1. An interregional preparatory meeting for the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders on topic 3: "Effective national and international action against: (a) organized crime; (b) terrorist criminal activities" was held at Vienna from 14 to 18 March 1988 (A/CONF.144/IPM.2). The recommendations made at the meeting were reviewed at the five regional preparatory meetings and approved for further consideration and action by the Congress, further reviewed by the Committee on Crime Prevention and Control, at its tenth session, and endorsed by the Economic and Social Council in its resolution 1989/69 of 24 May 1989, paragraphs 5 and 11. The texts that follow reflect the comments made by the Committee, at its tenth session, 1/ as well as the observations made during the five regional preparatory meetings for the Eighth Congress (A/CONF.144/RPM.1-5).

2. With reference to the draft model treaty on mutual assistance in criminal matters, it will be recalled that a revised version had already been submitted, in the form of a conference room paper (E/AC.57/1988/CRP.4), to the Committee on Crime Prevention and Control, at its tenth session, which provided guidance concerning further follow-up, and recommended that the draft model treaty should be submitted to the Eighth Congress for finalization. 2/

3. In pursuance of the directives of the Committee, the draft model treaty was extensively circulated among government experts for their comments and suggestions, and the Secretariat held intensive consultations with representatives of Governments on the occasion of the United Nations Conference for the Adoption of a Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances, held at Vienna from 25 November to 20 December 1988. As a result of those consultations, a new revised draft was submitted to the five regional preparatory meetings for the Eighth Congress, held in 1989, and to the Seventh Joint Colloquium of the International Association of Penal Law, the International Society of Criminology, the International Society of Social Defence and the International Penal and Penitentiary Foundation, all of which voiced support for the draft model treaty and made a number of observations.

4. The draft model treaty was brought to the attention of representatives of Governments attending the Second Interregional Meeting of Heads of National Drug Law Enforcement Agencies (HONLEA) 3/ at which it was recommended that all States should support the elaboration of a United Nations model bilateral treaty on mutual assistance consistent with the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (E/CONF.82/15 and Corr.2), adopted in 1988. The draft model treaty was then finalized, taking into account the recommendations of a group of experts that met at Vienna in October 1989, on the occasion of the XIV International Congress on Penal Law.

5. In pursuance of the mandates contained in resolutions 1 and 23 of the Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, 4/ and in accordance with the recommendations of the above-mentioned meetings, the present text, as contained in draft resolution III below, represents the culmination of all these efforts.

6. Similar procedures were followed for the finalization of the draft model treaty on extradition, which was originally submitted to the Committee, at its tenth session, also in the form of a conference room paper (E/AC.57/1988/CRP.3), the revised version of which is contained in draft resolution IV below.

DRAFT RESOLUTION I

Prevention and control of organized crime

The Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders,

Recognizing that the growing threat of organized crime, with its highly destabilizing and corrupting influence on fundamental social, economic and political institutions, represents a challenge demanding accrued and more effective international co-operation,

Recalling that the Milan Plan of Action, 1/ adopted by consensus at the Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, recommended that it was imperative to launch a major effort to control and eventually eradicate the destructive phenomena of illicit drug traffic and abuse and of organized crime,

Recalling also that the Seventh Congress, in its resolution 1, 2/ recommended that the Committee on Crime Prevention and Control should be requested to develop a comprehensive framework of guidelines and standards that would assist Governments in the development of measures to deal with organized crime at the national, regional and international levels,

Recalling further that the General Assembly, in its resolution 40/32 of 29 November 1985, approved the Milan Plan of Action 1/ as a useful and effective means of strengthening international co-operation in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice, and endorsed the other resolutions adopted unanimously by the Seventh Congress,

Noting that the General Assembly in its resolutions 41/107, 42/59 and 43/99, of 4 December 1986, 30 November 1987 and 8 December 1988, respectively, as well as the Economic and Social Council in its resolutions 1986/10 and

1987/53 of 21 May 1986 and 28 May 1987, respectively, urged Member States to accord priority, inter alia, to the implementation of the recommendations contained in the Milan Plan of Action, 1/

Noting also that the Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 1989/70, of 24 May 1989, called upon Governments, international organizations and interested non-governmental organizations to co-operate with the Committee on Crime Prevention and Control in giving special attention to promoting international co-operation in combating organized crime,

Noting further that the General Assembly, in its resolution 44/72 of 8 December 1989, reaffirmed the continued validity of the Milan Plan of Action 1/ and requested the Eighth Congress, inter alia, to propose viable control measures aimed at eradicating the activities of organized crime,

1. Adopts the guidelines contained in the annex to the present resolution as valuable recommendations for national and international action against organized crime;

2. Urges Member States to give favourable consideration to their implementation both at the national and the international levels, as may be appropriate.

Annex

GUIDELINES FOR THE PREVENTION AND CONTROL OF ORGANIZED CRIME

A. National measures

Preventive strategies

1. Raising public awareness and mobilizing public support are important elements of any preventive action. Education and promotional programmes and the process of public exposure have been successful in changing community attitudes and in enlisting public support. Measures of this kind can help to counter public revenue fraud and can be further developed and utilized on a systematic basis by targeting areas of special social and economic harm to the community and by enlisting the co-operation of the mass media in playing a positive role.

2. Research into the structure of organized crime and the evaluation of the effectiveness of existing countermeasures should be encouraged, since it can contribute to the establishment of a more informed basis for prevention programmes. For example, research in relation to corruption, its causes, nature and effect, its links to organized crime and anti-corruption measures is a prerequisite to the development of preventive programmes.

3. Possible devices to prevent or minimize the impact of organized crime should be continuously explored. While the whole question of crime prevention is an underdeveloped area in many countries, specific measures in a number of spheres have been effective. Detailed programmes that are designed to place obstacles in the way of a potential offender, reduce opportunities for crime and make its commission more conspicuous should be encouraged. Fraud control programmes represent a significant and positive step in this direction. Other measures include risk analysis to assess vulnerability to fraud, control strategies in relation to such areas as systems and procedures, management and the supervision of staff, physical security, information and intelligence, computers, investigative strategies and training programmes. The creation of anti-corruption agencies or similar mechanisms should also be pursued. Crime impact studies and the identification of criminogenic factors of new development programmes would provide opportunities for the adoption of remedial and preventive measures at the planning stage.

4. Improvements in the efficiency of law enforcement and criminal justice are important preventive strategies based on more efficient and fair processes that act as a deterrent to crime and strengthen guarantees of human rights. Planning processes designed to integrate and co-ordinate relevant criminal justice agencies that often operate independently of each other, as stressed in the Guiding Principles for Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice in the Context of Development and a New International Economic Order, a/ will also serve as a deterrent to crime.

5. Better training to upgrade skills and professional qualifications of law enforcement and judicial personnel should be undertaken to improve effectiveness, consistency and fairness in national criminal justice systems. Regional and joint training programmes should be developed in order to exchange information on successful techniques and new technology.

6. The efforts of drug-producing countries aimed at the eradication of the illicit production and processing of drugs should be recognized and supported. In particular, developed countries should grant adequate technical and financial assistance for the implementation of crop substitution programmes. The latter should also increase their efforts to achieve a radical reduction in illicit drug demand and consumption within their national borders.

Criminal legislation

7. Legislation should be encouraged that defines new offences with respect to money laundering and organized fraud and the offence of opening and operating accounts under a false name. Computer crime is another area that requires consideration. In addition, there is a need for reform in civil, fiscal and regulatory legislation that relates to the control of organized crime. Information on significant innovations that have occurred in recent years should be widely shared through the United Nations, with a view to facilitating the development of a solid basis for the harmonization of criminal law dealing with organized crime.

8. In order to avoid the possibility of corrupt practices in developing countries, developed countries should adopt domestic legislation ensuring that the business ventures of their nationals in developing countries are, from the very outset, completely legitimate.

9. Forfeiture of the proceeds of crime represents one of the most significant recent developments. Important in this context are the following: provision for the freezing or withholding, and the confiscation or forfeiture, of property used in, or derived from, the commission of an offence; and orders for pecuniary penalties representing a court assessment of the monetary value of the benefit derived by the alleged offender from the commission of the offence. Viable remedies that have been developed in several countries on those matters should be brought, in a systematic way, to the attention of other interested countries, with a view to their more widespread utilization.

Criminal investigation

10. Attention should be focused on new methods of criminal investigation and the techniques developed in various countries of "following the money trail". Important in this context are the following: orders by the competent authority for the production of, or the search for and seizure of, documents relevant to following the money trail; orders requiring financial institutions to provide information to facilitate the following of the money trail and requiring institutions to preserve records to maintain the money trail; monitoring orders directing a financial institution to provide information during specified periods on transactions conducted through accounts held by a particular person; and requirements to report suspect transactions, such as large-scale cash transactions, to the appropriate authority. Banks and financial institutions should not resort to the principle of secrecy once there exists a judicial order issued by the competent judiciary authority.

11. The use of telecommunications and electronic surveillance is also a relevant and effective procedure, subject to human rights considerations.

12. Schemes for the protection of witnesses against violence and intimidation are becoming increasingly important in the criminal investigation and trial process and in enforcement efforts against organized crime. These procedures involve the provision of protected accommodation and physical protection, relocation, monetary support and a new identity for the victims.

Law enforcement and criminal justice administration

13. Law enforcement plays a crucial role in programmes against organized crime. It is important to ensure that law enforcement agencies have adequate powers, subject to proper human rights safeguards. Consideration should be given to the necessity of establishing a specialized interdisciplinary agency to deal specifically with organized crime.

14. Major emphasis should also be placed on the application of technical and organizational measures designed to increase the effectiveness of the investigative and sentencing authorities, including prosecutors and the judiciary. Furthermore, courses on professional ethics should be incorporated into the curricula of law enforcement and judicial training institutions. Some of the instruments developed by the United Nations could be used for this purpose, such as the Basic Principles on the Independence of the Judiciary b/ and the Code of Conduct for Law Enforcement Officials. c/

B. International co-operation

15. The transnational dimensions of organized crime require the urgent development of new and effective co-operative arrangements on a more comprehensive basis. The exchange of information between relevant agencies of Member States is also an important activity that needs to be strengthened and developed further.

c/ General Assembly resolution 34/169, annex.

16. Governments should vigorously support all initiatives by countries and international institutions to combat illicit drug-trafficking, and should warn others of the imminent danger represented by organized crime. All countries must be involved in combating illicit drug-trafficking on the basis of shared responsibility. In this respect, consistent and continuous global international interdiction efforts, combining the exchange of the necessary data and operational resources, should be encouraged and undertaken.

17. Model legislation for the forfeiture of assets from illegally acquired property should be developed and implemented.

18. Specific strategies and methods should be developed for erecting stronger barriers between legitimate financial markets and the market in illegally acquired capital, and co-operative arrangements applicable to offshore finance and to operations involving global electronic fund transfers should be devised, through the close co-ordination of the international organizations and agencies concerned.

19. Technical co-operation in its various forms, with expanded advisory services, should be strengthened in order to share common experiences and innovations and to assist countries in need. International, regional and subregional conferences bringing together members of the law enforcement, prosecution and judicial authorities should be encouraged.

20. Modern technological advances should be used in the area of passport and travel controls, and efforts should be encouraged to monitor and identify cars, boats and aircraft used in transnational theft or transfer, or for illicit trans-shipments.

21. Secure global, regional and national data bases containing law enforcement, financial and offenders' records should be established or expanded.

22. Mutual assistance, the transfer of criminal proceedings and the enforcement of criminal judgements, including confiscation and forfeiture of illegal assets, as well as extradition procedures, should receive priority attention.

23. Comparative research and data collection related to issues of transnational organized crime, its causes, its links to domestic instability and other forms of criminality, as well as its prevention and control, should be supported.

24. The United Nations regional and interregional institutes for crime prevention and control and the intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned should give increased attention to the issue of organized crime.

25. The United Nations Development Programme and other funding agencies of the United Nations system, as well as Member States, should be urged to strengthen their support for national, regional and international programmes addressed to the prevention and control of organized crime.

DRAFT RESOLUTION II

Terrorist criminal activities

The Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders,

Aware of the grave menace that national and international terrorist criminal activities pose to social and political stability and to the lives of countless human beings,

Concerned by the rapid internationalization of these criminal operations,

Convinced that the trend towards the internationalization of terrorist activities makes imperative a corresponding internationally co-ordinated response of global dimensions,

Recalling that the Milan Plan of Action, 1/ adopted by consensus by the Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, affirmed that priority should be given to combating terrorism in all its forms including, when appropriate, co-ordinated and concerted action by the international community,

Recalling also that the Seventh Congress, in its resolution 23, 2/ requested that the Committee on Crime Prevention and Control consider the development of recommendations for international action to strengthen law enforcement measures, including extradition procedures and other arrangements for legal assistance and co-operation, with respect to offences of a terrorist nature,

Noting that the General Assembly, in its resolution 40/32 of 29 November 1985, approved the Milan Plan of Action 1/ as a useful and effective means of strengthening international co-operation in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice, and endorsed the other resolutions adopted unanimously by the Seventh Congress,

Noting further that the General Assembly, in its resolutions 41/107, 42/59 and 43/99 of 4 December 1986, 30 November 1987 and 8 December 1988, respectively, as well as the Economic and Social Council, in its resolutions 1986/10 and 1987/53 of 21 May 1986 and 28 May 1987, respectively, urged Member States to accord priority, inter alia, to the implementation of the recommendations contained in the Milan Plan of Action, 1/

Aware that the General Assembly, in its resolution 44/72 of 8 December 1989, reaffirmed the continued validity of the Milan Plan of Action 1/ and requested the Eighth Congress, inter alia, to propose viable control measures for combating terrorist criminal activities,

Recalling further the concern about, and condemnation of, terrorism expressed by the General Assembly in its resolutions 3034 (XXVII), 31/102, 32/147, 34/145, 36/109, 38/130, 40/61, 42/59 and 44/29 of 18 September 1972, 15 December 1976, 16 December 1977, 17 December 1979, 10 December 1981, 19 December 1983, 9 December 1985, 30 November 1987 and 4 December 1989, respectively,

1. Adopts the recommendations contained in the annex to the present resolution as a set of valuable measures for national and international concerted action against international terrorism;

MEASURES AGAINST INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM

A. Definition

1. Since the first study a/ of international terrorism was conducted by the United Nations in 1972, the international community has been unable to arrive at a universally agreed meaning of what is included in the term "international terrorism". Nor has it reached sufficient general agreement on the measures needed to prevent and control the harmful manifestations of acts of terrorist violence.

2. The need to have a specific definition of international terrorism is, however, of questionable value for the prevention and control of the manifestations of the phenomenon. A preferred approach is to identify conduct that the international community deems unacceptable, and that it agrees to prevent and control by developing effective means for the implementation and enforcement of measures, in accordance with established principles of international law. Consequently, instead of attempting to define the phenomenon in an abstract way, a list of concrete activities or actions that the international community considers unacceptable and that are, therefore, considered as terrorist conduct should be compiled.

3. Furthermore, the international community should understand better the underlying causes that bring about such conduct in order to develop measures for its prevention and control.

B. Identification of the problems

4. Existing international norms may not in certain areas be sufficient to control all forms and manifestations of terrorist violence. The following issues are of particular concern: the absence of a clear definition of innocent civilians; the limits of the use of force in connection with wars of national liberation and conflicts of a non-international character; the limits of the use of force by States in response to what they may perceive as constituting acts of terrorist violence; State policies and practices that may be considered by other States as constituting a violation of international treaty obligations; the absence of specific norms on State responsibility regarding the failure to carry out existing international obligations; the abuse of the privilege of diplomatic immunity and the diplomatic pouch; the absence of norms concerning the responsibility of States for acts not prohibited by inter-a/ "Measures to prevent international terrorism which endangers or takes innocent human lives or jeopardizes fundamental freedoms, and study of the underlying causes of those forms of terrorism and acts of violence which lie in misery, frustration, grievance and despair and which cause some people to sacrifice human lives, including their own, in an attempt to effect radical changes: Study prepared by the Secretariat in accordance with the decision taken by the Sixth Committee at its 1314th meeting, on 27 September 1972" (A/C.6/418).

national law; the absence of international regulation and control of the traffic and trade in arms; the inadequacy of international mechanisms for the peaceful resolution of conflicts and for the enforcement of internationally protected human rights; the lack of universal acceptance of the principle of aut dedere aut iudicare; and the shortcomings of international co-operation in the effective and uniform prevention and control of all forms and manifestations of terrorist violence.

C. International co-operation for the effective and uniform prevention and control of terrorism

5. Effective measures for international co-operation in the prevention of terrorist violence should be developed at the international, regional and bilateral levels. These include: co-operation between law enforcement agencies, prosecution authorities and the judiciary; increasing integration and co-operation within the various agencies responsible for law enforcement and criminal justice, with due regard to fundamental human rights; inclusion of modalities of inter-State co-operation in penal matters at all levels of enforcement and criminal justice; increasing education and training of law enforcement personnel with regard to crime prevention and modalities of international co-operation in penal matters, including the development of specialized courses on international criminal law and comparative penal law and procedures, as a part of legal education as well as professional and judicial training; and the development of both general educational and public awareness programmes through the mass media in order to enlighten the public on the dangers of terrorist violence.

D. Jurisdiction

6. Greater uniformity in the laws and practices of States concerning both criminal and extraterritorial jurisdiction should be encouraged, while over-extension of territorial jurisdiction should be avoided in order to prevent unnecessary legal conflicts between States.

7. Jurisdictional priorities should be established giving territoriality the first priority, followed by other principles in accordance with existing international law.

E. Extradition

8. Extradition should be facilitated as one of the most effective procedures for implementing the principle of aut dedere aut iudicare, and States should endeavour to develop and implement effectively international extradition treaties, be they part of multilateral conventions, regional conventions or bilateral agreements.

9. The political offence exception should not be a bar to extradition for crimes of terrorist violence under existing international conventions, except in cases when the requested State decides to undertake prosecution of the requested person or to transfer the proceedings to another State to conduct the prosecution.

10. States are encouraged to rely on existing extradition provisions in multilateral treaties whenever there is an absence of bilateral treaties.

11. In view of the increasing number of multilateral and bilateral treaties, the efforts of the United Nations to elaborate a model treaty on extradition constitute a useful beginning. In addition, the United Nations could also consider elaborating a multilateral convention on extradition to remove gaps and loopholes in existing treaties and current extradition procedures.

12. Lawful alternatives to extradition, such as deportation or voluntary return subject to appropriate judicial guarantees, should be encouraged.

F. Mutual assistance and co-operation

13. The prevention and control of terrorist violence depends on effective mutual co-operation and assistance between States in securing evidence with respect to the prosecution or extradition of the offenders.

14. States are encouraged to lend each other the widest possible mutual assistance and co-operation in penal matters, subject to respect for internationally recognized human rights, and to rely on the provisions of multilateral treaties and specific regional and bilateral agreements. To achieve this end, the model treaty on mutual assistance in criminal matters constitutes a basis for strengthened international co-operation.

G. Non-applicability of defence

15. Defence based on obedience to superior orders, or acts of State, or immunities accorded subsequent to the commission of the crime shall not apply with respect to persons who have violated international conventions prohibiting acts of terrorist violence.

H. Conduct of States

16. Resort to terrorist violence by States that by their conduct violate international law should be more effectively curbed by the international community, and the United Nations should develop mechanisms for the control of such conduct, particularly through the strengthening of United Nations machinery for the preservation of peace and security and the protection of human rights.

17. Measures by the international community to curb terrorism that is supported, carried out or acquiesced in by States should be encouraged.

I. Protection of targets of high vulnerability

18. A study concerning the development of a new international convention that would enhance the protection of targets that are particularly vulnerable, the destruction of which would cause great harm to populations or cause severe damage to society, such as hydroelectricity or nuclear facilities, should be undertaken.

19. Contemporary societies rely increasingly on various technological and scientific means for satisfying common needs, and such means may provide opportunities for terrorist attack, with possibly devastating consequences. The United Nations, in co-operation with the specialized agencies concerned, should convene a conference of experts to identify such highly vulnerable targets and to develop appropriate measures for their protection. The United Nations should assist any country that suffers from terrorism or from the presence of terrorist organizations on its territory to put an end to that phenomenon.

J. Control of weapons, ammunition and explosives

20. States should develop appropriate national legislation for the effective control of weapons, ammunition and explosives and other dangerous materials that find their way into the hands of persons who could use them for the purposes of terrorism.

21. International regulations on the transfer, import, export and storage of such objects should be developed so that customs and border controls can be harmonized to prevent their transnational movement, except for established lawful purposes.

K. Protection of victims

22. States should establish appropriate mechanisms for the protection, and introduce relevant legislation for the assistance, of victims of terrorism, in accordance with the Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power. b/

23. International norms defining innocent civilians as protected targets should be elaborated in order to protect them from terrorist operations.

L. Protection of witnesses

24. States should adopt measures and policies aimed at the effective protection of witnesses of terrorist acts.

25. States with experience in the field of witness protection programmes should consider lending assistance to other States contemplating similar programmes.

M. Treatment of offenders

26. Among the aims of criminal law are deterrence, prevention and the resocialization of offenders, but such aims can seldom be achieved with respect to ideologically motivated offenders. It is therefore recommended that studies should be undertaken concerning the treatment of such offenders, that programmes should be designed for them during their imprisonment, and that alternative measures of correction and programmes oriented to social defence should be developed.

27. Consideration should be given to the establishment of a uniform standard of penalties to be imposed on terrorists in different countries in order to eliminate significant disparities.

28. Such offenders must be treated without discrimination and in accordance with internationally recognized human rights standards and norms, as enunciated in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, c/ the International Covenant

N. Role of the mass media

29. States should consider the development of guidelines for the mass media or encourage the establishment of voluntary guidelines to control the following: sensationalizing and justifying terrorist violence; disseminating strategic information on potential targets; and disseminating tactical information while terrorist acts are taking place, thereby possibly endangering the lives of innocent civilians and law enforcement personnel or impeding effective law enforcement measures to prevent or control such acts and to apprehend the offenders. These guidelines are in no way intended to restrict the internationally recognized basic human right of freedom of speech and information or to encourage interference in the domestic affairs of other States.

O. Codification of international criminal law and creation of an international criminal court

30. International criminal law should be codified and the work of the International Law Commission on various aspects of codification should be encouraged, in co-operation with the Committee on Crime Prevention and Control.

31. The possibility of establishing a special penal jurisdiction within the International Court of Justice, or a separate international criminal court, should be considered. Such drafts as the 1951 and 1953 draft statutes for the establishment of an international criminal court and the 1980 draft statute for the establishment of an international jurisdiction to implement the International Convention on the Suppression and Punishment of the Crime of Apartheid j/ should be considered. Also, the United Nations should encourage States to explore seriously the possibility of establishing such an international court under the auspices of the Organization, in which grave international crimes, and particularly terrorism, could be brought to trial. This goal could be achieved by the application of the principle of universal jurisdiction to certain particularly harmful and/or hideous crimes.

P. Enhancing the effectiveness of international co-operation

32. The United Nations, in co-operation with specialized agencies such as the International Civil Aviation Organization, the International Maritime Organization, and the International Atomic Energy Agency, should prepare annual reports on compliance with existing international conventions, including detailed reporting on incidents and cases (arrest, prosecution, adjudication and sentencing), to be made available for international circulation.

33. States that are signatories to international conventions prohibiting terrorist violence are urged to ratify those conventions at the earliest opportunity and to take effective measures to enforce their provisions.

34. States that are not signatories to international conventions prohibiting terrorist violence are urged to accede to such conventions at the earliest opportunity and to take effective measures to enforce their provisions.

35. States are urged to sign and ratify the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation and the Protocol for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Fixed Platforms Located on the Continental Shelf, adopted by the conference of the International Maritime Organization, held at Rome in 1988, and the Protocol for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts of Violence at Airports Serving International Civil Aviation, adopted by the International Conference on Air Law, which was convened by the International Civil Aviation Organization at Montreal, from 9 to 24 February 1988.

36. The United Nations should develop ways and means of encouraging prevention policies, strategies and action by States to ensure the effective implementation of international conventions, including enhanced co-operation at the law enforcement, prosecution and judicial levels.

37. A system of reporting and monitoring acts of terrorist violence and the responses of States should be developed within the United Nations, and annual reports should be made and widely circulated to Member States.

38. The central role of the United Nations, and in particular of the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Branch, Centre for Social Development and Humanitarian Affairs of the United Nations Office at Vienna, should be strengthened in order to fulfil the above-mentioned objectives and other purposes of the Organization, including the preservation of peace, the strengthening of world order and the fight against crime under the rule of law.

MODEL TREATY ON MUTUAL ASSISTANCE IN CRIMINAL MATTERS

The _____ and the _____

Desirous of extending to each other the widest measure of co-operation to combat crime,

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE 1

Scope of application a/

1. The Parties shall, in accordance with this Treaty, afford to each other the widest possible measure of mutual assistance in investigations or court proceedings in respect of offences the punishment of which, at the time of the request for assistance, falls within the jurisdiction of the judicial authorities of the Requesting State.
2. Mutual assistance to be afforded in accordance with this Treaty may include:
  - (a) Taking evidence or statements from persons;

a/ Additions to the scope of assistance to be provided can be considered bilaterally, such as provisions covering information on sentences passed on nationals of the Parties. Obviously, such assistance must be compatible with the law of the Requested State.

- (b) Effecting service of judicial documents;
- (c) Executing searches and seizures;
- (d) Examining objects and sites;
- (e) Providing information and evidentiary items;
- (f) Providing originals or certified copies of relevant documents and records, including bank, financial, corporate or business records.

3. This Treaty does not apply to:

- (a) The arrest or detention of any person with a view to the extradition of that person;
- (b) The enforcement in the Requested State of criminal judgements imposed in the Requesting State except to the extent permitted by the law of the Requested State and the Optional Protocol to this Treaty;
- (c) The transfer of persons in custody to serve sentences;
- (d) The transfer of proceedings in criminal matters.

ARTICLE 2

Other arrangements b/

4. Unless the Parties decide otherwise, this Treaty shall not affect obligations subsisting between them whether pursuant to other treaties or arrangements or otherwise.

ARTICLE 3

Designation of competent authorities

5. Each Party shall designate and indicate to the other Party an authority or authorities by or through which requests for the purpose of this Treaty should be made or received.

ARTICLE 4

Refusal of assistance c/

6. Assistance may be refused if: d/b/ This article recognizes the continuing role of informal assistance between law enforcement agencies and associated agencies in different countries.

c/ This article provides an illustrative list of the grounds for refusal.

d/ Some countries may wish to modify the provisions or include other grounds for refusal, such as those related to the nature of the offence (e.g. fiscal), requirements of shared concepts (e.g. double criminality, double jurisdiction, no lapse of time) or specific kinds of assistance (e.g. interception of telecommunications, performing deoxyribonucleic-acid (DNA) tests).

(a) The Requested State is of the opinion that the request, if granted, would prejudice its sovereignty, security, public order (ordre public) or other essential public interests;

(b) The offence is regarded by the Requested State as being of a political nature;

(c) There are substantial grounds for believing that the request for assistance has been made for the purpose of prosecuting a person on account of that person's race, sex, religion, nationality, ethnic origin or political opinions or that that person's position may be prejudiced for any of those reasons;

(d) The request relates to an offence that is subject to investigation or prosecution in the Requested State or the prosecution of which in the Requesting State would be incompatible with the Requested State's law on double jeopardy (ne bis in idem);

(e) The assistance requested requires the Requested State to carry out compulsory measures that are contrary to its law and practice had the offence been the subject of investigation or prosecution under its own jurisdiction;

(f) The act is an offence under military law, which is not also an offence under ordinary criminal law.

7. Assistance shall not be refused solely on the ground of secrecy of banks and similar financial institutions.

8. The Requested State may postpone the execution of the request if its immediate execution would interfere with an ongoing investigation or prosecution in the Requested State.

9. Before refusing a request or postponing its execution, the Requested State shall consider whether assistance may be granted subject to certain conditions. If the Requesting State accepts assistance subject to these conditions, it shall comply with them.

10. Reasons shall be given for any refusal or postponement of mutual assistance.

ARTICLE 5

Contents of requests e/

11. Requests for assistance shall include:

(a) The name of the requesting office and the competent authority conducting the investigation or court proceedings to which the request relates;

(b) The purpose of the request and a brief description of the assistance sought;

(c) A description of the facts alleged to constitute the offence and a statement or text of the relevant laws, except in cases of a request for service of documents;

e/ This list can be reduced or expanded in bilateral negotiations.

(d) The name and address of the person to be served, where necessary;

(e) The reasons for and details of any particular procedure or requirement that the Requesting State wishes to be followed, including a statement as to whether sworn or affirmed evidence or statements are required;

(f) Specification of any time limit within which compliance with the request is desired;

(g) Such other information as is necessary for the proper execution of the request.

12. Requests, supporting documents and other communications made pursuant to this Treaty shall be accompanied by a translation into the language of the Requested State or another language acceptable to that State.

13. If the Requested State considers that the information contained in the request is not sufficient to enable the request to be dealt with, it may request additional information.

ARTICLE 6

Execution of requests f/

14. Subject to article 19, requests for assistance shall be carried out promptly, in the manner provided for by the law and practice of the Requested State. In so far as it is not incompatible with its law and practice, the Requested State shall carry out the request in the manner specified by the Requesting State.

ARTICLE 7

Return of material to the Requested State

15. Any property, as well as original records or documents, handed over to the Requesting State under this Treaty shall be returned to the Requested State as soon as possible unless the latter waives its right of return thereof.

ARTICLE 8

Rule of speciality

16. The Requesting State shall not, without the consent of the Requested State, use or transfer information or evidence provided by the Requested State for investigations or proceedings other than those stated in the request. However, in cases where the charge is altered, the material provided may be used in so far as the offence, as charged, is an offence in respect of which mutual assistance could be provided under this Treaty.

f/ More detailed provisions may be included concerning the provision of information on the time and place of execution of the request and requiring the Requested State to inform promptly the Requesting State in cases where significant delay is likely to occur or where a decision is made not to comply with the request and the reasons for refusal.

ARTICLE 9

Protection of confidentiality g/

17. Upon request:

(a) The Requested State shall use its best endeavours to keep confidential the request for assistance, its contents and its supporting documents as well as the granting of such assistance. If the request cannot be executed without breaching confidentiality, the Requested State shall so inform the Requesting State, which shall then determine whether the request should nevertheless be executed;

(b) The Requesting State shall keep confidential evidence and information provided by the Requested State, except to the extent that the evidence and information is needed for the investigation and proceedings described in the request.

ARTICLE 10

Service of documents h/

18. The Requested State shall effect service of documents that are transmitted to it for this purpose by the Requesting State.

19. A request to effect service of summonses shall be made to a Requested State not less than ... i/ days before the date on which the appearance of a person is required. In urgent cases, the Requested State may waive this requirement.

ARTICLE 11

Obtaining of evidence j/

20. The Requested State shall, in conformity with its law and upon request, take the sworn or affirmed testimony, or otherwise obtain statements, of g/ Provisions relating to confidentiality will be important for many countries but may present problems to others. The nature of the provisions in individual treaties can be determined in bilateral negotiations.

h/ More detailed provisions relating to the service of documents, such as writs and judicial verdicts, can be determined bilaterally. Provisions may be desired providing for service of documents by mail or other manner, and providing for the forwarding of proof of service of the documents. For example, proof of service could be given by means of a receipt dated and signed by the person served or by means of a declaration made by the Requested State that service has been effected and stating the form and date of such service. One or other of these documents could be sent promptly to the Requesting State. The Requested State could, if the Requesting State so requests, state whether service has been effected in accordance with the law of the Requested State. If service could not be effected, the reasons could be communicated promptly by the Requested State to the Requesting State.

i/ Depending on travel distance and related arrangements.

j/ This article is concerned with the obtaining of evidence in judicial proceedings, the taking of a statement of a person by a less formal process and the production of items of evidence.

persons or require them to produce items of evidence for transmission to the Requesting State.

21. Upon request of the Requesting State, the parties to the relevant proceedings in the Requesting State, their legal representatives and representatives of the Requesting State may, subject to the laws and procedures of the Requested State, be present at the proceedings.

ARTICLE 12

Right or obligation to decline to give evidence

22. A person who is required to give evidence in the Requested or Requesting State may decline to give evidence where either:

(a) The law of the Requested State permits or requires that person to decline to give evidence in similar circumstances in proceedings originating in the Requested State; or

(b) The law of the Requesting State permits or requires that person to decline to give evidence in similar circumstances in proceedings originating in the Requesting State.

23. If a person claims that there is a right or obligation to decline to give evidence under the law of the other State, the State where that person is present shall, with respect thereto, rely on a certificate of the competent authority of the other State as evidence of the existence or non-existence of that right or obligation.

ARTICLE 13

Availability of persons in custody to give evidence or to assist in investigations k/

24. Upon request of the Requesting State, and if the Requested State agrees and its law so permits, a person in custody in the latter State may, subject to his or her consent, be temporarily transferred to the Requesting State to give evidence or to assist in the investigations.

25. While the person transferred is required to be held in custody under the law of the Requested State, the Requesting State shall hold that person in custody and shall return that person in custody to the Requested State at the conclusion of the matter in relation to which transfer was sought or at such earlier time as the person's presence is no longer required.

26. Where the Requested State advises the Requesting State that the transferred person is no longer required to be held in custody, that person shall be set at liberty and be treated as a person referred to in article 14.

k/ In bilateral negotiations, provisions may also be introduced dealing with such matters as the modalities and time of restitution of evidence and the setting of a time limit for the presence of the person in custody in the Requesting State.

ARTICLE 14

Availability of other persons to give evidence or assist in investigations 1/

27. The Requesting State may request the assistance of the Requested State in inviting a person:

(a) To appear in proceedings in relation to a criminal matter in the Requesting State unless that person is the person charged; or

(b) To assist in the investigations in relation to a criminal matter in the Requesting State.

28. The Requested State shall invite the person to appear as a witness or expert in proceedings or to assist in the investigations and shall inform the Requesting State of the reply of the person, if any. Where appropriate, the Requested State shall satisfy itself that satisfactory arrangements have been made for the person's safety.

29. The request or the summons shall indicate the approximate allowances and the travel and subsistence expenses payable by the Requesting State.

30. Upon request, the Requested State may grant the person an advance, which shall be refunded by the Requesting State.

ARTICLE 15

Safe conduct m/

31. Subject to paragraph 32, where a person is in the Requesting State pursuant to a request made under articles 13 or 14:

(a) That person shall not be detained, prosecuted, punished or subjected to any other restrictions of personal liberty in the Requesting State in respect of any acts or omissions or convictions that preceded the person's departure from the Requested State;

(b) That person shall not, without that person's consent, be required to give evidence in any proceeding or to assist in any investigation other than the proceeding or investigation to which the request relates.

32. Paragraph 31 of this article shall cease to apply if that person, being free to leave, has not left the Requesting State within a period of [15] consecutive days, or any longer period otherwise agreed on by the Parties, after that person has been officially told or notified that his or her presence is no longer required or, having left, has voluntarily returned.

1/ Provisions relating to the payment of the expenses of the person providing assistance are contained in paragraph 29. Additional details, such as provision for the payment of costs in advance, can be the subject of bilateral negotiations.

m/ These provisions may be required as the only way of securing important evidence in proceedings involving serious national and transnational crime. However, as they may raise difficulties for some countries, the precise content of the article, including any additions or modifications, can be determined in bilateral negotiations.

33. A person who does not consent to a request pursuant to article 13 or accept an invitation pursuant to article 14 shall not, by reason thereof, be liable to any penalty or be subjected to any coercive measure, notwithstanding any contrary statement in the request or summons.

ARTICLE 16

Provision of publicly available documents and other records n/

34. The Requested State shall provide copies of documents and records in so far as they are open to public access as part of a public register or otherwise, or in so far as they are available for purchase or inspection by the public.

35. The Requested State may provide copies of any other document or record in the same manner and under the same conditions as such document or record may be provided to its own law enforcement and judicial authorities.

ARTICLE 17

Search and seizure o/

36. The Requested State shall, in so far as its law permits, carry out requests for search and seizure and delivery of any material to the Requesting State for evidentiary purposes, provided that the rights of third parties are protected.

ARTICLE 18

Certification and authentication p/

37. Subject to national law and unless the Parties decide otherwise, a request for assistance and the supporting documents thereto, as well as documents or other material supplied in response to such a request, shall not require certification or authentication.

n/ The question may arise whether this should be discretionary. This provision can be the subject of bilateral negotiations.

o/ Bilateral arrangements may cover the provision of information on the results of search and seizure and the observance of conditions imposed in relation to the delivery of seized property.

p/ The laws of some countries may require authentication before documents transmitted from other countries can be admitted in their courts. Original documents are not necessarily required. More detailed provisions relating to certification or authentication can be dealt with bilaterally.

ARTICLE 19

Costs q/

38. The ordinary costs of executing a request shall be borne by the Requested State, unless otherwise determined by the Parties. If expenses of a substantial or extraordinary nature are or will be required to execute the request, the Parties shall consult in advance to determine the terms and conditions under which the request shall be executed as well as the manner in which the costs shall be borne.

ARTICLE 20

Consultation

39. The Parties shall consult promptly, at the request of either, concerning the interpretation, the application or the carrying out of this Treaty either generally or in relation to a particular case.

ARTICLE 21

Final provisions

40. This Treaty is subject to (ratification, acceptance or approval). The instruments of (ratification, acceptance or approval) shall be exchanged as soon as possible.

41. This Treaty shall enter into force on the thirtieth day after the day on which the instruments of (ratification, acceptance or approval) are exchanged.

42. This Treaty shall apply to requests made after its entry into force, even if the relevant acts or omissions occurred prior to that date.

43. Either Contracting Party may denounce this Treaty by giving notice in writing to the other Party. Such denunciation shall take effect six months following the date on which it is received by the other Party.

In witness whereof the undersigned, being duly authorized thereto by their respective Governments, have signed this Treaty.

Done at _____ on _____ in the _____
and _____ languages (both) texts being equally authentic.
(all)

q/ More detailed provisions may be included, for example, the Requested State would meet the ordinary cost of fulfilling the request for assistance except that the Requesting State would bear (a) the exceptional or extraordinary expenses required to fulfil the request, where required by the Requested State and subject to previous consultations; (b) the expenses associated with conveying any person to or from the territory of the Requested State, and any fees, allowances or expenses payable to that person while in the Requesting State pursuant to a request under articles 11, 13 or 14, paragraphs 29 and 30; and (c) the expenses associated with conveying custodial or escorting officers.

OPTIONAL PROTOCOL TO THE MODEL TREATY ON MUTUAL ASSISTANCE IN CRIMINAL MATTERS CONCERNING THE PROCEEDS OF CRIME a/

1. In this Protocol "proceeds of crime" means any property suspected, or found by a court, to be property directly or indirectly derived or realized as a result of the commission of an offence or to represent the value of property and other benefits derived from the commission of an offence.
2. The Requested State shall, upon request, endeavour to ascertain whether any proceeds of the crime alleged are located within its jurisdiction and shall notify the Requesting State of the results of its inquiries. In making the request, the Requesting State shall notify the Requested State of the basis of its belief that such proceeds may be located within its jurisdiction.
3. In pursuance of a request made under paragraph 2 of this Protocol, the Requested State shall endeavour to trace assets, investigate financial dealings, and obtain other information or evidence that may help to secure the recovery of proceeds of crime.
4. Where pursuant to paragraph 2 of this Protocol suspected proceeds of crime are found, the Requested State shall upon request take such measures as are permitted by its law to prevent any dealing in, transfer or disposal of, those suspected proceeds of crime, pending a final determination in respect of those proceeds by a court of the Requesting State.
5. The Requested State shall, to the extent permitted by its law, give effect to a final order forfeiting or confiscating the proceeds of crime made by a court of the Requesting State or take other appropriate action to secure the proceeds following a request by the Requesting State. b/
6. In the application of this Protocol, the rights of bona fide third parties shall be respected under the law of the Requested State.

a/ This Optional Protocol is included on the ground that questions of forfeiture are conceptually different from, although closely related to, matters generally accepted as falling within the description of mutual assistance. However, States may wish to include these provisions in the text because of their importance in dealing with organized crime. Moreover, co-operation in forfeiting the proceeds of crime has now emerged as an exception to the general rule that States will not enforce the criminal judgements of other States. Provisions similar to those outlined in the Optional Protocol appear in many bilateral assistance treaties. Further details can be provided in bilateral arrangements. One matter that could be considered is the need for other provisions dealing with issues related to bank secrecy. An addition could, for example, be made to paragraph 4 providing that the Requested State shall, upon request, take such measures as are permitted by its law to require compliance with monitoring orders by financial institutions. Provision could be made for the sharing of the proceeds of crime between the Contracting States or for consideration of the disposal of the proceeds on a case-by-case basis.

b/ The parties might consider widening the scope of the Optional Protocol by the inclusion of references to victims' restitution and the recovery of fines imposed as a sentence in a criminal prosecution.

In witness whereof, the undersigned, being duly authorized thereto by their respective Governments, have signed this Treaty.

Annex

MODEL TREATY ON EXTRADITION

The _____ and the _____,

Desirous of making more effective the co-operation of the two countries in the control of crime by concluding a treaty on extradition,

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE 1

Obligation to extradite

1. Each Party agrees to extradite to the other, upon request and subject to the provisions of this Treaty, any person who is wanted in the Requesting State for prosecution for an extraditable offence or for the imposition or enforcement of a sentence in respect of such an offence. a/

ARTICLE 2

Extraditable offences

2. For the purposes of this Treaty, extraditable offences are offences that are punishable under the laws of both Parties by imprisonment or other deprivation of liberty for a maximum period of at least [one/two] year(s), or by a more severe penalty. Where the request for extradition relates to a person who is wanted for the enforcement of a sentence of imprisonment or other deprivation of liberty imposed for such an offence, extradition shall be granted only if a period of at least [four/six] months of such sentence remains to be served.

3. In determining whether an offence is an offence punishable under the laws of both Parties, it shall not matter whether:

(a) The laws of the Parties place the acts or omissions constituting the offence within the same category of offence or denominate the offence by the same terminology;

(b) Under the laws of the Parties the constituent elements of the offence differ, it being understood that the totality of the acts or omissions as pre- sented by the Requesting State shall be taken into account.

4. Where extradition of a person is sought for an offence against a law relating to taxation, customs duties, exchange control or other revenue matters, extradition may not be refused on the ground that the law of the Requested State does not impose the same kind of tax or duty or does not contain a tax, customs duty or exchange regulation of the same kind as the law of the Requesting State. b/

5. If the request for extradition includes several separate offences each of which is punishable under the laws of both Parties, but some of which do not fulfil the conditions set out in paragraph 2 of this article, the Requested Party may grant extradition for the latter offences provided that the person is to be extradited for at least one extraditable offence.

a/ Reference to the imposition of a sentence may not be necessary for all countries.

b/ Some countries may wish to omit this paragraph and provide an optional ground for refusal under article 4.

ARTICLE 3

Mandatory grounds for refusal

6. Extradition shall not be granted in any of the following circumstances:

(a) If the offence for which extradition is requested is regarded by the Requested State as an offence of a political nature. [Reference to an offence of a political nature shall not include any offence in respect of which the Parties have assumed an obligation, pursuant to any multilateral convention, to take prosecutorial action where they do not extradite, nor any other offence agreed by the Parties not to be an offence of a political character for the purposes of extradition.];

(b) If the Requested State has substantial grounds for believing that the request for extradition has been made for the purpose of prosecuting or punishing a person on account of that person's race, religion, nationality, ethnic origin, political opinions, sex or status, or that that person's position may be prejudiced for any of those reasons;

(c) If the offence for which extradition is requested is an offence under military law, which is not also an offence under ordinary criminal law;

(d) If there has been a final judgement rendered against the person in the Requested State in respect of the offence for which the person's extradition is requested;

(e) If the person whose extradition is requested has, under the law of either Party, become immune from prosecution or punishment for any reason, including lapse of time or amnesty; c/

(f) If the person whose extradition is requested would be subjected in the Requesting State to torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment or if that person would not be entitled to the minimum guarantees in criminal proceedings, as contained in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, article 14; d/

(g) If the judgement of the Requesting State has been rendered in absentia and the convicted person has not had sufficient opportunity to arrange for his or her defence, or has not had, or will not have, the opportunity to have the case retried in his or her presence.

ARTICLE 4

Optional grounds for refusal

7. Extradition may be refused in any of the following circumstances:

(a) If the person whose extradition is requested is a national of the Requested State. Where extradition is refused on this ground, the Requested State shall, if the other State so requests and if permitted by its law, submit c/ Some countries may wish to make this an optional ground for refusal under article 4.

d/ General Assembly resolution 2200 A (XXI), annex.

the case to its competent authorities with a view to taking appropriate action against the person in respect of the offence for which extradition had been requested;

(b) If the competent authorities of the Requested State have refrained from prosecuting the person for the offence in respect of which extradition is requested;

(c) If a prosecution in respect of the offence for which extradition is requested is pending in the Requested State against the person whose extradition is requested;

(d) If the offence for which extradition is requested carries the death penalty under the law of the Requesting State, unless that State gives such assurance as the Requested State considers sufficient that the death penalty will not be imposed or, if imposed, will not be carried out; e/

(e) If the offence for which extradition is requested has been committed outside the territory of either Party and the law of the Requested State does not provide for jurisdiction over such an offence committed outside its territory in comparable circumstances;

(f) If the offence for which extradition is requested is regarded under the law of the Requested State as having been committed in whole or in part within that State. f/ Where extradition is refused on this ground, the Requested State shall, if the other State so requests and if permitted by its law, submit the case to its competent authorities with a view to taking appropriate action against the person for the offence for which extradition had been requested;

(g) If the person whose extradition is requested has been sentenced or would be liable to be tried or sentenced in the Requesting State by an extraordinary or ad hoc court or tribunal;

(h) If the Requested State, while also taking into account the nature of the offence and the interests of the Requesting State, considers that, in the circumstances of the case, the extradition of that person would be incompatible with humanitarian considerations.

ARTICLE 5

Channels of communication and required documents

8. A request for extradition shall be made in writing. The request, supporting documents and subsequent communications shall be transmitted through the diplomatic channel, directly between the ministries of justice or any other authorities designated by the Parties.

e/ Some countries may wish to apply the same restriction to the imposition of a life, or indeterminate, sentence.

f/ Some countries may wish to make specific reference to a vessel under its flag or an aircraft registered under its laws at the time of the commission of the offence.

9. A request for extradition shall be accompanied by the following:

(a) In all cases,

- (i) As accurate a description as possible of the person sought, together with any other information that may help to establish that persons's identity and nationality;
