I submit to you the Annual Report of the Denver Police Department for 1987. Notwithstanding tragic events this year leading to the loss of life of several public safety officers in the State of Colorado, and particularly the murder of Denver Police Officer James E. Wier, our Department has achieved notable improvements in service to our community. From the citizens' perspective, serious crime is declining. We continue to upgrade the tools, technological equipment, and facilities made available to our police officers. A new District 4 Police Station in the southwest quadrant of the City may well serve as a prototype design for similar structures in the future.

Under Chief Aristedes Zavaras' leadership, new organizational structures and minimum staffing standards for direct law enforcement services have been put in place to assure the public of basic police services, and these changes prepare us well to meet the challenges of the future.

In the name of all the officers and civilians of the Denver Police Department, I submit this Annual Report for your review and consideration.

Sincerely,

Manuel L. Martinez
Manager of Safety

Dear Manager Martinez:

I hereby submit the Annual Report outlining department activities and accomplishments for 1987.

The most significant highlight for 1987 was a reduction in the number of crimes reported in every category of Class I and Class II crimes. The overall result was a 21.5% decrease over 1986 and the first major reduction in crime in nine years.

Another achievement for the year was organizational improvement through realignment and personnel reassignments. The functional responsibilities of the Operations Division were split into the Patrol and Traffic Divisions. The Staff Services Division absorbed the functions of the Electronics and Telecommunications Division and the Community Service Division took over Training, Community Affairs, Mounted Patrol and Research and Development.

The community-related programs such as Crime Stoppers and Neighborhood Watch were expanded to encourage more citizen participation in crime control and crime prevention. These types of programs provide the mutual understanding and support needed between the community and the department to combat crime.

Unfortunately, along with the many triumphs we had a tragedy. On June 3, 1987, Officer James E. Wier was shot and killed in the line of duty. For his supreme sacrifice, Officer Wier was posthumously awarded the Department's Medal of Honor.

Finally, I wish to extend my appreciation to all personnel of the department for their continuous dedication and performance in providing the best possible police service to the community.

Sincerely,

Aristedes W. Zavaras
Aristedes W. Zavaras
Chief of Police

Change was a key word within the Denver Police Department in 1987. Nowhere was evidence of change more apparent than in its leadership. During 1987, the Department had 3 Chiefs of Police, 2 Deputy Chiefs and 9 different Division Chiefs.

For 4 years, Thomas E. Coogan was Chief of Police. The staff appointments serving under Chief Coogan in January, 1987 included Deputy Chief of Police John O'Shea, Operations Division Chief Rudy Phannenstiel, Criminal Investigations Division Chief Casey Simpson, Division Chief of Training Michael O'Neill, Staff Services Division Chief Robert Dunkley and Donald Mulnix, Division Chief of Electronics and Telecommunications.

Both Deputy Chief O'Shea and Division Chief Mulnix retired on February 1, 1987. Their positions were filled by the promotions of Captain Gary Gosage, commander of District Three, to the position of Deputy Chief, and Captain Darrell Bolton, commander of District Two, who became the Division Chief of Electronics and Telecommunications.

Chief Coogan's 27 year career with the Denver Police Department concluded with his retirement on May 1, 1987. Division Chief Rudolph Phannenstiel was named Chief of Police and served adeptly while leading the Department through a transition period.

Chief Aristedes Zavaras, former commander of District One, was sworn in as Chief of Police on September 18, 1987. A major departmental reorganization was completed on November 2. Chief Zavaras' staff appointments include Deputy Chief Clifford Stanley, Division Chief of Patrol Robert Cantwell, Division Chief of Traffic Robert Dunkley, Division Chief of Criminal Investigations Casey Simpson, Division Chief of Staff Services Joseph Ortiz and Division Chief of Community Service C. Jerry Kennedy.

District Four

The first police substation for Southwest Denver was located at 2929 West Florida Avenue and was known as District Six. The 3,190 square-foot station was built in 1960 to accommodate thirty-five police officers.

Ten years later, the station became known as District Four. During the same period, the district's complement of officers increased nearly 400 percent. District Four Station became outmoded and inadequate to house the increased number of personnel and the equipment and vehicles required to perform the police services demanded by the expanding community.

In 1984, a capital improvement program for a new station was approved by City Council and the Mayor. An advisory committee was appointed to make recommendations for a building site and station needs. A 3.2 acre site was selected at 2100 South Clay Street for its high visibility and accessibility to the southwest area.

Plans for a 16,548 square-foot station were drawn up by Roth-Sheppard Architects and the building contractor was the W. M. Brown Construction Company. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held on March 18, 1986 and the construction was completed on May 22, 1987, at a cost of $1,698,000 (including land).

The upper level of the block and concrete station contains the reception area and administrative offices of the captain, lieutenants and sergeants. Adjacent operational areas for patrol functions consist of an assembly room, report writing room, conference room and armory. Additional space was allocated to investigative personnel, including a supervisor's office, detectives' cubicles, interrogation room, interview room and three holding cells.

The lower level contains a handball/racquetball court and an ultra-modern gymnasium for conditioning and improving officers' general fitness. Adjacent are restrooms, showers, lockers and a sauna/steambath. The remaining space is occupied by a kitchen and lunchroom.

A perimeter fence with electronically controlled gates surrounds a 110-car parking lot and automated fuel dispensing system. A vehicle maintenance facility was also built into the station to house proposed lubricating and washing services for the fleet.

The future will, of course, bring changes and increased demands on the police personnel and equipment assigned to District Four. The only item at the station which will not change is the plaque displayed in the conference room, commemorating the opening of the old District Six Station.

In 1987 . . .

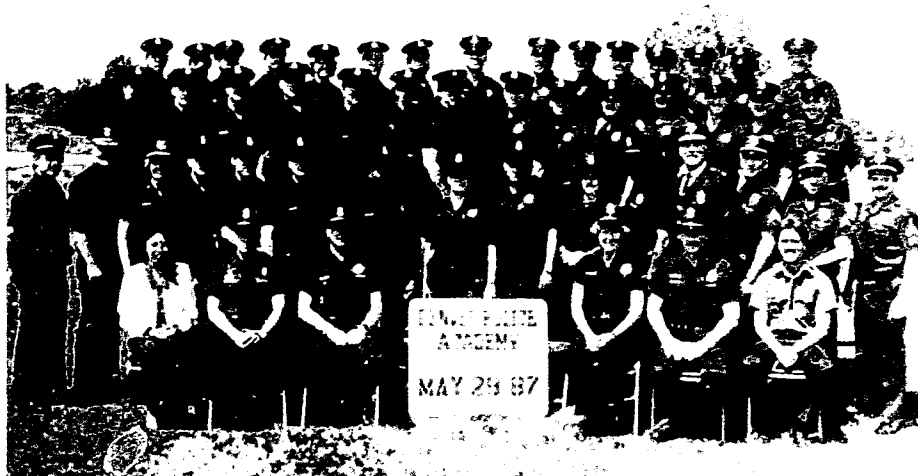

The changes to the City Charter concerning the operation of the Denver Police Department, approved by Denver voters in November 1986, became effective on January 1. The rank of Deputy Chief was formalized and major modifications were made in the Department's disciplinary process. Lured by the offer of two tickets to the Super Bowl, 65 fugitives wanted on felony charges were arrested by the Career Criminal Unit on January 13 at what became known as the "Super Bowl Sting". A class of 35 probationary officers was sworn in on January 16.

Officers Ron Blair, Danny Cram, Joe Ferraro, Darryl Gautier, Gerry Gerkin, James Gropp, John Hafer, Tony Lombard, Larry Martin, Wally McCreary, Don Rask, Terry Rogers, Steve Rosengren and Dean Wood were promoted to the rank of Sergeant on February 17.

On March 8, Officer Hank Terry of the Tactical Motorcycle Unit was struck by a motorist at 24th & Stout. Following extensive reconstructive surgery, he has returned to work in the Firearms Section.

Three lieutenants were promoted to the rank of Captain on April 16. They were Robert Cantwell, David Michaud and Roger Kaspersen.

On May 1, Chief Thomas E. Coogan resigned his position and Division Chief Rudolph Phannenstiel was appointed Chief by Mayor Peña. After years of planning and construction, the new District Four substation was opened on May 20. Twenty-nine officers graduated from the Police Academy on May 27.

June 3, 1987 became a day of infamy when, for the first time, a probationary officer was killed in the line of duty. Officer James Wier, who responded on a domestic disturbance call, was killed by a mentally deranged suspect who took his own life. Sgt. Ron Sampson and Sgt. Pete Diaz were also wounded in responding to this police emergency.

Because of the increasing nationwide concern about AIDS and other infectious diseases, a departmental Infectious Disease Prevention Program was established after months of research and planning. Training of officers and selected civilian employees in prevention techniques began in the month of August.

Manager of Safety J. D. MacFarlane resigned on September 11th. He was succeeded by Manuel Martinez, formerly Manager of Excise and License. Chief Rudolph Phannenstiel retired on September 17, culminating 28 years of service to the Denver Police Department. Chief Phannenstiel was succeeded in office by Aristedes W. Zavaras, formerly commander of District One.

On November 2, the Department was reorganized into five divisions: Patrol, Traffic, Criminal Investigations, Staff Services, and Community Service. The written examination for the rank of Sergeant was held on November 14 and was followed by an assessment center in December. This was the first use of the assessment center examination technique for the rank of Sergeant, producing an eligibility list of 138 officers. Continental Airlines flight 1713 crashed on takeoff during a snowstorm on the afternoon of November 15. Officers assigned to the Airport, District 2 and METRO/SWAT became involved in a multi-hour rescue effort during blizzard conditions. Officer Paul Waldock of District 3 was shot in the leg on November 29 at I-225 and Yosemite after pursuing a domestic violence suspect.

The percentage of error in totals because of this missing data on offense reports is estimated to be consistent throughout all age categories.
