

INMATE WORK RELEASE PROGRAM
1968-1975

MINNESOTA
DEPARTMENT
CORRECTIONS

The Minnesota Work Release Program for felons began in September 1967. The program permits adult and youthful offenders in correctional institutions to attend school or work in the "open community" while living in the institution or community corrections facilities during non-working hours. The primary objective of the program is to ease the difficult transition from the dependency of institutional life to acceptance of individual responsibility and independence in the "free community".

The program does not operate under any specialized treatment modality but does offer individual and group counseling, along with instruction in money management, within the main Work Release Center. Goals within the program include assisting clients to secure employment or training, directing them to appropriate community resources for assistance in problem areas and helping them become financially independent of others when they are released on parole.

In 1973, with the financial assistance through an LEAA grant for Project Reentry, the Department of Corrections was able to move the Work Release Program from County Jail settings to a Community Corrections Center known as Reentry Center, located in the Salvation Army Men's Social Service Center in Minneapolis. With this move, greater flexibility in individual treatment programming has been made possible.

Although the major number of inmates taking advantage of Work Release come to the Twin City area, the program does operate on a statewide basis. The Department of Corrections has developed some Work Release housing contracts with community corrections centers outside of the Metropolitan area. However, because of the shortage of such centers in rural areas, most participants on release to the rural area reside in county jails.

Inmates who wish to enter the program make application to the Program Director. They may apply at any time during a given institution time continuance but must be eligible for release on parole at the end of that continuance. If accepted for the program their request for Work Release status is brought before the Minnesota Corrections Board for their review and action.

Applicants are screened against the following criteria and may be excluded if one or more conditions exist.

- A. Persons with escape records
- B. Persons with hardcore drug or alcohol use histories
- C. Persons with repetitive assaultive histories
- D. Persons with detainers from other jurisdictions
- E. Persons doing expiration on their sentence
- F. Persons who do not volunteer for the program
- G. Persons with physical or mental infirmities that would severely limit their ability to work
- H. Persons whose institution work records and program achievement records indicate a lack of relatively sustained effort at self-improvement

Clients that are accepted are required to sign a treatment contract with both the Program Staff and the MCB. The contract outlines the rules and regulations under which they must conduct themselves and any special treatment programming in which they must participate. Special treatment may consist of programming in alcohol or drug therapy, mental health therapy, family counseling, financial management training or others.

While on the program, clients can earn certain recreational pass and weekend furlough privileges by positive individual progress on the program. Positive progress or lack of progress are reported to the MCB and directly affects the length of time clients spend on the program. The minimum period on the program is 90 days.

Each client at the Reentry Center meets with his counselor on a daily basis and with the program director once a week in staffing. During the director staffings individual programming is reviewed and altered or expanded as needed.

Fulltime employment or training is expected of each client and they are required to contribute to partial payment of their daily room and board costs. Minnesota Work Release Law required that all paychecks be deposited in the State Treasury and credited to the Work Release account, subject to disbursement by the Commissioner of Corrections for the following purposes and in the following order:

- (1) The cost of such inmate's keep as determined by the provision of subdivision 7, which monies shall be deposited in the general fund of the state treasury if such inmate is housed in a state correctional institution, or shall be paid to the appropriate city or county treasurer if such inmate is housed in a city or county facility;
- (2) Necessary travel expense to and from work and other incidental expenses of the inmate;
- (3) Support of inmate's dependents, if any;
- (4) After the above expenditures, the inmate shall have discretion to direct payment of the balance, if any, upon proper proof of personal legal debts;
- (5) The balance, if any, shall be disbursed to the inmate as provided in section 243.24, subdivision 1.

The Work Release Program in Minnesota has been a successful program from the standpoint of reducing costs of incarceration. It has also been a valuable alternative to releasing inmates on parole when intensive surveillance and supervision is indicated as being needed.

The following tables describe specific characteristics of inmates that have participated in the program since its inception. Characteristics for the first five years of operation have been compiled in one column headed 1968 - 1972. Information on an individual breakdown of each of those years was reported in "Work Release for Felons -- A Summary of Five Years Experience". That report was published in March 1973 by the Minnesota Department of Corrections Research, Information & Data Systems Unit.

PROGRAM COSTS

Calendar Year	Total Cost	Number of Participants	Number of Days of Care	Participant Cost per Day of Care	Per Client Cost
1973	159,836	151	9,788	16.33	1,058.00
1974	229,313	136	10,376	22.10	1,686.00
1975	292,001	100	8,398	34.77	2,920.00

Costs are composed of salaries paid employees, travel and subsistence for these employees, support for work releasees either while out of work or to supplement income and for supplies for unit operations. Part of the costs for 1974-1975 was also incurred through the operation of the Lino Lakes Pre-Release Program. All salary and travel expense for the Pre-Release Program Director was paid from the above program cost. Some Pre-Release clients also spent weekends at the Reentry Center but their days of care were not included in the above figure. Thus the cost of care per day is somewhat inflated for fulltime program participants.

The above table details the annual costs. Daily costs of incarceration during fiscal year 1973-1974 for the State Prison were 19.42 and for the State Reformatory for Men were 25.76. During fiscal year 1974-1975 State Prison costs were 25.41 and State Reformatory for Men costs were 30.48.

In addition, it must be noted that clients on Work Release contribute to their room and board, family support, pay taxes and generally are a contributing member to the community's economy.
