COMMUNITY RELATIONS SERVICE

United States Department of Justice

Mission Statement

The Community Relations Service (CRS), a unique component of the Department of Justice, seeks to prevent or resolve community conflicts and tensions arising from actions, policies, and practices perceived to be discriminatory on the basis of race, color, or national origin. CRS provides services, including conciliation, mediation, and technical assistance to people and their communities to help them resolve conflicts that tear at the fabric of our increasingly diverse society.

CRS does not take sides among disputing parties and, in promoting the principles and ideals of non-discrimination, applies skills that allow parties to come to their own agreement. In performing this mission, CRS deploys highly skilled professional conciliators, who are able to assist people of diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds.

Working with voluntary and government agencies, CRS also provides humanitarian services for the successful resettlement of Cuban and Haitian entrants. These services include shelter care, child welfare, and family reunification for these individuals following their release from Immigration and Naturalization Service custody.

244 ■ Deadly Consequences

STRATEGIES: Facing History is moral education. The target is hatred, prejudice, racism and indifference. The strategy is to reach young people with instruction in the history of the Nazi Holocaust and the Armenian Genocide as examples of what happens when morality breaks down. The plan is to reach our children's teachers who, with special training and innovative resources, can bring students through the understanding of terrible historical events to form the basis for maturity, marked by the practice of good citizenship. Facing history provides training for teachers, clergy, and other adult leaders.
