FOREWARD N CJRS

HISTORY OF THE OFFICE OF JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

APR 15 1977

The office of Justice of the Peace was established in 1362 A. D. by King Edward III of England. The office of Justice of the Peace is credited with completing the centralization of government in England. The office of Justice of the Peace is an integral part of the Anglo-American system of jurisprudence. For three hundred years, the English Justices of the Peace contributed immeasurably, through police, administrative and judicial functions, to the final supremacy of the lawmaking body of England.

As the American Colonies were being founded, one of the first offices established by the King was that of Justice of the Peace. In the colonial setting, the primary function of the justice was to establish and maintain order. The Americanized Justice of the Peace Court expanded to include taking acknowledgments, performing marriages, and taking depositions. The Justice of the Peace quickly became a man of recognized standing in the community.

This tradition of a "grass roots" court was quickly instituted when Texas became a republic. With a sparse population and the need for a decentralized government, the office of Justice of the Peace became an integral part of the young Republic's government. The Constitution of the Republic, written in 1836, specified that a "convenient number of Justices of the Peace" were to be elected in each county by the qualified voters for a term of two years.

In the 1876 Constitution of the State of Texas, Article Five, Section One, the office of Justice of the Peace was again established as a court in which judicial power was vested. Section Nineteen of Article Five held that:

"Justices of the Peace shall have jurisdiction in criminal matters of all cases where the penalty or fine to be imposed by law may not be more than two hundred dollars and in civil matters of all cases where the amount in controversy is two hundred dollars or less, exclusive of interest, of which exclusive, original jurisdiction is not given to the District or County Courts; and such other jurisdiction, criminal and civil, as may be provided by law,..."

Additionally, Article 2.09 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure (CCP) defines "magistrates" to include the Justices of the Peace. The duty of a magistrate is defined in Article 2.10 of the C. C. P. as "...to preserve the peace within his jurisdiction by the use of all lawful means; to issue all process intended to aid in preventing and suppressing crime, to cause the arrest of offenders by the use of lawful means in order that they may be brought to punishment."

Thus, the added responsibility of magistrate's duties greatly increases the responsibility of a Texas Justice of the Peace.

Today, there are approximately nine hundred and twenty Justice of the Peace Courts in the State of Texas. Of this number, approximately six percent of these are staffed with attorney justices.

The Justice of the Peace Court affords our citizenry with a valuable and readily accessible forum for the impartial adjudication of minor conflicts. Approximately ninety-five percent of our citizenry, who have contact with our court system either appear only in a Justice of the Peace Court or Municipal Court. Thus, the lower courts are paramount in the attitudinal perception which our citizens develop of our entire court system.

As the majority of Justices of the Peace assume office with a minimum of legal or administrative skills, the Texas Legislature amended Article 5972 of the Texas Revised Civil Statutes to include the requirement that all non-attorney Justices of the Peace complete, on a yearly basis, a course in the performance of his duties. Since this training requirement became effective in 1971, the Justice Court Training Center has been providing the vehicle for the accomplishment of this requirement. The Training Center, a branch of Southwest Texas State University, provides the only recognized program which satisfies the training requirement set out by the Texas Legislature.

This 1977 Justice Court Directory is designed to assist members of our criminal justice community in identifying and locating particular justices. Great efforts have been made to insure the accuracy of this directory. However, with such a large population, some degree of error can be anticipated in the identification of its members. This is however, the most complete listing available.
