ACQUISITIONS

This bulletin contains information concerning 3,097 males and 139 females residing in Wisconsin adult correctional institutions on June 30, 1976. Males were housed in the Wisconsin State Prison, Wisconsin State Reformatory, Wisconsin Correctional Institution, Kettle Moraine Correctional Institution, Taycheedah Correctional Institution, and nine camps of the Wisconsin Correctional Camp System. Women resided in Taycheedah Correctional Institution and one camp facility, Women's Community Center.

The Wisconsin Home for Women started housing men in addition to the women on July 21, 1975. Having become coeducational, the name was changed to Taycheedah Correctional Institution effective April 9, 1976. The following changes were made in the camp system: Oak Hill (formerly the Wisconsin School for Girls) opened for men on June 23, 1976. Union Grove closed for men on June 25, 1976, and Women's Community Center opened for women on April 9, 1976.

Adult correctional institution populations increased in the last year by 14.2 percent for men and 27.5 percent for women. The number of residents of each sex reached a five-year high for this semi-annual report.

Table 3, showing offenses for which residents were committed, contains additional categories starting with this bulletin. The current list separates first degree murder from second and third degree combined. Attempted murder has been distinguished as a separate reported offense. These offenders were tallied in either "murder" or "all other" in previous bulletins. This may make some comparisons difficult, but it is hoped that it will aid future offense studies.

The former category of "robbery" has become "robbery (armed)" and "robbery (unarmed)." Direct comparisons can be made to previous publications by adding the armed and unarmed groups of this and future tables. The percent of male residents committed for armed or unarmed robbery has increased a dramatic 6.8 percentage points over this five-year interval. They now are 26.8 percent of the institutional population. Robbery has also increased significantly as the offense for which females were admitted.

The offense "abandonment" was formerly called "non-support."

Variations in percentage of residents having served less than six months and six months less than one year do not represent any meaningful trend, other than to reflect the rise in total population. Male residents who have served less than two years continue to represent about three-quarters of the male institutional population during this five-year period. Females who have resided less than two years constitute approximately 90 percent of their institutional populations. Male and female time in institution differences are a reflection of differing median length of sentence.

The percentage of residents who entered an institution as new admissions has increased steadily over the last five years. Newly-admitted males were 75 percent of the male institutional population on June 30, 1972, and currently represent 83.6 percent, which appears to indicate a significant decline in returns from parole or mandatory release. Female new admissions similarly increased from 89.3 percent on June 30, 1972 to 93.5 percent of their population on June 30, 1976.

Percent of non-white residents has increased in the last five years by 4.4 percentage points to make the male population 40.7 percent non-white, and by 5.4 percentage points to make the female population 55.4 percent non-white on June 30, 1976. This is due partially to the increasing percentage of residents who were committed from Milwaukee County, and also to the longer sentences for non-whites, compared to whites. Males committed from Milwaukee County currently represent 50.3 percent and females 61.9 percent of their respective populations.

Of as much significance can be the category that changed least over time, the median length of sentence. Males have an almost unchangeable 5.9 year median sentence, females have a lower and slightly more variable 3.8 year median sentence.

The reader should be especially aware that percentages within female resident categories can vary widely from year to year due to the small numbers of females. A change of one client can change totals a whole percentage point, as the female population over the last five years has ranged only from 73 to 139 residents. More significance can be attached to trends within male populations, which are based on 1,985 to 3,097 residents.
