FOREWORD

This twelfth edition of the Directory of Criminal Justice Issues in the States is a resource for policy makers, practitioners, and researchers throughout the justice system. The Directory compiles efforts by the State Statistical Analysis Centers. It describes programs at the State level, research in progress, and publications produced in 1994. Many of the projects are at the cutting edge of current issues in criminal justice. They represent information that is often not available from any other source.

On behalf of the Justice Research and Statistics Association, I would like to thank the Statistical Analysis Centers in the States and Territories for their contributions to this edition of the Directory. The work they do is important to State, as well as national, policy. I would also like to express appreciation to the Bureau of Justice Statistics, Office of Justice Programs, U.S. Department of Justice for continuing to support the publication and dissemination of the Directory.

I hope you find this Directory useful. JRSA welcomes your comments for future reports.

THE JUSTICE RESEARCH AND STATISTICS ASSOCIATION

JRSA is a professional association of criminal justice analysts, researchers, and practitioners committed to providing accurate and timely information in support of sound policy development. Directors of the State Statistical Analysis Centers (SACs) are the voting members of the association. JRSA's goals are to expand the analytical capabilities of State statistical agencies; promote the exchange of information and technology within the criminal justice community; encourage cooperation among the States in addressing common policy-related problems; and facilitate liaison between the States and the Federal government.

JRSA was organized by the States in 1974 as the Criminal Justice Statistics Association, a private, non-profit organization, and became the Justice Research and Statistics Association in November 1991. Funding is provided by grants, contracts, and membership dues. JRSA works closely with the U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Statistics and other Federal agencies to promote the effective use of criminal justice information and professional standards for analysts.

JRSA programs include 1) a clearinghouse of criminal justice resources in the States; 2) conferences and seminars that cover a wide range of criminal justice issues; 3) multi-State, policy-oriented research; and 4) training in the application of computer technologies. Training is conducted both on site in JRSA's National Computer Center and in selected locations around the country. Topics cover the use of computers for a variety of statistical, graphics, and operational applications. JRSA also coordinates the State Evaluation Development Program for the Bureau of Justice Assistance.

In addition to this annual Directory, JRSA publishes The JRSA Forum, the Association's newsletter; grant notes, etc., a bulletin announcing funding opportunities offered through the Office of Justice Programs and other Federal agencies; research reports; and technical bulletins.

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

The Directory of Criminal Justice Issues in the States is organized into five sections for easy use.

- Section I contains a brief summary of the SAC research and analysis activities listed in the Directory. It focuses on the major criminal justice policy issues confronting the States in 1994.
- Section II provides a detailed listing of SAC activities including the project title, a brief description, data sources used, date of completion, and a contact person for each SAC activity. The list is organized alphabetically by State to aid the reader in locating a particular State or agency.
- Section III is an index of all SAC activities by issue area. The 40 issue areas found in the index are listed on page 51.
- Section IV includes a listing of recent reports published by the Statistical Analysis Centers and provides the reader with a list of criminal justice reports available from the SACs.
- Section V contains the addresses and telephone and fax numbers of the Statistical Analysis Centers so readers can request additional information about research design, findings, and other facts about projects.

INTRODUCTION

The Directory of Criminal Justice Issues in the States is a resource designed to support criminal justice policy makers, practitioners, and researchers. The Directory indicates, by jurisdiction, many of the justice-related issues and problems examined throughout the country during 1994 by the State Statistical Analysis Centers (SACs). It also summarizes substantive and methodological research undertaken by the SACs in response to these issues and problems.

The Directory is an invaluable aid to those who seek to identify sources of State criminal justice information. It provides the means for national policy makers to learn the major criminal justice issues under debate and analysis in the States. State policy makers will gain critical knowledge about the current activities of other States in dealing with similar issues, problems, and concerns.

Statistical Analysis Centers conduct objective analyses to meet critical planning needs and address Statewide and systemwide criminal justice policy issues. These agencies contribute to viable, effective policy development through statistical services, research, evaluation, and policy analysis. The SAC program originated in 1972 as a component of the National Criminal Justice Information and Statistics Service (NCJISS). Although some SACs are predominantly funded by their States, they continue to maintain a close working relationship with the U.S. Department of Justice, Bureau of Justice Statistics, which supports special research and analysis activities. Since the advent of State funding, many of the agencies have changed their names. To maintain consistency when discussing these agencies in the Directory, however, the generic term Statistical Analysis Center (SAC) is used.

The Justice Research and Statistics Association surveys the SACs annually to learn the types of research, analytical activities, and publications in which they are involved. Survey results are entered into a computerized index called the Database of State Activities and Research DSAR (formerly Computerized Index of Data Sources, or CIDS). DSAR contains information on SAC research, analyses, and other activities as well as SAC reports and publications from 53 States and Territories. This 12th edition of the Directory, which continues to serve as a guide to criminal justice programs and policy research conducted by the SACs, is a summary of 1994 activities and publications of the SACs.

The Major Criminal Justice Issues in 1994

State and local policy makers turn to the SACs for reliable information with which to make sound decisions on criminal justice issues. The need for this information determines the types of activities in which the SACs are involved; consequently, the activities of the SACs reflect the policy concerns of the States and address major problems of the criminal justice system.

The table below reflects the total number of States that either completed or continued an activity from 1992 to 1994 for each issue listed. A single activity may encompass several different issues.

ISSUE	NUMBER OF STATES			ISSUE	NUMBER OF STATES
	1994	1993	1992		1994	1993	1992
Drugs	41	33	30	Drunk Driving	20	17	9
Sentencing	36	35	25	Overcrowding	20	20	16
Police	33	36	36	Projections-Populations	19	17	13
Victims	31	26	26	Rehabilitation	18	16	11
Corrections	30	29	27	Status Offenses	18	13	12
Jail	30	27	21	Expenditures/Budget/Finance	17	15	10
Probation	30	27	23	Projections-Crime	14	13	12
Courts	28	25	22	Risk Assessment	13	10	7
Juvenile Delinquency	28	30	25	Pretrial Release	12	11	9
Prisons	28	27	18	Plea Bargaining	11	11	8
Alternatives to Incarceration	27	25	21	Community Policing	9	5	*
Crime Prevention	26	19	16	Special Populations	9	*	*
Domestic Violence	26	21	12	Traffic Safety	9	7	4
Public Attitudes	25	20	17	Bail	7	6	3
Parole	24	21	17	Bias Crime	7	7	3
Personnel/Management Issues	23	21	17	Female Crime	7	6	3
Prosecution	23	21	21	Restitution	7	7	4
Homicide	22	17	13	White Collar Crime	7	6	4
Sexual Assault	21	16	8	Missing Children	6	7	3
Child Abuse	20	14	7	Firearms	2	*	*

As seen in the table, the issue with which nearly every SAC had some involvement in 1994 was Drugs. SAC activities include data collection, treatment evaluation, and use forecasting. Issues which surround sentencing, broadly defined, Domestic Violence and juvenile involvement in crime dominated SAC activities in 1994. Sentencing and associated issues such as Corrections, Probation, and Alternatives to Incarceration, are among the eleven most commonly addressed issues in the States. Much of the work in this area is the result of States moving toward "get tough" legislation that mandates structured sentencing and punitive measures for repeat offenders. Legislation such as the "Three Strikes, You're Out" policy has a severe impact on State courts and corrections systems. SACs are often asked to forecast and study the impact of such policies.

This year JRSA surveyed the SACs about their involvement in activities related to Firearms. Only two States reported involvement in activities related to firearms; however, we expect this number to increase as more SACs become involved with related issues such as criminal history improvement programs and the impact of concealed weapons laws.

The involvement of SACs in Domestic Violence continues to grow. Increased public concern and awareness, coupled with improving reporting methods, have led politicians to call for efforts to combat this problem. SACs have been active for many years in evaluating programs aimed at reducing family violence. Such activities include examining the effects of mandatory arrest policies, implementing reporting programs, and exploring the criminal justice system's response to domestic violence.

The following table provides a summary of the issues in which each State SAC is involved.

Colorado Criminal Justice Commission

From July 1, 1989 to June 30, 1994, the Division of Criminal Justice (DCJ) staffed a Colorado Criminal Justice Commission created by the Legislature to "provide a legislative overview of and a study of . . . [Colorado's] criminal justice system . . . and to develop recommendations for legislation improving the . . . criminal justice system." The Commission was abolished by the 1994 Legislature, but a program it generated continues to address the issue of crime prevention. Efforts to fulfill the mission of a Commission-sponsored summit, Early Prevention of Crime in Colorado, continue through the work of a committee that implements the proposal to build a crime-free generation in a community through a comprehensive, 20-year commitment. The Commission published a handbook, Report to the Governor, Legislature, and Judiciary on the Criminal Justice Commission (March 1994). The Criminal Justice Commission was funded by a Drug Control and System Improvement Program Grant.

Court Data Collection

The SAC collects district court felony case data from a sample of cases filed in 1993 and 1994 respectively, in nine judicial districts. These districts represent 78% of the felony cases filed and 85% of the State's population. Data include offender demographics, offender needs, juvenile and adult criminal histories, charge and conviction offense information, sentencing and placement information, and victim information if the conviction offense is violent. Beginning with convicted cases sentenced in 1989, additional drug offense data have been collected. These data include, for both charge and conviction, a description of the offense and the type and quantity of the drug(s). The 1993 and 1994 data collections added a total of approximately 7,000 cases to the court database.

Evaluation of Cognitive Skills Program in JISP

This project is designed to accomplish a process and outcome evaluation of the Reasoning and Rehabilitation cognitive skills building program incorporated in Colorado's Juvenile Intensive Supervision Probation (JISP) curriculum. The project hopes to determine whether the cognitive skills program works for juveniles as it has been found to work for certain adult populations and, more specifically, for whom the program works best and why. Pre-test and post-test interviewing of JISP clients has been completed, and all seven process evaluation sites have agreed to participate in the process evaluation that begins next year. The project design and preliminary findings were presented at two conferences: JRSA's 1994 National Conference in October and the American Evaluation Association's annual conference in November.

Implementing and Monitoring Parole Guidelines in Colorado

The SAC was legislatively mandated to develop and maintain an actuarial risk scale for Colorado inmates. In 1994, the Actuarial Risk Scale was validated, a handbook was created to provide instruction on the Parole Guidelines Project, the Parole Guidelines forms were revised, and case managers across the State were trained. A process was begun to automate the Parole Guidelines and Risk Assessment forms. In 1994 the SAC collected data on 3,500 cases. This figure is not representative of the actual number of parole decisions made in 1994 because data collection was suspended from 7/94 through 12/94 due to complications arising from the relocation of the Parole Board offices.

Management of Special Populations: Sex Offenders

This activity is a three-phase project to determine how the nation's probation and parole agencies are responding to the increased demand for supervision and management of sex offenders. Acquiring and managing community resources and obtaining support from the State legislature are often prerequisites for replicating model programs. Accumulating both is the purpose of this project. Project phases include: (1) a content analysis of specified sex offense laws in each State; (2) a survey of a sample of the nation's probation and parole departments; and (3) a description and analysis of model processes for managing sex offenders in the community.

Sex Offender Pilot Assessment and Treatment Project

Colorado's SAC staffs the Colorado Sex Offender Treatment Board, which is mandated to develop and prescribe a standardized process for the identification and assessment of sex offenders to enhance decision making regarding supervision and/or treatment. This Drug Control and System Improvement Program (DCSIP) grant-funded project is a collaborative effort among State and local agencies and private and public sex offender treatment providers. Preliminary collection of data and information on current practice in the identification and assessment of sex offenders in Colorado has been accomplished, and an assessment subcommittee of the Sex Offender Treatment Board has been very active in its efforts to develop assessment guidelines and standards. It is expected that the final draft of assessment standards will be brought to public hearing for comment in August 1995.

Jail and Prison Population Forecast

Jail and prison population projections are calculated using a "components of change" methodology that forecasts by sex and type of crime. Criminal justice officials establish the assumptions for the forecast. In the 1995 forecast, there was special emphasis on the transition to Delaware's new "Truth in Sentencing" law (determinate sentencing) and "SENTAC," structured alternative punishments. The populations, admissions, and time served are monitored quarterly.

ILLINOIS

Ad Hoc Committee on Disposition Reporting

The Ad Hoc Committee was formed to develop immediate, coordinated, and effective solutions to problems with the State's criminal history record information (CHRI), especially that of arrest records lacking final court dispositions. Staff are supporting this mission by providing analysis of problems relating to both the reporting of CHRI by local agencies and the use of rap sheet information from the State central repository. Specific tasks include survey data analysis, interviews with CHRI repositories and users, analysis of supporting legislation and operational procedures, and assessments of the cost-effectiveness of alternative procedures and technologies. Five strategies have been implemented using Byrne funds to address the identified problem.

Drug and Violent Crime Control Strategy Impact Program

The SAC is responsible for a multifaceted evaluation initiative aimed at assessing the implementation and impact of drug control and system improvement programs in Illinois. Multiple evaluation projects supported with Federal funds are carried out through subcontracts with outside organizations. The SAC identifies the specific programs to be evaluated; requests proposals for the evaluation research; oversees the proposal submission and peer review processes; negotiates subcontracts; and monitors research progress. Among the projects are the University of Illinois at Chicago's (UIC) evaluation of community policing in the cities of Joliet and Aurora; Southern Illinois University at Carbondale's (SIUC) evaluation of the IDOC Prestart Program; Illinois State University's evaluation of substance abuse treatment programs; Loyola University of Chicago's evaluation of nuisance abatement in Cook County; Northwestern University's evaluation of community policing in Chicago; UIC and Loyola's evaluation of Intensive Probation in Illinois; SIUC's evaluation of Drug Task Forces in Illinois; and the University of Missouri—St. Louis' evaluation of the East St. Louis Anti-Drug Initiative.

Early Warning System for Street Gang Violence

The Early Warning System for Gang Violence (EWS) is a collaborative project between the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority and the Chicago Police Department (CPD), which seeks to identify geographical areas that are at high risk for violent street gang-related crimes. EWS assembles data from the CPD and the community, organizes it into an automated database called the GeoArchive, and utilizes computer-assisted methods (the Spatial and Temporal Analysis of Crime package—STAC) to summarize the data and find "Hot Spot Areas" for use in crime analysis and local decision making. The GeoArchive is organized and documented to serve as a prototype for other police departments throughout the nation.

Homicide Research

Through the Criminal Justice Archive, the Chicago Homicide Project of the Illinois SAC maintains and disseminates a 27-year (1965-92) data set of over 20,000 homicide cases in Chicago. The Homicide Data Set includes consistently defined drug- and gang-related data for all years. The SAC handles numerous requests from legislators, city and national researchers, and policy makers for analysis of this data set. In addition, the Illinois SAC has developed the Victim Level Murder (VLM) file to correct a basic problem in Supplementary Homicide Report data. The VLM for Illinois is available through 1992, and additional years will be added as they become available. SAC staff have published numerous reports, journal articles, and a book based on analyses of these data, and more work is in progress.

Internet

The Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority has undertaken an initiative to develop model Internet applications in the State and local criminal justice communities. While many public agencies have recognized the need to take part in the information revolution, few State and local criminal justice agencies are active participants, and the manner in which they will use the Internet in the future is not well defined. Successful contributors to the Internet will have to develop new paradigms for compiling and publishing data and knowledge, and new applications will have to be developed to make material more interactive. In this spirit, the SAC is working to develop a transferable model for the electronic sharing and publishing of criminal justice data and information.

Methods for Geographic Crime Analysis

When computer-aided mapping of neighborhood and crime data is combined with spatial analytical methods, it can become a powerful means to understanding the crime problems faced by law enforcement and the community. The Illinois

SAC has developed both the GeoArchive database of community and law enforcement data and the Spatial and Temporal Analysis of Crime package (STAC) to analyze crime problems in Chicago. The STAC program uses the GeoArchive data to identify the areas with most crime, or "Hot Spot Areas" (described by a standard deviational ellipse). The package also provides other geographic searches and statistics. Requests for STAC continue to increase with the improved availability of computer mapping packages and access to Census TIGER files. Users now include over 100 agencies across the nation.

Police Information Management System (PIMS)

The PIMS is an automated information system designed to provide accurate and useful information to investigators, managers, and other decision makers in small to medium-size police departments. The system maintains data on arrestees and calls for service and provides automatic reporting for Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR), access to State and national criminal justice data systems, and on-line data searches. Computerized mapping, crime analysis, and interface with mobile data terminals also are supported. ### Profile of County Criminal Justice Systems

Using a county-level database developed by the Authority in conjunction with other State agencies, profiles/overviews of every county's criminal justice system were developed. These reports examine trends in violent and property index offenses and arrests, drug arrests and drug seizures, felony court filings, sentences imposed on convicted felons, prison admissions for drug and violent offenses, probation case-loads, jail populations, substance abuse treatment admissions, and drug-exposed births. Trends in each county are compared to those in counties of similar size (e.g. rural, urban, suburban). Data can be aggregated by judicial circuit or Federal district.

STACNews is a newsletter for users and people interested in the use of Spatial and Temporal Analysis of Crime (STAC) statistical software package. With STACNews, users have a forum to share their new applications and crime analysis and problem-solving success stories with others. It presents interesting articles and research by people at the forefront of the spatial analysis of crime. Also, because STAC is used in many different environments (mapping and database software, operating systems, etc.), STACNews provides a network to link people who use the same sort of system or who are working on the same problems.

- The STAC Advisor, a regular feature of STACNews, provides answers to user questions.

- STAC in Action is a platform for users to share their problem-solving techniques, and for others to find out about innovative STAC applications that they might want to try themselves.

Child Homicide Study

In an attempt to overcome a lack of systematic, reliable data in the study of child abuse, the New Mexico SAC is studying child homicide rates using three main sources of data: police, courts, and the Coroner's Office. Homicide data are examined for the purpose of identifying groups of children that are highly at risk of child abuse and homicide.

OBTS Quality Control

This project includes a number of activities designed to contribute to the quality and completeness of Offender-Based Transaction Statistics (OBTS) data. Analysts produce periodic reports on the number of court dispositions missing from the Computerized Criminal History (CCH) database and routinely communicate to CCH managers the anomalies discovered during substantive analyses. In addition, efforts have been initiated to develop a system of edit checks for the OBTS flat files used for most analyses. These edit checks will be more rigorous than those applied to the source data posted to the CCH.

Recidivism Studies

The SAC is expanding its program of recidivism research. This research addresses two closely related aspects of recidivism. Comparative recidivism research compares recidivism rates across time periods and among sanction types, using statistical controls, experimental designs, and quasi-experimental designs to reduce selection artifacts to the extent feasible. Risk assessment research examines the association between recidivism rates and offenders' personal characteristics and criminal histories. Current research emphasizes factors associated with violent recidivism.

Research Methods

The SAC frequently develops new research methods or extends existing methods in order to expand its research capabilities. During 1992, SAC staff developed a new measure of case seriousness (based on expected days incarcerated given arrest, for each combination of offense type and prior record score), and developed a new unit of count (dubbed "concurrency ring") that treats a set of cases that overlap in time as a single, concurrent entity. The new seriousness score is used as a control variable in analyzing felony case processing trends. Both the seriousness score and concurrency rings are now being used in a study of racial disparity in felony processing.

Correctional Programs Evaluation

The substance abuse programs of the Department of Corrections were started with funds from the Anti-Drug Abuse Acts of 1986 and 1988 to meet the needs of inmates and parolees who have drug and alcohol abuse problems. About 80 percent of inmates and parolees have chemical dependency problems. Before the implementation of these programs, there were no structured chemical dependency services in the Department's penitentiary and parole programs. The evaluation of the substance abuse programs collects demographic and programmatic data on the participants along with 3- and 12-month follow-up information. These data are linked to criminal history and penitentiary information, yielding a database that will provide an accurate assessment of the effectiveness of the programs.

UCR Design (IBR)

This project will establish Incident-Based Reporting (IBR) in South Dakota. Under this system, the State will add more data elements than the FBI's 53 required elements. Because of the detailed nature of the data, collection will need to be automated primarily in the transmissions from local law enforcement to State agencies. This project will assist local agencies by training officers in the collection of the necessary data and by supporting those agencies in establishing automated systems to maintain the data. The project will involve the development of the State-level system to accommodate the transmissions of data from local agencies and the statistical manipulation of the data.

Criminal Justice Information System Implementation

The SAC develops the strategy and oversees the implementation of the Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS), which links the Computerized Criminal History (CCH) and Correctional Tracking System (CTS) to track offenders through the criminal justice system. Electronic reporting linkages with counties also are being developed to improve court disposition information and to update the State records more effectively. To thoroughly review implementation and build a consensus with State policy makers, the Criminal Justice Policy Council conducted a workshop and organized technical groups to work on the design and implementation of CJIS. In 1992 the Criminal Justice Policy Council, in conjunction with the Texas Department of Public Safety and the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, hosted three regional public hearings to address local issues concerning CJIS implementation.

Justice Model

The SAC developed a PC-DOS-based, discrete event simulation model called JUSTICE, for the adult corrections system. The model works with computerized records of prisoners and parolees to replicate the movement of offenders through the system. The key characteristics in each offender's record (for example, offense and sentence) determine the flow of the offender through the system by triggering certain rules or laws (such as parole eligibility). Simulating the movement of every inmate currently incarcerated and every inmate expected to enter prison over the next 10 years provides accurate projections of the jail backlog, prison, and parole populations. The model also integrates a probation model using aggregate data to project the probation population under supervision. Subroutines in the model, representing specific levels of detail, allow for comprehensive "what if" systemic simulations. JUSTICE provides the SAC with the modeling capabilities.
