JUSTICE ASSISTANCE ACT OF 1983

SEPTEMBER 12, 1983.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. THURMOND, from the Committee on the Judiciary, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany S. 53]

The Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the bill (S. 53) to amend the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon with amendments and recommends that the bill as amended do pass.

I. PURPOSE OF THE COMMITTEE AMENDMENTS

In order to expedite Senate consideration of a program for renewed Federal assistance to State and local law enforcement, Senator Arlen Specter, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Juvenile Justice, offered as an amendment during Subcommittee markup of S. 53, the language of the Administration's justice assistance proposal, which is discussed in more detail in Section III of this Report. That amendment was agreed to and served as the basis for Committee consideration, further amendment, and a favorable recommendation.

The Subcommittee amendment was intended by the Administration and the Committee to provide a highly targeted program of Federal financial assistance to State and local law enforcement operating under a revised organizational structure within the Department of Justice. Major differences between the amendment and the original bill include the provisions in the former establishing a block grant program to distribute Federal financial assistance implementing State and local anti-crime programs of proven success and its organizational revision. It provides for a new Assistant Attorney General within the Department of Justice to coordinate Federal criminal justice assistance, research, criminal justice facilities, and statistical programs.

II. HISTORY OF S. 53

A. PAST FEDERAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

The Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-351) established the first comprehensive Federal grant program intended to assist States and localities in strengthening and improving their criminal justice systems. Administered by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), the Act provided block grants to the States with approved comprehensive criminal justice plans for law enforcement and criminal justice improvement projects. It also provided categorical grants for national programs, including research, technical assistance, training, statistics, and demonstration projects.

LEAA was initially designed to focus on four basic objectives: (1) the development and transfer of new techniques and methods to reduce crime and to detect, apprehend, and rehabilitate criminals; (2) the development of State comprehensive planning for criminal justice improvements; (3) the provision of technical and financial assistance to improve and strengthen law enforcement and criminal justice; and (4) research and development projects to improve criminal justice operations. In 1970, Congress extended the LEAA authorization and added a new Part E to the basic legislation providing for block and discretionary grants exclusively for corrections-related programs. (Public Law 91-644.)

The Crime Control Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-83) further amended the 1968 Act and extended the LEAA program for another three years. In the process, numerous administrative requirements were added to the program, leading to an increased burden of red tape on State and local governments. The following year, the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (Public Law 94-503) established a separate juvenile justice program to be administered by LEAA. It provided formula and discretionary grants to State and local governments and private non-profit organizations. The Act also established a National Institute for Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

In 1976, the LEAA authorization was extended for three years (Public Law 94-503) and numerous administrative requirements were again added to the legislation. These further increased the complexity of the program and the management costs at all levels of government.

The current authorizing legislation, the Justice System Improvement Act of 1979 (Public Law 96-157) separated LEAA into four distinct agencies: the Office of Justice Assistance, Research and Statistics (OJARS); the National Institute of Justice (NIJ); the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS); and the LEAA. Each was to be headed by an administrator or director appointed by the President. In addition, under the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-415), and the Juvenile Justice Amendments of 1980 (Public Law 96-509), the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) has also been headed by an Administrator appointed by the President. The OJJDP, originally part of LEAA, was later separated from that agency.

In 1975, annual appropriations for the LEAA State and local assistance program reached a peak of $895 million, and subsequently dropped sharply. Three months after the 1979 Act was signed into law, the Carter Administration proposed to phase out LEAA by requesting no Fiscal Year 1981 appropriations for the State and local assistance effort. The LEAA was terminated on April 15, 1982.

The history of LEAA provides important lessons for use in the design of a new effort to attack the problem of crime. It demonstrates that a program whose priorities were unclear and constantly shifting resulted in confusion and waste. It also indicates that overly detailed statutory and regulatory specification produces bureaucratic red tape, which inhibits progress toward the goals of the program.

The LEAA experience also demonstrates that the concept of Federal seed money for carefully designed programs does work, and that certain carefully designed projects can have a significant impact on criminal justice. The assumption rate of 83 percent of city projects and 78 percent of county projects financed under the LEAA is clearly indicative of the value of these projects in terms of fostering permanent improvements in criminal justice systems.<sup>1</sup>

B. EFFORTS TO RESTORE FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ASSISTANCE

In 1981, the Attorney General appointed a distinguished Task Force on Violent Crime. Among the recommendations of the Task Force were several concerned with Federal assistance to State and local law enforcement efforts.

- Recommendation 53 urged the Attorney General to ensure that Federal assistance was made available for research, development, demonstration and implementation of effective anti-crime programs to aid local law enforcement efforts against serious crime.
- Recommendation 54 called for legislation to authorize Federal assistance to State and local corrections.
- Recommendation 52 called for legislation to allow for emergency Federal assistance to State and local governments suffering criminal justice disasters.
- Recommendation 51 called for expanded Federal justice data collection and analysis.
- Recommendations 10, 11, 44, 45 and 46 were all concerned with increasing Federal training and technical assistance to local law enforcement.

Building upon the recommendations of the Attorney General's Task Force on Violent Crime and lessons learned from the LEAA experience, the Committee worked to establish a new and more targeted approach to Federal justice assistance in the 97th Congress.

In September 1982, the Committee favorably reported S. 2411, the Justice Assistance Act of 1982. On December 9, 14, and 22, justice assistance legislation was considered and passed by the Senate.

The final version of the Justice Assistance Act of 1982 was passed by both bodies on December 22 as part of a seven-part anti-crime package. That package was "pocket" vetoed on January 14, 1983, after the 97th Congress adjourned, due to the Administration's strong objections to another portion of that package.<sup>2</sup>

Following meetings with Chairman Thurmond, Senator Specter, and Members of the House, the Administration agreed to endorse the concept of a highly targeted program of Federal financial assistance to State and local criminal justice efforts and proposed that it operate within a restructured organizational framework.

The Justice Assistance Act of 1983, S. 53, was introduced by Senators Specter, Biden, Mathias, Heflin, Kennedy, and Baucus on January 26, 1983, the first opportunity for the introduction of legislation in the 98th Congress. It derived from the recommendations for renewed Federal assistance to State and local law enforcement by the Attorney General's Task Force on Violent Crime, hearings before the Subcommittee on Juvenile Justice in the 97th Congress, and previous favorable consideration of several versions of the Justice Assistance Act of 1982 by the Senate and House Committees on the Judiciary and the full House and Senate in the 97th Congress.

On March 14 and April 5, 1983, the Subcommittee on Juvenile Justice held field hearings on Federal justice assistance in Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. In addition, on April 14, 1983, the Subcommittee held a hearing in Washington, D.C. During the latter hearing, the Associate Deputy Attorney General expressed the Administration's support for a Federal justice assistance program. In addition to the United States Department of Justice, the Subcommittee also heard or received testimony in the course of its hearings from the United States Conference of Mayors, National Association of Counties, National Sheriffs Association, International Association of Chiefs of Police, Police Executive Research Forum, National Association of Attorneys General, National District Attorneys Association, National Legal Aid and Defender Association, National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges, National Center for State Courts, American Bar Association, Consortium of Social Science Associations, SEARCH Group, Inc., Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, National Neighborhood Coalition, and several State and local law enforcement officials.

All of these groups, while having varied recommendations as to what specific provisions should be included in an assistance program, presented evidence to the Committee as to the critical need for a Federal role in State and local efforts to fight crime.

On January 31, 1983, the Administration sent to the Congress its Budget Request for Fiscal Year 1984. Included within that request was $92 million for a criminal justice assistance program. On March 16, 1983, the Administration sent its legislative proposal to Congress as Title VIII of the Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1983. That bill, S. 829, was immediately introduced by Judiciary

III. STATEMENT

The bill reported by the Committee is intended to respond to violent crime which has been consistently shown to be a national problem of major proportions, both in the number of violent crimes committed and in the public perception of crime as a leading personal concern. According to the FBI's "Crime Clock" for 1981, one violent crime is committed every 24 seconds and one property crime is committed every three seconds.<sup>3</sup> The "Figgie Report on Fear of Crime: America Afraid" found that 41 percent of Americans were "highly fearful" that they would become victims of violent crime.<sup>4</sup> An additional 29 percent were "moderately fearful." The news media have given sustained prominence to the problem of crime, heightening public awareness of its magnitude, and sustaining the public's demand for effective action by government at all levels. While State and local governments shoulder the primary burden of dealing with violent crime, a Federal role is appropriate in order to coordinate and supplement State and local efforts.

The bill is designed to reflect an appreciation for the lessons of the LEAA experience by providing for a highly targeted program of assistance from within a streamlined and simplified organizational arrangement in the Department of Justice. The bill eliminates the burdensome comprehensive planning requirements in the current law and substitutes a simplified application process which will assure the delivery of Federal assistance with a minimum of red tape and delay. Under the LEAA program, States submitted detailed comprehensive criminal justice improvement plans as the basis for their use of Federal funds. This requirement led to annual State plans of extraordinary length for which up to $60 million of Federal funds were spent annually.

Under the Justice Assistance Act, as reported by the Committee, only a simplified application is required. The applications will identify the eligible projects to be implemented, the State or local jurisdictions in which the project will be operated, and the source of funds required to match the Federal share of the cost. Once the application is reviewed for compliance with provisions of the Act, the block grant funds will immediately become available to the State, which is then obligated to distribute a fair share of the funds to local jurisdictions.

S. 53 establishes an Office of Justice Assistance (OJA) within the Department of Justice, headed by an Assistant Attorney General. The Committee concluded that placing authority and responsibility for the entire State and local program at the level of an Assistant Attorney General enhances the stature of the organization and provides a clear line of authority and accountability.

Within the OJA will be four separate units—the Bureau of Justice Programs (BJP), the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities (BCJF), the National Institute of Justice (NIJ), and the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), each headed by a director appointed by the Attorney General. The BJP Director is required by Section 202 of the reported bill to provide funds, technical assistance, and training authorized under Parts E and F. Under Sections 302 and 402, respectively, the NIJ and BJS Directors have "such authority as delegated by the Assistant Attorney General to make grants, cooperative agreements, and contracts awarded" by their respective agencies. The Director of the BCJF is authorized to make grants for correctional facilities under Sections 702 and 703 of the bill. The Committee anticipates that all directors will be responsible for the day-to-day management of their units and will have grant-making authority.<sup>5</sup> LEAA and OJARS would be abolished.

Advising the Assistant Attorney General would be a consolidated Justice Assistance Advisory Board appointed by the President. This Board, replacing the two separate boards advising NIJ and BJS, would consider the full range of criminal justice issues and policies, rather than the compartmentalized consideration of only research, only statistical programs, or only the financial assistance needs of the criminal justice community.

The National Institute of Justice sponsors research and development relating to crime, its causes, and how criminal justice agencies can better address it.

NIJ programs support a broad range of research activities to help strengthen criminal justice operations, formulate policies for crime prevention and control, and develop a better understanding of criminal patterns and behavior. It also supports research on prediction and classification techniques, analyses of crime control policies, and the development of performance standards for criminal justice agencies. Moreover, the Institute translates the results of research and evaluation into operating techniques, tests promising new criminal justice programs and transfers information through training and dissemination to State and local officials. Institute research is conducted primarily by non-governmental research organizations.

Under S. 53, the NIJ will continue to carry out these justice research activities in much the same manner as authorized under current law, although more effective coordination between NIJ, BJS, BCJF, and BJP is expected to be achieved under the proposed organizational arrangement. Thus, the products of NIJ research and demonstration efforts can be brought to bear directly on the financial and technical assistance activities of the other units.

The Bureau of Justice Statistics is the major Federal agency with responsibility for collecting, analyzing, and reporting national statistics on crime and criminal justice. It sponsors national surveys and censuses, including the National Crime Survey of crime victimization and a survey of inmates of State correctional facilities. These and other surveys enable BJS to provide statistical information on crime and criminal justice in the United States, including information relating to the nature and extent of crime in the Nation, the number of crime victims and the extent of their injuries and property losses, the size and growth of the prison population, the extent of prison overcrowding, and other matters. Under S. 53, BJS will continue to carry out these statistical activities in much the same manner as authorized under the current law.

The Committee feels that by placing the National Institute of Justice and the Bureau of Justice Statistics within the new structure of the Office of Justice Assistance, the overall coordination and resulting productivity of that branch of the Department of Justice will be enhanced. While the Committee recognizes the great value of research and statistics in this area and their productive results, current economic limitations on available resources and past experiences with bureaucratic complexity dictate the need for a more efficient and focused approach.

The Committee therefore concluded that while the day-to-day operation, research, and statistical responsibilities would remain with the individual bureau directors, the Assistant Attorney General could better coordinate the efforts of these branches of the Office. Because the directors will have practical experience in their fields and the bill clearly defines the duties and responsibilities of the various bureaus within the Office, the NIJ and the BJS will be free to pursue their academic and statistical endeavors unfettered by any bureaucratic or political constraints. It is the Committee's belief that this new structure will reduce red tape and increase the overall productivity of the Office of Justice Assistance, without reducing the scientific integrity or autonomy of the bureaus involved.

The Bureau of Justice Programs will have the responsibility to provide technical assistance, training, and funds to State and local criminal justice and non-profit organizations through a combination of block and discretionary grant funds. Eighty percent of the funds authorized to be appropriated are for the purposes of implementing a block grant program. Each State would receive an allocation of block grant funds based on its relative population. At least a proportional share of the funds must then be passed through to local governments for program implementation. A base amount of $250,000 will be awarded to each State with the remaining block grant portion allocated on the basis of each State's relative population.

Reported crime rate was not included as a factor for three reasons. First, numerous jurisdictions, including some large cities and many small or rural communities, do not participate in the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports (UCR) data collection program. Second, the number of crimes reported to the police do not necessarily reflect either the actual rate of criminal acts or the level of public fear of crime in a particular locality. Finally, the use of crime rate data as a basis for the distribution of funds may penalize the more efficient and effective law enforcement agencies while rewarding the less effective.

Federal funds would be matched in cash on a 50-50 basis. Individual projects would not be entitled to receive more than three years of Federal assistance. Funding would be limited to specific types of activities based on program models with a demonstrated record of success, which relate primarily to violent crime, repeat offenders, victim/witness assistance, and crime prevention projects. No Federal funds may be used to pay State or local administrative costs, nor may they be used for construction projects, personnel salaries, or hardware, except as a necessary and incidental expense associated with an approved activity.

Among the authorized program activities are the following selected projects previously supported by LEAA which the Committee feels have made clear and measurable impact on the crime problem:

"Sting" Anti-Fencing Projects.—Undercover enforcement operations involving local police and FBI agents which establish phony fencing operations to purchase stolen property and obtain evidence necessary to convict the thieves, robbers, and burglars involved. Ninety-three operations have been completed in 47 cities, resulting in arrest warrants for 9,856 persons, and the recovery of $300 million in stolen property and savings. The conviction rate is over 90 percent.<sup>6</sup>

The Career Criminal Program.—This program enables prosecutor's offices in large- and medium-size cities throughout the country to identify and fully prosecute individuals who repeatedly commit serious and violent crimes. Prosecutors screen all felony charges and identify individuals charged with serious felonies as career criminals by analysis of their criminal records. Their cases are thoroughly prepared and expeditiously presented to the court, without plea bargaining. The 50 units which have been closely monitored convicted 11,000 repeat offenders who have received an average of 13.8 years in prison. The conviction rate of those units was an impressive 92.8 percent.<sup>7</sup>

The Victim-Witness Assistance Program.—Victim/witness programs work to remedy the indifference, delay, and lack of information which often confront victims of and witnesses to crimes. Procedures have been changed, information provided, and the sensitivity of prosecutors heightened. Significant savings in time and lost wages have been realized and the willingness of victims and witnesses to cooperate with law enforcement authorities has been enhanced.<sup>8</sup>

The Treatment Alternatives to Street Crime (TASC) Program.—The TASC program was designed as a response to a rapidly increasing property crime rate caused, in significant part, by drug offenders. Pretrial, probation, and parole clients are placed in treatment programs under close supervision to prevent their return to illicit drug use and crime. Over 52,000 drug-abusing offenders have participated in 72 TASC programs. Savings have been realized from the program due to decreased correctional, court, prosecutorial, and probation workloads. Of those successfully completing the program in one project, 91 percent had no subsequent arrests.<sup>9</sup>

Integrated Criminal Apprehension Program (ICAP).—This program promotes the increased utilization, effectiveness, and efficiency of police resources through the use of crime analysis, directed and varied patrol, tactical crime prevention, and investigative responses based on analyzed information. Implemented in 56 jurisdictions, ICAP resulted in increased police patrol strength, reduced investigative case backlogs, increased arrest rates for serious and repeat offenders, and reduced overtime costs for police departments.<sup>10</sup>

The Prosecutor's Management Information System (PROMIS).—This program was designed as a response to the common experience in large urban areas of courts being overwhelmed by the high volume of criminal cases. PROMIS is an automated system which identifies high priority cases, alerts officials to multiple offenders, develops statistical reports illustrative of court and prosecutorial problems and needs, and aggregates data about court process, crime trends, and social-legal problems. Significant time and cost savings have been documented in participating jurisdictions.<sup>11</sup>

New Pride and Violent Juvenile Offender Programs.—Project New Pride provides specially designed intensive and comprehensive treatment for serious juvenile offenders which is community based. It reduces recidivism, increases school and community achievements, and provides employment opportunities. Results show that many of these serious juvenile offenders who failed in traditional programs made considerable progress after being enrolled in Project New Pride. The Violent Juvenile Offender Program includes the development of performance contracts with young offenders that specify services to be provided, the responsibilities of the youths, and the penalties if contract terms are not met. A preliminary evaluation indicated that 83 percent of the juveniles had no further contact with the juvenile court prior to case closure and that some 17,000 youths participated during the first two years, paying $1.5 million in monetary restitution, working 259,092 hours of community service, and performing more than 4,060 hours of direct victim services.<sup>12</sup>

Anti-Arson Programs.—LEAA anti-arson efforts have developed arson prevention and control programs and have enhanced cooperation and coordination between insurance companies and law enforcement.<sup>13</sup>

Community Crime Prevention.—LEAA fostered programs of crime prevention education aimed at alerting the public to the effectiveness of community and neighborhood programs like Neighborhood Watch and similar projects utilizing citizen involvement. A nationwide media campaign was sponsored with the Advertising Council and other national organizations to inform the public of alternative programs to prevent and control community and neighborhood crime.<sup>14</sup>

Unlike the former LEAA program, which attempted to "improve the criminal justice systems" at State and local levels, S. 53 focuses on those specific areas where modest resources can have a significant impact. Past experience with the LEAA program is ample evidence of the need for a narrow focus to the financial assistance program in order to prevent dissipation of limited resources and to assure maximum impact on violent crime, repeat offenders, victim/witness assistance, and crime prevention activities.

Twenty percent of the funds authorized to be appropriated are for a discretionary grant program. The discretionary funds will focus on technical assistance, training,<sup>15</sup> and multijurisdictional or national programs related to the same priority objectives specified for the block grant funds. In addition, discretionary funds may be used for demonstration programs to test the effectiveness of new anti-crime ideas. Federal funding for such programs may be up to 100 percent of their cost.

S. 55 eliminates the complex application submission and review procedures required under the earlier program. It retains only those administrative provisions necessary to the exercise of appropriate stewardship over public funds and to assure that the funds are being effectively used for the purposes identified in the Act. In lieu of the establishment of a statutorily mandated State planning agency, it authorizes the chief executive of each State to designate a State agency to administer the grant program.

S. 53 authorizes the establishment of a new Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities as the fourth separate unit within the OJA. The Committee believes that our dangerously overcrowded prisons and jails represent a serious threat to the stability and integrity of the Nation's law enforcement and justice systems. A Federal justice assistance effort must include direct and substantial aid to States struggling to renovate and rebuild a failing prison and jail infrastructure that represents their last line of defense against violent crime.

During 1982 the National Governor's Association called for the Federal Government to make assistance for the construction of new prisons its number one criminal justice priority. The Attorney General's Task Force on Violent Crime recommended that Congress appropriate $2 billion over four years to help the States build prisons.<sup>16</sup> Governor James Thompson, co-chair of the Task Force, urged that most of the recommendations to combat violent crime would be to no avail for a nation left with no place to put violent offenders because of a lack of safe and humane prison facilities.<sup>17</sup>

Our Nation's prisons and jails are teeming with inmates sleeping in tents, boilerrooms, gymnasiums, hallways and temporary trailer houses. Unsanitary and unsafe, many of our overflowing prisons no longer have the capacity to legally hold the burgeoning inmate populations created by our ever increasing war on crime. Wardens and jailers, as well as mayors and governors, face thousands of lawsuits challenging their very right to hold prisoners under conditions that the courts have ruled violate fundamental concepts of human decency. Thirty-nine States and hundreds of county and city executives and law enforcement officers are under court order, or are defending lawsuits because of substandard or inhumane prison and jail conditions.<sup>18</sup> The condition of our Nation's corrections infrastructure of more than 650 prisons, 3,500 jails, and numerous halfway houses, detention centers, and other correctional facilities today represent the critically weak link in the Nation's battle against crime.

During the 1970's, while resources to detect, apprehend, and prosecute criminals were expanding, expenditures for convicted and pretrial prisoners continued to decline in real terms. The capacity and efficiency of all criminal justice agencies except corrections increased, leaving the Nation's last line of defense against crime with too many prisoners in too little space.

Part G of the Act creates a new Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities to direct new Federal financial and technical assistance to directly aid States and localities in their efforts to reduce dangerous and epidemic prison and jail overcrowding and improve substandard conditions of confinement. The authorization for Part G is capped at $25 million for each fiscal year 1984 through 1987.

The Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities will render assistance in several important areas:

1. Provide for subsidies to reduce interest costs on prison and jail bonds to help move necessary renovation and construction projects off the drawing boards.
2. Authorize grants for developing State corrections master plans for renovation or construction projects to relieve unconstitutional and substandard prison and jail conditions.
3. Establishes a state-of-the-art clearinghouse for criminal justice facilities with expert technical assistance for facility planning, design, construction, and operations.

The Committee believes that Federal assistance should emphasize aiding State and local governments that are striving to bring their correctional facilities into compliance with Federal constitutional and other legal mandates. Since such mandates contemplate evolving standards of decency, assistance should also encourage efforts to meet locally or nationally developed standards or accreditation requirements through the application of advanced practices.<sup>19</sup> As developed by the American Correctional Association and the former National Clearinghouse on Criminal Justice Planning and Architecture, advanced practices are intended to make correctional facility designs more flexible, efficient, and responsive to environmental health, security, personal safety, basic human activity, and other important institutional and societal purposes, and less reflective of obsolete designs relying almost exclusively on a maximum security hardware approach.

The vehicle serving as the application for assistance—the State corrections master plan—represents one of the most potent resources a State can marshal to combat substandard prison conditions and overcrowding. The application process itself encourages States to begin managing their prison problems in an active rather than reactive manner. No elaborate overlay of statutory or regulatory requirements are provided or intended to encourage such planning efforts. Application requirements are intended primarily to insure a modicum of fiscal accountability and encourage coordinated system-wide planning efforts. State plans concisely setting out correctional facility needs and describing legislative, executive, and judicial solutions being pursued in a construction and non-construction context will satisfy the purposes intended for such plans by the Committee.

The Committee believes that non-construction initiatives such as developing corrections standards, seeking accreditation of institutions, sentencing reform, emergency overcrowding contingency plans, innovative classification plans, community corrections, enhanced prison education, industry and work release programs, and other strategies utilized by a number of States to enhance or supplant construction efforts to improve prison conditions and reduce overcrowding should be encouraged as a concomitant to providing renovation or construction assistance.<sup>20</sup>

S. 53 provides for Federal assistance to State or local governments confronting an "uncommon situation in which State and local resources are inadequate to protect the lives and property of citizens or enforce the criminal law." The Attorney General is authorized to receive and approve or disapprove applications from the chief executive of any State for designation of a State or locality experiencing such a situation as a "law enforcement emergency jurisdiction." When the Attorney General finds that a jurisdiction qualifies for such designation according to criteria he is required to establish and publish, assistance may be provided by Federal agencies having law enforcement responsibilities. Federal assistance is defined as "equipment, training, intelligence information, and technical expertise." In addition, the Office of Justice Assistance may provide funds for the lease or rental of specialized equipment and other forms of emergency assistance, except that the funds may not be used to pay the salaries of local criminal justice personnel or otherwise supplant State or local funds.

The Committee anticipates that the emergency assistance provision could apply to such situations as the notorious Atlanta child murders, the Mount St. Helens volcanic eruption which disabled police vehicles and communications, and public safety planning for national political conventions and international events, such as the Olympic Games.

<sup>20</sup> Many of the construction and nonconstruction strategies that States have been pursuing to reduce overcrowding are catalogued in a report "Reducing Prison Crowding: An Overview of Options" prepared by the National Institute of Corrections, submitted to the National Governors Association, Feb. 21, 1982.

IV. ADDITIONAL FEATURES OF THE JUSTICE ASSISTANCE ACT

Public Safety Officers' Death Benefits.—S. 53 reauthorizes the existing Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act with four modifications which are consistent with congressional intent as expressed in the legislative history of the 1974 Act. Specifically, it codifies a recommendation of the General Accounting Office regarding eligible beneficiaries under 5 U.S.C. 8101, establishes a definition of intoxication, and clarifies the prohibition against payment in instances of gross negligence and voluntary intoxication.

Prison Industry Enhancement.—The original prison industry enhancement certification authority was included in the Justice System Improvement Act of 1979. It authorized LEAA to designate seven projects for exemption from Federal laws prohibiting the sale of prisoner-made goods to the Federal Government and the placement of those goods in interstate commerce. 18 U.S.C. 1761(a). The seven authorized certifications have been issued and early evaluations indicate that the designated projects have been successful in teaching inmates marketable job skills, reducing the need for their families to receive public assistance, decreasing the net cost of operating correctional facilities, and breaking the recidivist cycle. The Committee believes a modest expansion of the program to 20 projects will permit willing and able corrections facilities to participate in the program and will allow the Department to better evaluate which prison industry projects best accomplish the goals of the program.

A technical amendment to the existing authority would exempt goods produced by designated projects from a Federal law permitting a State to keep prison-made goods produced in another State from crossing its borders. A second amendment requires States to provide compensation to injured inmates, but not necessarily under the State's workers' compensation law, as the current authority requires. Many States are prohibited by statute from offering workers' compensation to inmates.

V. AMENDMENTS OFFERED IN FULL COMMITTEE

The Committee considered five amendments to the amendment reported by the Subcommittee, adopting four and rejecting one.

A. DOLE-SPECTER CORRECTIONS ASSISTANCE AMENDMENT

The Committee adopted an amendment offered by Senator Specter, on behalf of Senator Dole and himself, to authorize Federal technical assistance, bond interest subsidies, and grant aid to assist States and local jurisdictions in remedying overcrowded, and possibly unconstitutional, prison and jail conditions. The amendment establishes a Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities to administer the program. The entire program is authorized at a level of no more than $25 million annually.

The bulk of the amendment appears as Part G of the reported bill. Section 901 was also amended to authorize the appropriation of "such sums as are necessary" for fiscal years 1984 through 1987 for Part G with the following limitation: "The appropriation authorized for the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities or for any function or activity authorized for part G shall not exceed in total twenty-five million dollars for any fiscal year ending September 30, 1984, September 30, 1985, September 30, 1986, and September 30, 1987." The amendment also made technical and conforming changes throughout the reported bill, particularly to bring the BCJF within the new organizational structure.

B. SPECTER BLOCK GRANT DISTRIBUTION AMENDMENT

The Committee adopted the block grant distribution amendment offered by Senator Specter to respond to one of the major criticisms of the block grant program raised during Senate hearings. The United States Conference of Mayors, National Association of Counties, and International Association of Chiefs of Police all favored categorical grants over State block grant distribution. They suggested that if a block grant system were adopted, the States should be required to give priority to local jurisdictions where the greatest need existed for the authorized programs. The relative needs of urban, rural and suburban jurisdictions can be evidenced by crime rates, victimization rates, arrest rates, and relative levels of criminal justice expenditures.

In addition, the amendment makes clear that, within a State that chooses not to participate in the block grant program or does not qualify for a portion of its allocated funds, local jurisdictions within that State shall be able to apply for and receive such funds. In circumstances where both States and units of local government choose not to participate or do not qualify to participate in the block grant program, the allocated funds are to be transferred to the discretionary grant program under Part F.

C. SPECTER COURT CASE MANAGEMENT AMENDMENT

The Committee adopted the court case management amendment offered by Senator Specter to add to the list of authorized expenditures for States and local jurisdictions under the new block grant program. A similar authorization was included in the bill that passed the 97th Congress.

Chairman Thurmond suggested a modification in the language of this amendment to focus it more explicitly on violent crime and career criminals. That modification was included in the amendment which was adopted.

The amendment added a new Section 501(a)(12) authorizing the BJP to fund programs that " , with respect to cases involving career criminals and violent crime, expedite the disposition of criminal cases, reform sentencing practices and procedures, improve court system management, improve the efficiency of the jury system and improve the processing of criminal cases involving the mentally ill."

D. SPECTER BJS AMENDMENT

The Committee adopted the BJS amendment offered by Senator Specter to include authority to encourage the development of criminal justice information systems by the Bureau of Justice Statistics. Without such data collection, law enforcement will be hindered, analysis of crime will be more difficult, and data collection by the BJS will be less reliable, comprehensive, and uniform. In strengthening and clarifying the information systems and policy authorization of the BJS, the Committee recognizes that statistical data collection and analysis and the development and coordination of State and local justice information systems programs and information policies are interdependent. Thus, where BJS determines that providing information systems programs to State and local units of government will assist BJS in discharging its responsibilities to collect, analyze, and disseminate justice information, BJS is expressly authorized to provide such support.

The Committee wishes to emphasize that the amendment does not authorize BJS to provide hardware or ongoing operational funding under any circumstances.

The Committee believes that BJS and the Federal justice statistics and information program can obtain substantial benefit by assisting State and local agencies in replicating, coordinating, and sharing information systems, policies, and data. The amendment is intended expressly to authorize such transfer, replication, and coordination of justice information systems and related information systems and related information policy and data. In this effort, BJS can seek to ensure that justice information statistical collection, analysis, and dissemination are carried out in a coordinated manner.

In addition, the amendment contains references to the security and privacy requirements of the law to ensure conformity with these requirements.

The amendment added language to Section 402(c)(11) of the bill to authorize the BJS to provide "justice information systems programs." In addition, it added a new Section 402(c)(14) authorizing the Bureau to "insure conformance with security and privacy requirements of section 1410 and regulations issued pursuant thereto."

E. BIDEN SUBSTITUTE AMENDMENT

The Committee did not adopt an amendment offered by its Ranking Minority Member, Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr., that would have substituted for the amendment adopted by the Subcommittee the language passed by the House and Senate at the end of the 97th Congress. Proponents of the amendment were concerned about the complete consolidation and loss of independence of the Bureau of Justice Statistics and National Institute of Justice under the Subcommittee amendment. In addition, they argued that adoption of the version that passed both the House and Senate in the 97th Congress would result in more prompt consideration and passage during this Congress.

The Committee concluded, however, that the specificity with which the distinct functions of NIJ and BJS are set forth in the bill provides adequate protection for the integrity of the research and statistical programs. Moreover, the Committee believes that effective coordination between research and action programs is essential to the effort and notes that the measure which passed the 97th Congress, while abolishing OJARS, provided no mechanism for coordination between the products of research and the financial assistance units. Finally, S. 53, as reported, includes numerous improvements, including a more targeted program of assistance, which were not part of the compromise prepared in the 97th Congress.

This amendment was defeated by a vote of 9 to 8, with those present at the meeting voting 7 to 2 against the amendment.

The Biden amendment was defeated by a roll call vote, as indicated:

VI. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1 of the bill contains the short title: The Justice Assistance Act of 1983. Section 2 of the bill amends Title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (as amended by the Justice System Improvements Act of 1979).

PART A—OFFICE OF JUSTICE ASSISTANCE

Section 101 establishes an Office of Justice Assistance in the Department of Justice, headed by an assistant Attorney General appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate and under the general authority of the Attorney General.

Section 102 describes the role of the Assistant Attorney General, who has authority over the activities carried out under this Act and is responsible for coordination and provision of staff support and services to the units established under this Act. The responsibilities of the Assistant Attorney General include dissemination of information, coordination with State and local governments, and cooperation with State and local criminal justice agencies and officials. The Assistant Attorney General is expected to serve as the focal point for communications with the Department of Justice from State and local criminal justice agencies and to function within the Department as an advocate for the interests and needs of State and local criminal justice.

Section 103 establishes a Justice Assistance Advisory Board of not more than 21 members appointed by the President and sets qualifications for members. The Board is authorized to make recommendations to the Assistant Attorney General concerning program priorities of the operating units and to provide such advice as is appropriate. The Board replaces the separate advisory boards to NIJ and BJS, with the objective of establishing a single advisory body capable of making recommendations pertaining to the full range of State/local criminal justice concerns rather than the limited viewpoints of only research or only statistical issues.

PART B—BUREAU OF JUSTICE PROGRAMS

Section 201 establishes a Bureau of Justice Programs within the Office of Justice Assistance. The Bureau is to be headed by a Director appointed by the Attorney General.

Section 202 describes the duties and functions of the Bureau of Justice Programs and its Director. It authorizes the provision of financial and technical assistance and training to State and local criminal justice agencies and private nonprofit organizations through block and discretionary grants. It provides authority to make grants and enter into contracts and interagency agreements and requires the Director to establish priorities in accordance with specified criteria. The Director is called upon to foster local participation in technical assistance and training programs, and to encourage the targeting of State and local resources on activities directed toward violent crime and the apprehension and prosecution of repeat offenders.

PART C—NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF JUSTICE

Section 301 describes the purpose of the National Institute of Justice, which is to provide for and encourage research and demonstration efforts designed to improve Federal, State and local criminal justice systems and related aspects of the civil justice system, prevent and reduce crime, ensure citizen access to dispute-resolution forums, improve efforts to detect, investigate, and prosecute white-collar crime and public corruption, and identify programs of demonstrated success.

Section 302 establishes the National Institute of Justice within the Office of Justice Assistance to be headed by a Director appointed by the Attorney General. The Institute is authorized to make grants and enter into contracts for a variety of research and development purposes relating to crime and criminal justice.

Section 303 authorizes the Institute to make grants and enter into contracts for up to 100 percent of project costs.

PART D—BUREAU OF JUSTICE STATISTICS

Section 401 indicates that the purpose of this part is to provide for the collection and analysis of statistical information on crime, juvenile delinquency, and the operation of the criminal justice system and related aspects of civil justice system and to encourage the development of information and statistical systems programs at the Federal, State, and local levels.

Section 402 establishes the Bureau of Justice Statistics within the Office of Justice Assistance to be headed by a Director appointed by the Attorney General. It authorizes the Bureau to make grants and enter into contracts for a variety of statistical collection and analysis purposes involving crime, juvenile delinquency and criminal justice systems at Federal, State, and local levels, and to assist the development of information and statistical systems programs and capabilities at State local levels.

Section 403 authorizes the Bureau to make grants and enter into contracts for up to 100 percent of project costs.

Section 404 directs that data collected by the Bureau shall be used only for statistical or research purposes and shall be gathered in a manner that precludes use for law enforcement or other purposes relating to a particular individual.

PART E—STATE/LOCAL ALLOCATIONS

Section 501 indicates that the purpose of this Part is to assist State and local governments to establish programs of proven success or that have high probability of improving criminal justice systems and which focus primarily on violent crime and serious offenders. It authorizes the Bureau of Justice Programs to establish criteria and make grants to States for twelve enumerated program activities plus an additional category authorizing programs which having been certified by the Director as likely to prove successful and address additional critical problems of crime.

Section 502 limits the duration of Federal financial assistance under this Part to not more than three years and limits the Federal share of any grant to a State under this part to 50 percent of the cost of programs or projects specified in the application. It directs that the non-Federal share must be in cash. It provides also that the Federal share may be increased in the case of grants to Indian tribes or other aboriginal groups under certain circumstances.

Section 503 articulates application requirements, including the stipulation that the application must set forth programs for a two-year period which meet objectives of Section 501 and must designate which Section 501 objective will be achieved by each program. It also provides that certain specific assurances must be included in the application, including a pledge to submit an annual performance report, assessment of the impact of funded activities, and certification that Federal funds will not be used to supplant State or local funds. It requires other assurances concerning fund accounting, maintenance of data, and equipment use.

Section 504 directs that the Bureau shall provide financial assistance to each State applicant if its application is consistent with the requirements of this Title and with priorities and criteria of with Section 501. It also directs that an application will be deemed approved unless the Bureau informs the applicant of reasons for disapproval within 60 days of its receipt. It gives the Bureau authority to suspend funding for that part of a program that has failed to meet the Act's objectives. It prohibits the use of grant funds under Parts E and F for certain enumerated purposes, including general salary payments and construction projects. It gives an applicant under this Part the right of notice and an opportunity for reconsideration under Section 1402 before final disapproval of the application.

Section 505 provides that of the total sum appropriated for Parts E (block grants) and F (discretionary grants), 80 percent will be for Part E and 20 percent for Part F. It sets allocation and distribution requirements, including the provision of a $250,000 base amount to each State and the passthrough of funds to local units of government at least proportionate to the relative local expenditures for criminal justice. Inasmuch as most authorized activities under Section 501 are carried out by local jurisdictions, the States are encouraged to pass through to local governments the maximum amount of available funds.

Section 506 specifies that the chief executive of each participating State will designate an office to administer its block grant funds. States are not required to establish an administrative entity by statute, as required under current law, inasmuch as Federal program funds may not be used to pay the State or local administrative costs. Thus, States are afforded maximum discretion in providing appropriate stewardship of block grant funds.

PART F—DISCRETIONARY GRANTS

Section 601 authorizes a discretionary program to provide financial assistance, in amounts up to 100 percent of program or project costs, to States, units of local government, and private nonprofit organizations for specific activities, including demonstration programs, education, training, and technical assistance, national or multi-State efforts which address the 12 activities enumerated in Section 501, and the development of standards and voluntary accreditation processes.

Section 602 requires the Bureau to establish annual funding priorities and selection criteria for discretionary grants and provides for prior notice and opportunity for public comment.

Section 603 specifies certain programmatic and certification requirements for applications for discretionary funding, including the provision for evaluation in order to determine the impact of the program or project and its effectiveness in achieving the stated goals. It requires that nonprofit organizations include evidence of consultation with appropriate State and local officials.

Section 604 limits financial assistance to programs or projects funded under this part to not more than three years, with certain exceptions.

PART G—CRIMINAL JUSTICE FACILITIES

Section 701 establishes the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities within the Office of Justice Assistance. The BCJF is headed by a director appointed by the Attorney General. The section also prohibits the Director from engaging in other employment or holding any position with organizations with which the BJCF has any dealings in order to prevent conflicts of interest.

Section 702 directs the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities to make grants to States to aid in the construction and modernization of correctional facilities which are defined in Section 710. The BCJF, in conjunction with the duties outlined in Section 708, shall also provide for the widest practical and appropriate public dissemination of information obtained from the programs and projects assisted by BCJF. Such information should emphasize evaluative data on the relative successes of various proven and promising construction and nonconstruction initiatives aimed at reducing correctional facility overcrowding and improving substandard conditions of confinement.

Section 703 requires the director of BCJF to pay each fiscal year the Federal share of the cost of carrying out an approved State plan which meets the criteria established under sections 706, governing State plans, and 707 dealing with basic criteria. The State match for Federal funds for grants is a 50 percent cash match with a similar match to aid in the cost of preparing the State plan application. States with an approved plan which is developed from planning materials available prior to the effective date of this legislation, may be considered as a part of the State match. Payments are authorized to be made in installments, in advance or through reimbursement with adjustments for over or under payments.

Section 704 authorizes the Director of the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities to make grants for the renovation and construction of correctional facilities beginning October 1, 1984, and ending September 30, 1987.

Section 705 allocates appropriate funds. The Director of the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities shall allocate no more than 3 percent of appropriated funds each year to Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Trust Territories of the Pacific Islands, and the Northern Mariana Islands according to their respective needs and efforts pursuant to sections 706 and 707.

Of the funds remaining for the States, one-half is allocated based on population and the remaining half is to be allocated considering relative correctional facility needs and efforts as established in approved State plan applications.

In determining relative needs of each State, the Director is required to consider whether overcrowding or facility conditions violate constitutional or statutory standards and the amount and type of assistance required to bring a facility into compliance with the law.

The size, density, and nature of an inmate population are also factors that are to be considered by the director in determining the relative needs of a given State. For example, older inmate populations and those serving long sentences place heavy demands on certain institutional resources, such as medical services. The courts have placed a strong emphasis on staffing, inmate health, safety, activity, and access to exercise and other program areas in relation to number of hours per day inmates are confined in locked cells to determine whether a facility is considered legally overcrowded. Double-celling situations which have been ruled constitutional by the courts for prisoners confined in new, well-staffed facilities where prisoners spend most of their time out of their cells in program or dayroom areas, may not be tolerable in an older institution lacking adequate staffing or programs for inmates.

In allocating assistance, the Committee emphasizes that the Director give priority to the needs of States which have demonstrated that they have implemented, or are in the process of implementing, significant legislative, executive or judicial non-construction, as well as construction initiatives, to reduce overcrowding or improve conditions of confinement.

Section 706 governs the State Applications Plan. The BCJF will promulgate administrative rules to implement the purposes of this part. States seeking assistance shall submit a five-year State needs assessment and action plan as an application, supplemented as necessary with annual revisions.

State plans are to: provide that the plan be administered by a State agency which generally represents State and local correctional interests; contain a comprehensive statewide program plan which sets out needs, priorities, and construction and non-construction action plans to relieve overcrowding and improve confinement conditions in corrections facilities; assure that grant funds and property derived from such funds will be administered, held, and controlled by a public agency to be used for the purposes provided by this part; provide assurances that State or local government will, after a reasonable period of Federal assistance, pay, with non-Federal funds, any remaining or continuing construction, non-construction, or program costs of assisted projects; provide assurances that, to the extent practical, correctional facilities will be used for other criminal justice purposes if they are no longer used for the specific purpose for which they were built; assure that the State will take into account the needs and requests of local government and encourage the development of local projects; provide for an appropriately balanced allocation of funds between State and local governments based on requests and relative need; provide for appropriate executive and judicial review of actions taken by the State agency concerning applications or the awarding of funds to local government; assure that the assistance allocated under this part will not supplant but augment State or local funds; assure that the State is making diligent efforts consistent with public safety, to reduce overcrowding and improve programs and conditions of confinement in corrections facilities.

Section 707 requires basic criteria to be established by the BCJF to generally establish project priorities. The States should be accorded wide discretion in determining the priority of various projects and generally should consider: (1) the relative needs of an area within the State for facility assistance necessary to bring existing facilities into compliance with Federal or State law; (2) the relative ability of a local agency to support a correctional facility construction or modernization program; and (3) the extent to which a project contributes to an equitable distribution of assistance within the State.

Section 708 provides for a clearinghouse on the construction and modernization of criminal justice facilities. The Director of BCJF is authorized to enter into contracts with public agencies or private organizations to operate a clearinghouse on the construction and modernization of correctional facilities. The clearinghouse will develop, collect, and disseminate to the public and all interested persons state-of-the-art information on construction and modernization of correctional facilities. Since LEAA funding of the National Clearinghouse for Criminal Justice Planning and Architecture ended in 1979, there has been no comparable Federal research in criminal justice program planning and correctional facility responses.

Section 709 authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to State or local governments amounts necessary to reduce the cost of bond interest payments to five percent for qualifying issue obligations to finance the renovation or construction of corrections facilities. Payments are made only on the application of the issuer consistent with the criteria established for allocating funds under sections 706 and 707. If the issue includes the financing of a facility which includes non-corrections components, such as a public safety center, such project qualifies for assistance when substantially all of the proceeds are to be used to finance the corrections component of the project. Payments for qualifying issues may be made by the Secretary, in consultation with the Director, in advance, by installment and on the basis of estimates.

A State may receive a combination of grants and bond interest subsidies equal to, but not in excess of, each State's formula allocation. The subsidization of bond interest payments shall not affect the status of any obligation under section 103 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 governing excludability of governmental bond interest income nor shall it cause the interest on such an issue to be excludable only in part under Section 103.

Many jurisdictions faced with the critical need to renovate or replace antiquate prison or jail facilities have had close votes at the polls to approve correctional facility bond issues. Relatively modest interest subsidies will serve to support a significant number of prison or jail renovation or construction projects and enhance the likelihood that needed projects will be approved.

Section 710 broadly defines the term correctional facility to include any prison, jail, reformatory, work farm, detention center, pretrial detention facility, community-based correctional facility, halfway house, or any other institution designed for the confinement or rehabilitation of persons charged with or convicted of any criminal offense, including juvenile offenders. Construction, as used in this part, not only includes construction in its usual sense but also includes facility remodeling, extension, or acquisition and includes the preparation of drawings and specifications for facilities for which bond interest subsidies or grant assistance would be available. The inspection and supervision of construction are also included in the definition of construction. Their term does not include interest in land or offsite improvement.

PART H—DEFINITIONS

Section 801 provides definitions of terms, including "criminal justice," "unit of local government," and "criminal history information".

PART I—FUNDING

Section 901 provides appropriation authority through fiscal year 1987 to carry out the activities of the OJA, NIJ, BJS, and BJP and permits funds to remain available for obligation until expended. It authorizes such sums as necessary for the Public Safety Officers' Death Benefits and Emergency Federal Assistance programs. It provides such sums as are necessary for the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities under Part G for years ending September 20, 1984, 1985, 1986, and 1987 but under no circumstances shall those sums exceed $25 million in any year.

PART J—PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICERS' DEATH BENEFITS

Section 1001 provides for payment of $50,000 to prescribed survivors of a public safety officer who dies from personal injury sustained in the line of duty. It establishes certain administrative procedures.

Section 1002 establishes the same limitations on the payment of benefits under this Act as under current law, and clarifies exceptions in prior legislative history that voluntary intoxication or gross negligence by an officer at time of death will bar benefits.

Section 1003 defines terms pertaining to eligible recipients of the benefit payment and establishes the definition of the term "intoxication" for the purposes of this Part.

Section 1004 authorizes the office to establish such rules and regulations as are necessary to carry out the purpose of this Part.

Section 1005 provides that the United States Claims Court shall have exclusive jurisdiction over these claims.

PART K—FBI TRAINING OF STATE AND LOCAL CRIMINAL JUSTICE PERSONNEL

Section 1101 authorizes the FBI Director to establish and conduct training for State and local criminal justice personnel at the FBI Academy at Quantico and to assist in conducting local and regional training programs at the request of a State or unit of local government.

PART L—EMERGENCY FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ASSISTANCE

Section 1201 authorizes the Attorney General to receive from the chief executive of any State an application for designation of that State or a part thereof as a "law enforcement emergency jurisdiction." The application will be evaluated according to criteria established by the Attorney General and published in the Federal Register.

Section 1202 provides that if an application for emergency designation is approved, Federal agencies are authorized to provide assistance for the duration of the emergency. Costs of such assistance may be paid by the Office of Justice Assistance from funds specifically appropriated for emergency purposes. OJA may also provide technical assistance, funds for the lease or rental of specialized equipment, and other forms of emergency assistance, except that no funds may be used to pay the salaries of local criminal justice personnel or otherwise supplant State or local funds. The Federal share of emergency assistance may be up to 100 percent of project costs.

Section 1203 defines certain key terms, as follows: "Federal law enforcement assistance" is defined as "equipment, training, intelligence information, and technical expertise." "Law enforcement emergency" means an uncommon situation in which State and local resources are inadequate to protect the lives and property of citizens or enforce the criminal law.

Section 1204 provides that the recordkeeping and administrative requirements applicable to other Office of Justice Assistance activities shall apply also to the emergency assistance program.

PART M—TRANSITION

Section 1301 provides for the continuation of rules, regulations, and instructions in effect at time of enactment. It permits the Assistant Attorney General to obligate unused or reversionary funds previously appropriated.

PART N—ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Section 1401 authorizes the Attorney General to establish rules, regulations and procedures for the activities authorized under this Act.

Section 1402 gives the Office of Justice Assistance authority for grant termination and fund suspension for noncompliance with law, regulations, or grant terms. It establishes the authority and procedures in the Office for reconsideration of termination of a grant under this Act.

Section 1403 specifies the Office's final authority in determinations, findings, and conclusions under the Act.

Section 1404 grants the Office subpoena power and authority to hold and conduct hearings to discharge its duties under the Act.

Section 1405 gives the Office the personnel and administrative authority to fulfill its functions and duties under the Act.

Section 1406 specifies that title to personal property purchased under this Act shall vest in the agency or organization purchasing the property if it certifies it will be used for criminal justice purposes. If there is no certification, title vests in the State office with the property to be used for criminal justice purposes.

Section 1407 disclaims any interpretation of this Title to authorize agency or employee direction or control over any police force or other State or local criminal justice agency.

Section 1408 prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, or gender in connection with any program funded under this Act. It provides a basis for civil action by the Attorney General and suspension of funds by the Office.

Section 1409 establishes recordkeeping requirements for the recipients of funds and gives authority to the Office and the Comptroller General to conduct audits.

Section 1410 continues provisions for the confidentiality of data and information collected, stored, maintained, or disseminated with support under this Act, including authority of Office to establish standards to protect confidentiality and individuals' privacy and constitutional rights of individuals.

Section 3 of the bill changes references in other laws from "OJARS" and "LEAA" to "Office of Justice Assistance."

Section 4 of the bill provides for compensation of the various Directors.

Section 5 of the bill expands the previous LEAA prison industry certification program from 7 to 20 projects and places authority in the Office. This section also exempts prisoner-made goods produced in a certified project from the restriction of 40 U.S.C. 11507.

VII. AGENCY VIEWS

The Administration endorsed the justice assistance proposal in testimony before the Subcommittee on Juvenile Justice on April 14, 1983.

The Department of Justice, in a letter to Chairman Thurmond on May 17, 1983, stated its opposition to the Dole/Specter corrections amendment but has accepted the other Committee amendments to the bill.

STATEMENT OF STANLEY E. MORRIS, ASSOCIATE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to present the views of the Department of Justice concerning S. 53 and the proposed reauthorization of the Justice System Improvement Act.

As you know, the current programs authorized by the JSIA, including the criminal justice research and statistics programs, will expire on September 30th. Consequently, we share the Subcommittee's sense of urgency and commitment to the enactment of reauthorizing legislation. We also share your interest in designing a new Federal effort to assist State and local criminal justice agencies in their battle against violent crime and the criminal element responsible for a major portion of the serious crimes in our Nation.

Before I discuss the pending proposals for the future of the JSIA agencies, the Subcommittee may be interested in a brief review of the recent and current activities of the Bureau of Justice Statistics and the National Institute of Justice.

BUREAU OF JUSTICE STATISTICS

The Bureau of Justice Statistics has become the national repository of criminal justice information, either by initiating new statistical series or by assuming responsibility for ongoing data programs from other Federal agencies. Perhaps the best known BJS data program is the National Crime Survey, which provides victimization data on the extent and severity of crime in America and which is the third largest survey sponsored by the Federal Government.

In creating the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the Congress directed that attention be given to the problems of State and local justice systems. In addition to the scope and coverage of the national statistics, BJS meets this responsibility through cooperative agreement programs with State statistical analysis centers and uniform crime reporting agencies. The Bureau now supports a State statistical capability in over forty States which provides information services and policy recommendations on criminal justice matters to the Governors and legislatures of these jurisdictions. In addition, the Bureau assists the operation of uniform crime reporting programs, also in over forty States, in order to facilitate the submission and improve the quality of arrest and clearance data submitted to the Federal Bureau of Investigation by local police agencies.

After over a decade of developing criminal justice data bases, the Bureau is now placing its primary emphasis on the analysis, publication, and wide dissemination of the data. The Bureau now produces topical bulletins and reports to provide brief, concise, and non-technical interpretations of the key data bases; such publications include "Households Touched by Crime," "Characteristics of the Parole Population," "Sourcebook of Criminal Justice Statistics," "Crime and the Elderly," and "Violent Crime by Strangers."

In perhaps its two most important efforts, the Bureau is now supporting and directing evaluations of the Uniform Crime Reports program of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and its own National Crime Survey of personal and household victimizations. Implementation of the findings and recommendations of these assessments in 1985-1986 will enhance this Nation's two most important indicators of the extent and magnitude of crime behavior in American society.

NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF JUSTICE

The National Institute of Justice is the research arm of the Department of Justice. It conducts research, development, evaluation and dissemination activities aimed at increasing knowledge about the causes and control of crime and improving the effectiveness of the criminal justice system. During the past year, the Institute has made fundamental changes in the way it sets its research agenda in order to better bridge the gap between theory and practice. These efforts will continue under the Administration's reauthorization proposal.

In the spring of 1982, the Department began a process to better sharpen and focus its research programs by convening under the auspices of the National Academy of Sciences a panel to recommend priorities for research and to suggest how research could be better managed. The report prepared by the panel was widely circulated to criminal justice practitioners.

The panel report and the practitioner responses were reviewed and the conclusion was drawn that a very wide gulf had developed that needed to be closed if research was going to fulfill its real potential to influence criminal justice policy and decisionmaking. Further meetings were held between the Board and Institute staff members at Atlanta and New Orleans. The Institute's research agenda for the next two years is now being prepared on the basis of this advice.

The Institute also has undertaken several other initiatives designed to enhance the impact of research resources. In January of this year, a $1.8 million award was made to the Police Foundation to conduct an 18-month experiment in two cities designed to reduce the fear of crime in inner-city neighborhoods, preserve commercial vitality in these areas, and have an impact on the crime rate itself. Based in Houston and Newark, the project will involve citizens and police working together in formulating and implementing strategies to reduce the fear of crime and to test the premise that citizens can regain control of their streets and neighborhoods from the violent criminal.

Earlier, the results of the Institute's six-year study by the Rand Corporation on career criminals were released at the first Annual Repeat Offender Conference jointly sponsored by the Institute and the State of Maryland. This research corroborates earlier findings that a relatively few offenders commit a larger amount of crime. The research provides evidence of the magnitude of crime committed by a relatively few violent predators. The study goes beyond existing knowledge in identifying some of the characteristics of these offenders that police, prosecutors, judges, and parole officials may ultimately be able to use to identify them and make more informed judgments about their disposition and treatment.

Violent crime has been consistently shown to be a national problem of major proportions, both in the number of violent crimes committed annually and in the public perception of crime as a leading personal concern. The national news media have given unusual prominence to the problem of crime, heightening public awareness of its magnitude and sustaining the public's demand for effective action by government at all levels.

The burden of dealing with the so-called "fear crimes" falls mainly on State and local governments, which increased their expenditures for criminal justice by 146 percent during the 1970's. State and local governments account for 87 percent of the total expenditures for criminal justice, while the Federal Government accounts for 13 percent. Consequently, in periods of runaway inflation such as we experienced in the late 1970's and the difficult economic readjustment period of the early 1980's, the disparity between needs and available resources is magnified, particularly with regard to maintenance of the capacity for effective law enforcement.

In recognition of these factors, the Administration agreed, following meetings with Chairman Thurmond and Senator Specter, as well as members of the House, to endorse the concept of a highly targeted program of financial assistance to State and local criminal justice, operating within a new streamlined and efficient organizational structure. We agreed with the Senate and House members not to return to the past by resurrecting the former LEAA program of across the board "criminal justice improvement". Instead, the Administration endorsed a new program which would incorporate the lessons learned from the LEAA experience and sharpen the focus of the Federal effort, so that the limited available resources can be brought to bear on a focused number of high-priority objectives. Those objectives can be summarized as violent crime, victim/witness assistance, repeat offenders, and crime prevention. They are the focus of Title VIII of S. 829, the Comprehensive Crime Control proposal submitted by the President.

As presently structured, the assistance program merited wide-ranging criticism. It was too broadly targeted, providing funds for all aspects of the criminal justice system; bound in red tape generated by extensive, statutorily mandated administrative requirements; costly, because of both the complex funding formulas prescribed in the Act and the unrealistically ambitious objectives of the program; and cast in an inefficient and ambiguous administrative structure.

The State and local financial assistance portion of the Act, the old LEAA program, has been phased out. No funds for that activity had been appropriated since fiscal year 1980. The prior history of LEAA, however, provides us with some important lessons. It shows, for example, that after the expenditure of $8 billion over 12 years, money alone was not the answer to the problem of crime. It demonstrated that a program whose priorities were unclear and constantly shifting resulted in scattershot funding with minimal payoff. And the history indicates that overly detailed statutory and regulatory specification produces mountains of red tape but little progress in the battle against crime.

On the positive side, we have learned that the concept of Federal seed money for carefully designed programs does work and can result in a high rate of cost assumption by State and local governments: that a small amount of Federal money can be an invaluable resource for innovation at the State and local levels.

The Administration proposal submitted to Congress on March 16th is designed to reflect an appreciation for these lessons and to embody the program concepts agreed upon last year in the discussions between members of the Senate, the House and representatives of the Administration. Moreover, evidence of the durability of the Administration's commitment can be found in the fiscal year 1984 budget proposal submitted to the Congress last month. The President's budget requests $90 million to carry out such a program. With funding, thus assured, together we can agree on authorizing legislation.

The Administration proposal would establish an Office of Justice Assistance (OJA), headed by an Assistance Attorney General. Within this Office would be three separate units—the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), the National Institute of Justice (NIJ), and a new Bureau of Justice Programs (BJP)—each headed by a director appointed by the Attorney General. The directors would be responsible for the day-to-day management of their units and would have grantmaking authority, subject to the delegation, coordination, and policy direction of the Assistant Attorney General. LEAA and the Office of Justice Assistance, Research, and Statistics would be abolished.

Both the National Institute of Justice (NIJ), and the Bureau of Justice Statistics would continue to carry out justice research and statistical programs as authorized in the current statute. The Bureau of Justice Programs would administer the new technical and financial assistance program.

Advising the Assistant Attorney General would be a Justice Assistance Advisory Board appointed by the President. This board, replacing the two separate boards advising NIJ and BJS, would consider the full range of criminal justice issues and policies, rather than the compartmentalized consideration of only research, statistical programs, or the financial assistance needs of the criminal justice community.

Under the Administration's proposal, the BJP would have the responsibility to provide technical assistance, training and funds to State and local criminal justice and nonprofit organizations. This assistance would be provided through a combination of block and discretionary grant funds.

Under the block grant provision, each State would receive an allocation based on its relative population with the requirement that a proportional share of the funds be passed through to local governments. The Federal funds would be matched 50/50 and individual projects would be limited to no more than three years of Federal assistance. The use of these funds would be limited to specific types of activities based on program models with a demonstrated track record of success.

The discretionary funds would focus on technical assistance, training and multijurisdictional or national programs, all related to the same objectives specified for the block grant funds. In addition, discretionary funds may be used for demonstration programs to test the effectiveness of new ideas.

The Administration proposal strips away the complex and burdensome application submission and review processes required under the current legislation. It retains only those administrative provisions necessary to exercise appropriate stewardship over public funds and to assure that the funds are being effectively used for the purposes identified in the proposal.

The Administration bill would also require a single, comprehensive annual report and it would establish an emergency assistance program to aid State or local jurisdictions confronted by unique law enforcement problems.

I hope, Mr. Chairman, that you recognize in my description of the Administration proposal the many similarities it bears to H.R. 3963, passed by both Houses of Congress late in the previous session. There also are similarities to S. 53; but there are also important differences.

There are four principal areas in which the Administration proposal differs from S. 53: organizational structure, program focus, the fund distribution procedure, and the administrative burden. We believe that S. 53 could be streamlined and simplified in each of these respects.

Under S. 53, there would be established within the Department of Justice four separate, relatively independent units, each headed by Presidentially appointed directors. In the Department's view, this top-heavy and fragmented administrative structure is inappropriate for a modest research, statistics and financial assistance program. Moreover, there is no effective mechanism established by the bill to provide coordination among these activities; no linkage between the products of research or statistical analysis and the program implementation function of the assistance unit.

It is the Department's firm belief that by establishing these activities within a single unit, headed by an Assistant Attorney General, the programs can achieve both a functional coherence and recognized status within the criminal justice community.

We envision, for example, that the Assistant Attorney General will be able to establish effective communications with the Law Enforcement Coordinating Councils (LECCs) established by the U.S. Attorneys throughout the Nation at the direction of the Attorney General. These Councils composed of Federal, State, and local law enforcement officials, can provide an invaluable service in helping to identify priorities for research and project implementation under the justice assistance program. With their front-line experience in the day-to-day battle against crime, LECCs are in a unique position to identify areas of need in State and local criminal justice and to spot those projects that either work or do not work.

As I noted previously, the Administration proposal would target Federal resources on violent crime, repeat offenders, victim/witness assistance, and crime prevention. Unlike the former LEAA program which attempted to "improve the criminal justice systems" at the State and local levels, the Administration's approach is to focus on those specific areas where modest resources can have a significant impact. S. 53, however, includes among eligible activities the full range of justice issues, including programs relating to speedy trials, sentencing reform, coordination of justice system activities and white collar crime. While the Department recognizes these and other issues to be matters of concern, we believe the past experience with the LEAA program is ample evidence of the need for a narrow focus to the financial assistance program.

The Administration also supports the concept of block grants to the States as a means of allowing the States and localities to identify and set their own priorities from among the eligible project categories. This funding mechanism was contained in H.R. 3963 of the 97th Congress and is included both in the Administration proposal and in the bill currently pending in the House Judiciary Committee. S. 53, on the other hand, would establish two categorical grant programs—one called the National Priority Implementation and Replication Programs, and the second called the Discretionary Grants program. Both would be awarded by the Federal agency directly to the applicant, which could be a State or unit of local government, or a non-profit organization. The administration of such grants, involving thousands of applicants annually, would require a Federal bureaucracy far in excess of the 128 employees currently authorized for the Office of Justice Assistance, Research and Statistics, and commensurate increases in the administrative costs. It should also be noted that S. 53 does not provide for the division of appropriated funds between the National Priority program and the Discretionary Grants program.

The Administration is also concerned by the provisions in S. 53 which would provide for two, three, and even four-year grants with varying match ratios. As proposed, the formula encourages four-year applications while discouraging one or two-year projects, because the Federal share is greater in the first two years of a four-year project: 90 percent and 75 percent respectively. Not only would such a formula require intensive and expensive monitoring and accounting by the Federal agency, it raises the prospect of grantees cancelling a project after the second year of a four-year grant, benefiting from a 65 percent Federal/35 percent local share, while a two-year grant would have required 50/50 match. It should also be noted that S. 53 does not appear to require that the applicant's share of the project be provided in cash. Thus, "soft" or "in kind" match may be authorized under the bill. Past experience indicates that permitting matching funds to be provided in forms other than cash can lead to creative bookkeeping and auditors' nightmares.

Finally, we believe that the red-tape burden at both the Federal and the State/local levels can be significantly reduced. S. 53 retains the complex evaluation, hearing and appeal, and similar administrative provisions which are not warranted by a relatively small categorical program. Moreover, the bill requires four separate annual reports and would call for parallel and redundant support structures for each of the affected units—NIJ, BJS, OJA and the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. Each would be granted separate and distinct authorities and responsibilities for civil rights compliance, personnel, guideline and regulation development, privacy and security requirements, accounting and financial management, and other matters. The Department of Justice strongly believes that these responsibilities and functions should be consolidated, streamlined, and placed under authority of a single Presidential appointee at the level of an Assistant Attorney General.

Mr. Chairman, those are the principal significant differences in the approach to State and local assistance taken by S. 53 and the Administration proposal, S. 829. While we share with you a strong interest in establishing an effective program to bolster State and local efforts to fight crime, we are convinced that the mechanisms defined in the Administration proposal have the greatest potential for impact.

I will be pleased to respond to any questions you or other members of the Subcommittee may have.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE RESPONSES TO WRITTEN QUESTIONS FOLLOWING THE TESTIMONY OF THE ASSOCIATE DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL BEFORE THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON JUVENILE JUSTICE

JUSTICE SYSTEM IMPROVEMENT ACT

1. Enacting the Justice System Improvement Act of 1979, the Congress was concerned about bureaucratic structure and sought to streamline assistance activities. What is to protect against the new Assistant Attorney General for Justice Assistance becoming a layer of bureaucracy delaying funding decisions and disrupting the assistance, research, or statistics programs?

The organizational structure established by the Justice System Improvement Act of 1979 was intended to administer programs for which $800 million were authorized. The targeted program proposed by the Administration will operate at a fraction of that amount and does not require the elaborate administrative structure provided in current law.

The Assistant Attorney General will directly bear the responsibility for effective management of the activities authorized by the Act and, as the central administrative authority, can supervise, coordinate, and expedite the assistance, research, and statistics programs much more effectively than is the case under a fragmented and compartmentalized organization.

2. Under the Department's proposal, who will be responsible for setting funding priorities and making grant decisions?

Funding priorities under the block grant provisions of the proposal are established in Section 501 of the Act. Discretionary grant priorities are to be established annually by the Bureau of Justice Programs, as provided in Section 602. Individual grant decisions would be made by the Directors of the units, subject to the coordination of the Assistant Attorney General, which would encourage cooperation among the agencies, avoid duplication of effort, and enhance accountability and responsibility for the expenditure of public funds.

3. How will the Department's proposal change the functions and responsibilities of the heads of the NIJ, BJS, and the new assistance office from those provided by the Justice System Improvement Act?

The functions and responsibilities of the heads of NIJ, BJS, and BJP would be essentially unchanged, except that they would be subject to coordination and policy guidance from the Assistant Attorney General.

4. Specifically, what management problems has the Department found with organizational structures established in the Justice System Improvement Act?

The organizational structure provided in the Administration proposal was designed, not to address "management problems" experienced under current law, but rather to avoid costly fragmentation that would be produced by the administrative arrangements specified in other justice assistance proposals before Congress. The Office of Justice Assistance, Research, and Statistics, which currently provides some degree of coordination and consolidation of support services, would be abolished. The Administration proposal would continue and strengthen the coordination function under an Assistant Attorney General.

In addition, the Assistant Attorney General can perform the essential functions of: (1) providing coordinated policy direction to the research, statistical and financial assistance thrusts; (2) serving as liaison between the Department of Justice and the research and criminal justice communities; and, (3) interpret the needs of State and local law enforcement to the highest policy levels of the Department.

5. Have the Directors of BJS, NIJ, and OJARS been able to work together and coordinate their program activities?

Because of the limited role provided OJARS under the current Act in relation to the independent authority of NIJ and BJS, effective coordination has been difficult to achieve with each unit tending to go in separate directions and sometimes duplicating efforts and grantees.

PROGRAMS OF PROVEN EFFECTIVENESS

1. Does the Department consider white collar crime enforcement activities as having been proven effective?

White collar crime takes many forms, including insurance fraud, computer crime, embezzlement, securities fraud, and other clandestine methods of economic crime. Projects focusing on the prosecution of consumer fraud have been evaluated as highly successful, however, the testing of methods dealing with other forms of white collar crime have not produced definitive results.

2. Would the Department support adding white collar crime and public corruption to the list of programs of proven success?

Section 501(a)(12) permits the addition of programs to address critical problems of crime which have been certified by the Director as having proved successful or which are likely to succeed. Thus, expansion of the list of authorized activities beyond those currently listed is unnecessary.

3. Among the authorized expenditures of the Part E State block grants are not only programs of proven effectiveness, but also innovative programs that are "likely to prove successful". Virtually identical language is used by the Department to describe programs eligible for discretionary grants under Part F. What is the rationale for this overlap?

The language in the Administration proposal was taken directly from S. 53, as introduced, and is intended to permit States and localities some flexibility in implementing projects beyond those otherwise prescribed by the Act and, similarly, to permit the Bureau of Justice Programs to identify and designate new programs which may be developed through NIJ research or local initiative.

4. Under the discretionary grant Part F program, the Federal Government is authorized to fund projects such as those authorized as proven effective under the block grant. Why this overlap?

The discretionary grant provision refers to "national or multi-state" projects which address "the purposes specified" in the block grant section of the Act. It is similar to Section 501(3) of S. 53, as introduced. The objective of the provision is to permit and foster multijurisdictional and national projects which would not normally be funded by States or localities with block grant funds.

5. Should not the limited research and development funding be insulated from dilution if its potential is to be best realized?

The Administration proposal provides a discrete appropriation authority for the NIJ's research and development activities. We are not aware of any potential for "dilution".

6. Of what priority are programs directed at serious and violent juvenile offenders?

7. What amount of the funding for the proven effective program does the Department expect to be devoted to programs directed at serious and violent juvenile offenders? What amount of innovative program funding?

(6 and 7) The priorities assigned and the proportion of funds devoted to the various eligible program activities will be determined by the States and localities in the formulation of their applications for block grant funds. Basic to the block grant funding process is the concept that the criminal justice agencies at the State and local levels are in a better position to determine needs and establish priorities than is the Federal administering agency.

8. Is there a problem developing from the difference between the beginning of the fiscal years of the States (generally July 1) and the Federal Government (October 1) with regard to program initiation and funding?

Problems arising from the differences between the Federal budget cycle and the fiscal periods of some of the States can be avoided by early enactment of the assistance program and giving the States adequate "lead time" to prepare for implementation.

Moreover, the targeted nature of the Administration's proposal and elimination of the complex planning requirements of current law will permit States and localities to select from among the eligible program activities those projects for which matching funds are most readily available in their then-current budgets.

9. Specifically, will the TASC programs be adversely affected?

Inasmuch as TASC programs have not been federally funded for the past two years, we do not anticipate any adverse effect. On the contrary, enactment of the Administration proposal would authorize funding for TASC programs.

10. Are State criminal justice planning capabilities likely to be adversely affected by the staggering of fiscal years?

The Administration proposal would eliminate the requirement in current law for the statutory establishment of State criminal justice planning agencies, although those States with such agencies are free to utilize them as they see fit. The proposed legislation would impose no requirement on State planning agencies and is not expected to affect them in any way.

11. What action does the Department recommend to preserve TASC, other programs and criminal justice planning capabilities in the States until Federal assistance becomes available?

The question appears to be based on a misreading of the Administration proposal and a misunderstanding of the current situation regarding TASC.

There is no existing Federal program of assistance to TASC projects; thus, action to "preserve TASC" is beyond the realm of the Department's purview. Similarly, no Federal funds in support of the States' comprehensive criminal justice planning functions have been appropriated since fiscal year 1980 and, in many States, that planning capability no longer exists. Moreover, the Administration's bill does not retain the comprehensive planning requirements of current law. Consequently, the maintenance of justice planning capabilities is a matter for determination by the individual States.

VIII. REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT

Pursuant to paragraph 11(b), Rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, it is hereby stated that the Committee has concluded that this bill will have no direct regulatory impact. The agencies created are funding agencies and have been specifically designed to prevent any significant regulation of the beneficiaries and is expected to issue funding guidelines and selection criteria to help it select the best possible recipients of Federal funding. In addition the Office may prescribe the keeping of records and the provision of audits, with respect to funds provided by grants, contracts or interagency agreements. Other fiscal and narrative reports may be required as it is deemed necessary from any grantees, contractors, persons, or entities receiving assistance under this Act.

This Act will not have effect on the personal privacy of individuals.

IX. COST OF LEGISLATION

In accordance with paragraph 11(a), Rule XXVI of the Standing Rules of the Senate, the Committee offers the following report of the Congressional Budget Office:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, D.C., July 1, 1983.

Hon. STROM THURMOND,
Chairman, Committee on the Judiciary,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Pursuant to Section 403 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Congressional Budget Office has prepared the attached cost estimate for S. 53, the Justice Assistance Act of 1983.

Should the Committee so desire, we would be pleased to provide further details on this estimate.

Sincerely,

C. G. NUCKOLS
(For Alice M. Rivlin, Director).

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE—COST ESTIMATE

1. Bill number: S. 53.
2. Bill title: Justice Assistance Act of 1983.
3. Bill status: As ordered reported by the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, June 16, 1983.
4. Bill purpose: S. 53 amends the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968 by reauthorizing a number of existing criminal justice grant programs and by providing authorizations for several new programs within the Office of Justice Assistance for fiscal years 1984 through 1987. Except for the new Office of Criminal Justice Facilities, no specific authorization levels are contained in the bill.

Such sums as may be necessary are authorized for the Emergency Law Enforcement Assistance program, which provides aid to State and local governments experiencing unusually difficult law enforcement problems. Federal law enforcement agencies have provided emergency assistance to State and local governments in the past by using existing authorizations; however, this bill marks the first time that funds have been authorized specifically for this purpose.

The bill also creates the Bureau of Justice Programs within the Office of Justice Assistance. The Bureau is to administer formula and discretionary grants to States and localities for law enforcement projects of proven effectiveness that focus primarily on violent crime and serious offenders. In addition, S. 53 changes current grant allocation formulas. The Office of Community Anti-Crime Programs, which used to administer grants to citizens and community groups, is not reauthorized under the bill.

The Office of Criminal Justice Facilities is established within the Office of Justice Assistance. This office is authorized to provide not more than $25 million a year for fiscal years 1984 through 1987 to State and local governments for construction or renovation of correctional facilities. These governments may choose to receive this assistance in interest subsidies for bond issues or in direct grants.

Finally, the bill reaffirms the permanent authorization of such sums as may be necessary for the Public Safety Officers Death Benefits program. Because the bill does not alter the law currently governing the public safety officers benefits program, this estimate does not reflect any change in the program's funding.

5. Estimated cost to the Federal Government: The estimated budget impact of the authorizations in this bill is summarized below. The estimates do not include amounts for formula and discretionary grants to State and local governments, because no specific sums are authorized and there is no basis for projecting the scope of the program.

(By fiscal years, in millions of dollars)

	1984	1985	1986	1987	1988
Estimated authorization level .....	66	68	70	73	1
Estimated outlays.....	21	52	64	70	52

The costs of this bill fall within budget function 750.

BASIS OF ESTIMATE

National Institute of Justice and Bureau of Justice Statistics

S. 53 authorizes such sums as may be necessary to continue the activities of the National Institute of Justice and the Bureau of Justice Statistics for fiscal years 1984 through 1987. The authorization levels estimated by CBO represent the funding necessary to maintain 1983 program levels and services in future years, as represented by the CBO baseline projections. Actual 1983 appropriations to date have totaled $21 million for the National Institute of Justice and $17 million for the Bureau of Justice Statistics. Estimated outlays are based on historical spending patterns.

Office of Criminal Justice Facilities

The bill authorizes up to $25 million in each of the next four years for grants or bond interest subsidies to State and local governments for construction or renovation of correctional facilities. For purposes of this estimate, CBO assumes that the full amounts authorized will be appropriated. Estimated outlays are based on historical spending patterns for prison construction. CBO assumes no significant difference in the timing of outlays as a result of the provision allowing States and localities to choose to receive aid either in the form of bond interest subsidies or in the form of direct grants.

Emergency law enforcement assistance

The bill authorizes such sums as may be necessary for emergency law enforcement assistance to States and localities experiencing serious problems with crime. Based on the levels of nonfinancial assistance provided in recent years, CBO estimates that $1 million a year will be required during the 1984 through 1988 period for emergency assistance. An example of this assistance is the Federal support provided to Atlanta during the series of child slayings that occurred in that city in 1981.

Bureau of Justice programs formula and discretionary grants

S. 53 authorizes such sums as may be necessary for formula and discretionary law enforcement grants to State and local governments. CBO is unable to estimate the budget impact of this provision, however, because the bill provides no specific authorization levels, and because no funds have been appropriated for these programs in recent years. The President's 1984 budget includes $92 million for these grants in fiscal year 1984.

Per diem compensation, expenses, and staff support for members of the Office of Justice Assistance advisory board are estimated to be $300,000 annually over the next four fiscal years, based on spending for similar advisory boards in recent years.

6. Estimated cost to State and local governments: State and local governments will incur various costs if they choose to participate in Office of Justice Assistance law enforcement grant programs. The level of effort required of these governments is dependent on the type of grant. State and local governments' administrative costs are not expected to rise significantly as a result of the grants, since these governments already have personnel administering similar grant programs.

Formula grants.—State and local governments are required to contribute in cash 50 percent of the costs of projects eligible for formula grants. Formula grants to Indian tribes, however, may finance up to 100 percent of project costs. Federal aid is limited to no more than three years.

Discretionary grants.—Discretionary grants may fund up to 100 percent of a project's costs for three years, but State and local governments will incur 50 percent of the costs if Federal funding for projects is extended for an additional two years. States and localities may use funds from formula grants or other Federal or non-Federal sources to cover their share of the extended project cost. Total costs to States and localities will depend on the amount appropriated for discretionary grants.

National Institute of Justice and Bureau of Justice Statistics.—The National Institute of Justice and Bureau of Justice Statistics are authorized to provide State and local governments and nonprofit institutions with grants covering up to 100 percent of the cost of a law enforcement research project. However, the director of each agency may require the participating organization to contribute financial or nonfinancial resources to a project as a condition for receiving aid. The cost of this provision to State and local governments, is dependent on the actions taken by the National Institute of Justice and the Bureau of Justice Statistics regarding matching fund requirements.

Prison Construction Aid.—S. 53 authorizes direct grants or bond interest subsidies of up to $25 million annually to State and local governments for prison construction and renovation. If participating governments choose to receive aid in the form of grants, matching expenditures by State's and localities will total $25 million a year between 1984 and 1987, since the grants have a 50 percent matching requirement. Some or all of these amounts might be spent by States and localities in any event.

7. Estimate comparison: None.

8. Previous CBO estimate: On April 15, 1983, CBO prepared a cost estimate for H.R. 2175, as ordered reported by the House Committee on the Judiciary, April 6, 1983. Unlike S. 53, H.R. 2175 set specific authorization levels for its law enforcement grant programs. Authorizations in the House bill included $170 million for formula and discretionary grants, $25 million apiece for the National Institute of Justice and Bureau of Justice Statistics, and $20 million for emergency financial assistance. Another difference between the bills involves timing. The House bill authorized funding beginning in 1983, while the Senate bill authorizes appropriations beginning in fiscal year 1984. Finally, H.R. 2175 did not authorize prison construction and renovation grants. Differences in the cost estimates reflect these differences.

9. Estimate prepared by: Charles Essick, Carol Camp.

10. Estimate approved by: C. G. Nuckols (for James L. Blum, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis).

X. VOTE OF THE COMMITTEE

On June 16, 1983, a quorum having been constituted, the Committee on the Judiciary met in Executive Business Session and by voice vote agreed to report S. 53 as amended favorably to the Senate with the recommendation that the bill do pass.

XI. ADDITIONAL VIEWS

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF SENATORS BIDEN, KENNEDY, METZENBAUM, DeCONCINI, BAUCUS, HEFLIN

As strong supporters of the need for a Justice Assistance Program we regret that there is not currently a program in place and providing grant funds to State and local criminal justice agencies.

In January 1983 President Reagan vetoed a carefully constructed bipartisan crime bill. In the Senate and House, both parties had agreed to a specific agenda and through discussion and compromise a responsible bill was sent to the President's desk.

One provision of the bipartisan crime bill called for the reestablishment of a focused Justice Assistance Program. The Administration did not object to the bipartisan version for Justice Assistance that was a part of the vetoed crime bill.

This justice assistance bill that we reported out of the Senate Judiciary Committee is a new version from what was sent to the President in January 1983 and is very different from the bill that passed out of the House by a vote of 277-19 on May 10, 1983.

Our concern is this. Why are we marking up in Committee and eventually on the Senate floor a new version of Justice Assistance? Once again it seems politics prevail while the American people suffer. We all agree that State and local criminal justice agencies will benefit from a targeted assistance program that will provide grant funds for programs of proven success. We agreed to that last December.

However, now we have a new version of justice assistance drafted by the Administration. Where was the Administration's support and proposal for this in 1981 when our colleagues on both sides of the aisle were calling for a reestablishment of the Justice Assistance Program? We have delayed this long enough. We need to move swiftly in getting a Justice Assistance Bill enacted into law.

We are wasting time arguing about the various versions, be it the Republican or Democratic version when we already agreed on this last December.

In an effort to move as quickly as possible and get this program up and running we proposed in the Judiciary Committee the exact language that was agreed to last year. That compromise version would have avoided any further and unnecessary delay in moving this bill through the Senate and then conference with the House. We lost on that vote 9-8.

As many of us have said before, there has been too much rhetoric and not enough action on the crime issue. Quibbling over the House bill or the Administration's latest version is ridiculous when only 5 months ago we had an agreed upon bill sitting on the President's desk. Instead of talking about reestablishing an assistance program, let's do it!

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF SENATOR MATHIAS ON S. 53

I am pleased that the Judiciary Committee is reporting S. 53, the Justice Assistance Act, as amended. Prompt passage by the Senate would be the most concrete expression possible of our commitment to help States and localities to fight crime. I am also glad that, from a relatively early stage, the Administration has lent its support to this bill. I am confident that with continued cooperative efforts, we can rapidly achieve the reauthorization of the Bureau of Justice Statistics and the National Institute of Justice, and the enactment of statutory authority for effective programs of justice assistance.

However, I am constrained to note that in one respect the bill which we now report represents a step backwards, one which I hope we will reverse at a later point in the legislative process. I refer to the issue of the autonomy of the research and statistics functions within the overall justice assistance program.

When Congress passed the Justice System Improvement Act (JSIA) in 1979, it created independent offices to conduct research and compile statistics on criminal justice issues. Under the JSIA, both the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) and the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) are headed by Presidential appointees; the directors of both agencies report directly to the Attorney General, and have final authority to enter into contracts or cooperative agreements, and to make grants. The bill which we now report subsumes NIJ and BJS under the authority of an Assistant Attorney General in charge of the Office of Justice Assistance. The directors of the agencies would be appointed by the Attorney General, without the advice and consent of the Senate, and would have "sign-off authority" only as delegated by the Assistant Attorney General.

This bill's reversion to an administrative structure similar to that which prevailed before enactment of the JSIA may appear, from a distance, as an efficiency measure; and opposition to it may look like a skirmish in a bureaucratic turf battle. But I believe that more is at stake here, and that in diminishing the autonomy of the research and statistics functions we are taking a misstep.

The present administrative structure was deliberately designed in an attempt to avoid problems which had been encountered under previous organizational arrangements. In its report on the JSIA legislation, this Committee cited the results of several comprehensive studies of the LEA criminal justice research effort, and concluded that "to be most effective, the research branch must have a considerable degree of independence." One such study, conducted by the National Academy of Sciences, found that "lack of autonomy" was "one of the most significant causes" of the shortcomings of NIJ's predecessor organization. Similarly, the same report explained that the director of BJS needed to be a Presidential appointee, with sign-off authority, "in order to protect (BJS) from pressures which could affect the credibility and validity of its statistics." See Senate Report 96-142, 96th Congress, 1st Session (1979), at 50.

The Administration refers to the present structure as a "Rube Goldberg' management structure," and characterizes it as "fragmented and uncoordinated." There may be some accuracy to these descriptions, but I am not convinced that the relative autonomy of NIJ and BJS contributes in any significant way to administrative problems within the justice assistance programs. But even if the current structure is not a model of efficiency, the Administration's proposal, which we now endorse, gives short shrift to another value which ought to be near the forefront of our concern: public and professional confidence in the neutrality and authoritativeness of justice research and statistics supported or compiled by the Federal Government.

Organizations representing the social science professions most directly affected are unanimous in their opposition to the proposed downgrading of BJS and NIJ. For example, a lengthy statement submitted on behalf of the Consortium of Social Science Associations (COSSA) by nine social scientists, including several recognized leaders in the field of criminal justice research, surveys several Federal agencies in order to contrast "the success of autonomous (research) units and the difficulties of those units that have been excessively responsive to mission-oriented agencies." The COSSA statement concludes:

We believe that much useful research can be developed from within the Department of Justice. But such research will be meaningful only if the research funding agency supports excellent, as well as policy relevant, research. Excellent research requires the knowledge and skills of trained researchers, placed in positions where their judgments are significant in the decision process. That can only be achieved, in our judgment, in the DOJ context if research is organizationally autonomous, if research quality and cumulativity are ensured by the full participation of knowledgeable scientists, and if a sound partnership is established—in a cooperative rather than hierarchical relationship—between the National Institute of Justice and the other branches of the Department of Justice.

The position adopted here applies equally to the Bureau of Justice Statistics. It too should be accorded the autonomy needed to insulate its methods and product to ensure accuracy, objectivity, and freedom from even the suspicion of distortion.

Similarly, the Council of Professional Associations on Federal Statistics, a consortium of twelve organizations, has expressed concern that the proposed changes "would be detrimental to the effective functioning of BJS."

Several experts in the field of criminal justice research and statistics have contracted me to express similar views, which are cogently summarized in a letter from Dr. Charles F. Wellford, Director of the Institute of Criminal Justice and Criminology at the University of Maryland. Dr. Wellford writes that the important structural changes [implemented by JSIA] have led to significant improvements in the operation of criminal justice research and statistical programs at the federal level * * * [S]tatistical information and research, in order to have the kind of credibility that is desired for them, must exist in an agency that is and is perceived to be independent.

In Dr. Wellford's view, the changes contained in the bill we now report would have the effect of reducing the autonomy of the research and statistical functions and would at a minimum create the impression that the agencies were producing research and statistics that would reflect partisan interests. Under [S. 53, as reported] BJS and NIJ would be much more susceptible to the influence of short range political interests and less responsive to the long-term goals that Congress has established for those agencies.

In its present form, S. 53 also casts doubt upon the status of the incumbent directors of BJS and NIJ. It is not clear whether the Administration will respect the action of the Senate in confirming these officials in their current positions, by reappointing them under the new structure. In any event, it is clear that, if the Justice Assistance Act is enacted in the form which we now report, this status as Presidential appointees, which no doubt was an incentive to the directors to accept their nominations, will be gone. — Justice research and statistics are vital components of the overall effort to commit Federal resources where they will do the most good in the fight against crime. Federal programs in these fields must, in reality, be independent, objective, scientific, and insulated from political pressure. Of equal importance, the public and the professions involved must perceive that research and statistical projects have been impartially designed, conducted, and reported. By turning our backs on the improvements made four years ago, and by diminishing the autonomy of BJS and NIJ, we may make that reality harder to achieve, that perception harder to maintain. In the long run, we may find that any economies obtained by this reorganization are dwarfed by the effects of a loss of public confidence in Federal justice research and statistics.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF SENATOR ROBERT DOLE

Senators Thurmond and Specter are to be commended for holding early hearings this year and for moving quickly to markup of S. 53 to provide for the continuing authorization and restructuring of the Federal justice assistance effort.

This Senator believes that redirecting the thrust of justice assistance by encouraging promising and proven programs and strategies which target repeat and violent offenders, victim/witness assistance and crime prevention programs, represents a wise allocation of Federal resources. Likewise, the retention of strong research, statistics and technical assistance efforts continued through the Bureau of Justice Statistics and the National Institute of Justice will ensure that the dimensions of the crime problem are adequately described and analyzed and that effective anti-crime measures are identified and evaluated.

Unfortunately, the war on crime is being waged behind a battle line of dangerously overcrowded and antiquated prisons and jails. The Federal Government can no longer fail to address in a significant manner the crisis presented by our Nation's crumbling prison and jail infrastructure. While I agree that State and local jurisdictions must ultimately bear the lions share of the extremely heavy costs associated with the construction, renovation and operation of correctional facilities. This Senator strongly believes that the Federal Government should be prepared to dedicate the kind of energies and resources toward aiding the States in renovating our failing prison and jail infrastructure as have traditionally been reserved for sewer, airport, highway and other public works. Toward that end I introduced S. 186, the Criminal Justice Construction Reform Act in the 97th Congress and S. 901, the Justice Assistance Act of 1983, both of which contained a significant Federal commitment to aid the States in renovating and constructing desperately needed prison and jail facilities.

The addition of new Part G to S. 53, creating the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities, represents at least an important Federal commitment to providing a structure within which significant assistance for prison and jail facilities can be provided as increased revenues become available. While there is no simple linear Federal equation that can be applied by all the States in solving their diverse correctional facility needs, the establishment of the BCJF does, however, provide a vital framework within which the Federal Government can greatly assist the States in developing and implementing effective strategies and solutions.

The Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities will render vital aid to the States through the leverage of bond interest subsidies, limited grants, technical assistance from the Clearinghouse for Criminal Justice Facilities Construction and Modernization and, importantly, through support for development of State needs assessment and action plans to upgrade dangerously deteriorated penal systems.

Another indirect but significant benefit to the States accrues from the manner in which eligibility is achieved for receiving assistance under Part G. The preparation of a State's needs assessment and action plan, contemplated by Section 706, dovetails effectively with a legal defense increasingly raised against the present flood of prisoner lawsuits challenging substandard prison conditions and unlawful overcrowding. States have found that the courts, in some cases, have been receptive to a defense, in conditions of confinement lawsuits, that they have undertaken "some acceptable beginning" toward eliminating unlawful prison conditions. The preparation and step-by-step implementation of State corrections plan, as contemplated by Section 706, represents an important first step in asserting the defense of "some acceptable beginning." While this defense does not alleviate the ultimate need for a State to remedy unlawful conditions, by developing a State plan, officials are in a much better position to avoid contempt citations or the imposition of a court mandated and controlled master plan. The assistance contemplated by the act significantly serves to encourage and integrate a careful statewide planning effort into the corrections environment that is now pervaded by a reactive-fire-fighting, rather than proactive-fire-prevention style of planning and management.

The Committee recognizes that the construction and renovation of correctional facilities is a critical element in the universe of solutions to prison overcrowding. Most innovative solutions being applied today to problems with overcrowding require a system-wide response by all criminal justice agencies and other branches of government. These approaches emphasize the use of flexible coordinated and system-wide construction and non-construction responses to corrections problems and focus on a concept of advanced practices in correctional facility planning, design, materials, operations and programs. The concept of advanced practices relies on careful integration of innovative facility design with program needs. The incorporation of advanced practices into State plans is an important element in insuring that assisted facilities and projects can not only meet minimum constitutional mandates, but that they can incorporate a flexible, efficient and system-oriented response to corrections problems without undue dependence on antiquated and expensive hardware approaches. Many proven and promising advanced practices have been developed, applied, evaluated and catalogued by the now dormant Clearinghouse for Criminal Justice Planning and Architecture which was supported by LEAA until 1979. The Clearinghouse materials, although now dated, are still relied on widely and considered as authoritative by criminal justice planners and practitioners. The Clearinghouse provided technical assistance nationally and internationally on many projects and was widely recognized as the preeminent resource for criminal justice planners, architects, and practitioners. The high level of expertise formerly available to the criminal justice community under the Clearinghouse will be reconstituted under the BCJF.

Many of the system-wide solutions to the overcrowding dilemma involve courts, prosecutors, police, legislators and other officials.

Non-construction assistance involving all of these players have also been promoted by the National Institute of Corrections through its training and technical assistance, grant and clearinghouse efforts which will compliment the role of the Bureau of Criminal Justice Facilities.

It should be remembered that while Federal assistance to local law enforcement under LEAA represented only a small fraction of local expenditures, that such assistance, on the whole, significantly aided in advancing the efficiency, professionalism, cooperation and effectiveness of law enforcement generally.

With the limited funds now available for the BCJF, the most effective channeling of funds would be directed toward conducting the agencies clearinghouse function and encouraging States to develop State plans. Funds for bond interest subsidies will also effectively leverage a number of significant State or local renovation or construction projects off the drawing boards.

Testimony before the Senate Judiciary Criminal Law Subcommittee on S. 186, during the 97th Congress, amply demonstrated that massive construction resources are necessary to salvage our Nation's decaying prisons and jails. Considering that the States are expending nearly a billion dollars a year for corrections facilities, the modest funding contemplated by this legislation should primarily serve to encourage a careful review of statewide corrections problems and policies in a construction and non-construction context, and stimulate innovative system-wide facility planning to resolve those problems.

This Senator and others have introduced legislation targeting several billions of dollars as a meaningful Federal share toward the building and rebuilding of our Nation's prisons. Unfortunately, what we are sending through the legislative pipeline thus far this Congress is now measured in the millions of dollars, and represents more of a hope chest—than a war chest—in the fight against deteriorating prison facilities.

If we do not provide even this small amount of aid soon, our failure to act could well be measured in new outbreaks of violence, thousands of lawsuits, and a criminal justice system which no longer retains any credible deterrent effect as arrests and prosecutions are rendered meaningless by judges' inability to find space in overcrowded prisons.

["DECLARATION AND PURPOSE

["The Congress finds and declares that the high incidence of crime in the United States is detrimental to the general welfare of the Nation and its citizens, and that criminal justice efforts must be better coordinated, intensified, and made more effective and equitable at all levels of government.

["Congress further finds that juvenile delinquency constitutes a growing threat to the national welfare requiring immediate and comprehensive action by the Federal Government to reduce and prevent delinquency by developing and implementing effective programs to improve the quality of juvenile justice in the United States.

["Congress further finds that there is an urgent need to encourage basic and applied research, to gather and disseminate accurate and comprehensive justice statistics, and to evaluate methods of preventing and reducing crime.

["Congress further finds that although crime is essentially a local problem that must be dealt with by State and local governments, the financial and technical resources of the Federal Government should be made available to support such State and local efforts.

["Congress further finds that the future welfare of the Nation and the well-being of its citizens depend on the establishment and maintenance of viable and effective justice systems which require: (1) systematic and sustained action by Federal, State, and local governments; (2) greater continuity in the scope and level of Federal assistance; and (3) continuing efforts at all levels of government to streamline programs and upgrade the functioning of agencies responsible for planning, implementing and evaluating efforts to improve justice systems.

["It is therefore the declared policy of the Congress to aid State and local governments in strengthening and improving their systems of criminal justice by providing financial and technical assistance with maximum certainty and minimum delay. It is the purpose of this title to (1) authorize funds for the benefit of States and units of local government to be used to strengthen their criminal justice system; (2) develop and fund new methods and programs to enhance the effectiveness of criminal justice agencies; (3) support the development of city, county, and statewide priorities and programs to meet the problems confronting the justice system; (4) reduce court congestion and trial delay; (5) support community anticrime efforts; (6) improve and modernize the correctional system; (7) encourage the undertaking of innovative projects of recognized importance and effectiveness; (8) encourage the development of basic and applied research directed toward the improvement of civil and criminal justice systems and new methods for the prevention and reduction of crime and the detection, apprehension, and rehabilitation of criminals; (9) encourage the collection and analysis of statistical information concerning crime, juvenile delinquency, civil disputes, and the operation of justice systems; and (10) support manpower development and training efforts. It is further the policy of the Congress that the Federal assistance made available under this title not be utilized to reduce the amount of State and local financial support for criminal justice activities below the level of such support prior to the availability of such assistance.

Formula allocations under this section shall utilize relative population data only for the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

["(2) If the fund allocation to each of the States pursuant to paragraph (1) results in a total amount in excess of the amount appropriated for the purposes of this part, additional funds shall be allocated by the Administration from part E or F to the States for purposes consistent with those parts so that the total amount equals the total amount allocated under paragraph (1). No State shall receive an allocation pursuant to paragraph (1) which is less than the block grant allocation re-

["(5) The amount made available pursuant to paragraph (3) to eligible units of local government within each State, as defined in section 402(a)(5), and to eligible jurisdictions, as defined in section 402(a) (2), (3), or (5) which choose not to combine pursuant to section 402(a)(4) and choose not to exercise the powers of section 402(c), shall be reserved and set aside in a special discretionary fund for use by the council pursuant to section 402 of this title, in making grants (in addition to any other grants which may be made under this title to the same entities or for the same purposes) to such units of local government or combinations thereof. The council shall allocate such funds among such local units of government or combinations thereof which make application pursuant to section 403 of this title, according to the criteria of this title and on the terms and conditions established by such council at its discretion. If in a particular State, there are no eligible units of local government, as defined in section 402(a) (2), (3), or (4), of this part, the amount otherwise reserved and set aside in the special discretionary fund shall consist of the entire amount made available to local units of government, pursuant to this section.

["(b) At the request of the State legislature while in session or a body designated to act while the legislature is not in session, general goals, priorities, and policies of the council shall be submitted to the legislature for an advisory review prior to its implementation by the council. Such priorities shall be designated according to such criteria, and on such terms and conditions, as such Director and such Administrator jointly may determine.

["(b) Such Director and such Administrator shall jointly annually request the National Institute of Justice, the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, State and local governments, and other appropriate public and private agencies to suggest national priority programs and projects. A finding under this subparagraph by the administrative law judge in favor of the State government or unit of local government shall defer the suspension of funds under subparagraph (C) pending a finding of noncompliance at the conclusion of the hearing on the merits under subparagraph (G).

["(G)(i) At any time after notification under subparagraph (A), but before the conclusion of the one-hundred-and-twenty-day period referred to in subparagraph (C), a State government or unit of local government may request a hearing on the record in accordance with section 554 of title 5, United States Code, which the Office of Justice Assistance Research, and Statistics shall initiate within sixty days of such request.

["(ii) Within thirty days after the conclusion of the hearing, or, in the absence of a hearing at the conclusion of the one-hundred-and-twenty-day period referred to in subparagraph (C), the Office of Justice Assistance, Research, and Statistics shall make a finding of compliance or noncompliance. ["(3) Whenever the Attorney General has reason to believe that a State government or unit of local government has engaged in or is engaging in a pattern or practice in violation of the provisions of this section, the Attorney General may bring a civil action in an appropriate United States district court. Such court may grant as relief any temporary restraining order, preliminary or permanent injunction, or other order, as necessary or appropriate to insure the full enjoyment of the rights described in this section, including the suspension, termination, or repayment of such funds made available under this title as the court may deem appropriate, or placing any further such funds in escrow pending the outcome of the litigation.

["(4)(A) Whenever a State government or unit of local government, or any officer or employee thereof acting in an official capacity, has engaged or is engaging in any act or practice prohibited by this subsection, a civil action may be instituted after exhaustion of administrative remedies by the person aggrieved in an appropriate United States district court or in a State court of general jurisdiction. Administrative remedies shall be deemed to be exhausted upon the expiration of sixty days after the date the administrative complaint was filed with the Office of Justice Assistance, Research, and Statistics or any other administrative enforcement agency, unless within such period there has been a determination by the Office of Justice Assistance, Research, and Statistics or the agency on the merits of the complaint, in which case such remedies shall be deemed exhausted at the time the determination becomes final.
