Court Management Statistics was initiated, as a separate publication, upon the recommendation of the Judicial Conference Subcommittee on Judicial Statistics which determined what facts about court workload best reflected docket conditions and judgeship needs. While continuing to assist the judiciary in identifying judgeship needs, this publication has found wide usage by persons concerned with the workload of the federal courts. In addition to case filings and termination data, median time intervals are shown for disposition of cases and national and circuit rankings on several indices are provided.

The report on juror utilization has served a larger purpose as the district courts continue to find the best method for utilizing citizens called to the court to serve on either a grand or petit jury. This report was first published in 1971 in response to the institution of a juror utilization reporting system pursuant to a resolution of the Judicial Conference in 1970. In 1974, grand juror utilization statistics were added and in the coming year ending June 30, 1980, statistics will be provided on petit juror utilization by U.S. bankruptcy judges in jury trials rising out of or related to bankruptcy proceedings.

Obviously, the sum total of all data collected by the Administrative Office from circuit and district judges, bankruptcy judges, magistrates, federal public and community defenders, probation officers and clerks of court cannot appear in this report. A vast statistical collection system with instructions for completing each of thirty statistical forms, prescribed either by Judicial Conference resolution or by statute, generate considerable information, much of which is retained on magnetic tape on computerized systems operated by the Division of Information Systems.

Indeed, this year we have initiated direct access to the mainframe computer starting with the bankruptcy reporting system. As equipment and funds permit, all programs will be linked directly to the main computer thus saving many hours of computer processing and further improving the quality and currency of judicial workload statistics.

JUDICIAL BUSINESS

Courts of Appeals

After a slight decline of 1.0 percent in 1978 over 1977, the filings of cases in the courts of appeals rose sizeably in 1979, up 6.9 percent over 1978. Comparing the number of filings in 1940, the first year of the Administrative Office, to 1979, the increase in filings was 487 percent while the number of authorized judgeships increased 132 percent. These data, in addition to disposition and pending statistics,can be seen in the accompanying Table 1.

Dispositions by the courts of appeals rose to 18,928 or 6.9 percent above last year; however, the increase in filings offset this record, resulting in another record high number of 17,939 cases pending in the courts of appeals. This was greater by 7.8 percent than the 16,648 cases pending a year ago.

Most of the numerical increase in filings were cases rising from the criminal and civil decisions in the district courts. When 1979 is compared to 1978, however, there was a sizeable upsurge of appeals from administrative agency decisions. These rose from 2,382 in 1978 to 2,922 in 1979, an increase of 22.7percent.

None of the 35 new court of appeals judgeships were filled as of June 30, 1979. These, plus vacancies under the prior authorizations, resulted in 38 vacancies overall on June 30, 1979. The status of courts of appeals judgeships as of June 30, 1979, is shown in Table 2.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS FOR THE TWELVE-MONTH PERIOD ENDING JUNE 30, 1979

TO THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE UNITED STATES, CHAIRMAN; AND MEMBERS OF THE JUDICIAL CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED STATES

Pursuant to provisions of section 604(a)(3) of Title 28, United States Code, I have the honor to report herewith on the activities of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts and the business of the courts for the twelve-month period ending June 30, 1979.

With this annual report, the Administrative Office completes virtually forty years of activity. The Administrative Office of the United States Courts was created by the Act of August 7, 1939 (53 Stat. 1223; U.S. Code, Title 28 Sections 444-450). The Act took effect by its terms on November 6, 1939, and the first Director, Henry Chandler, qualified and took office on December 1, 1939.

In its forty years, the Administrative Office has developed from two divisions handling the financial matters and statistics on the workload of the courts, plus a small staff exercising general supervision of the federal probation system, to eleven divisions, five of which are program divisions: Bankruptcy, Clerks, Magistrates, Criminal Justice Act and Probation. The six remaining: Administrative Services, Financial Management, Information Systems, Management Review, Personnel and Statistical Analysis and Reports, are support and service divisions for the federal judiciary, as are the Office of the General Counsel and the Legislative Affairs Office.

This fortieth annual report provides a summary statement on the growth of the workload in the courts of appeals and the district courts for the years 1940-1979 with amplified discussion regarding statistics for 1979.

After the summary on the judicial workload, significant developments in the impact of the field of judicial administration are discussed such as the Omnibus Judgeship Bill of 1978, the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 and other legislation.

The purpose of these annual reports goes beyond carrying out a statutory obligation. They are designed to inform, highlight and provide a record for the judiciary and for students of the courts. These annual reports, because of their continuity as well as their detailed statistics, provide a written account of the stewardship of the workload of the courts upon which far-reaching policy decisions can be made not only within the judiciary but by the Congress and the Executive agencies.

In addition to this annual report, several other reports have been issued in the past year in response to an ever-increasing requirement for better management information. Thus, three reports which summarized twelve months of workload information were published for September 30, 1978, December 31, 1978 and March 31, 1979. In each of these reports, entitled Federal Judicial Workload Statistics, highlights are provided ranging from civil rights and prisoner petitions to the downturn in criminal filings in the district courts. These reports assured that any change in workload could be easily identified, however subtle. Further, they give information to various users such as agencies of the federal government and state court administrators, information which could be identified in any one of the twelve-months reports. Thus, this year a "rolling" twelve-months report was introduced which essentially adds three months of data and drops the first three months of statistics each time it is published.

Two other reports of special significance to the judiciary are Court Management Statistics and Juror Utilization, both of which were first published in 1971.

District Courts

A development to be noted is the change in two districts in Illinois with the implementation of the Federal District Court Organization Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-409) beginning April 1, 1979. The counties in the former Southern and Eastern Districts of Illinois have been reorganized as of April 1, 1979, into the Central District, with court authorized to be held at Danville, Peoria, Quincy, Rock Island and Springfield, and the new Southern District with court authorized to be held at Alton, Benton, Cairo and East St. Louis.

The Omnibus Judgeship Act of 1978 added 117 new judgeships to the district courts raising the total authorized to 516 district judgeships. Overall there were 119 vacancies on June 30, 1979. Nineteen vacancies existed from former authorized judgeships and 100 vacancies existed in connection with the new positions provided in the 1978 Omnibus Judgeship Act.

Civil Cases

Overall the volume of civil litigation filed in district courts rose 15,896 cases or 11.5 percent over 1978. These 154,666 filings, the largest number on record, were 77.1 percent greater than in 1970 and 160.9 percent higher than in 1960 with an average yearly growth of 8.0 percent in the 20-year period. Compared to 1940, civil filings rose by more than 345 percent.

The substantial improvement in civil cases closed during the year did not offset the increase in filings, resulting in another record pending caseload of 177,805.

The increase in the authorized judgeships reduced the filing caseload per judgeship to 300, the first drop since 1970, the year of the previous Omnibus Judgeship Act. During each succeeding year the per-judgeship caseload has increased.

The federal government continued to increase its litigation as the plaintiff, first noted last year. In 1979 there were 31,003 civil suits commenced by the federal government, 37.6 percent greater than a year ago and 90.0 percent greater than in 1977. The number of cases with the federal government as a defendant was almost unchanged, up 2.3 percent. In 1979, civil suits where the basis of jurisdiction was diversity climbed by 9.1 percent. These cases comprise 22.3 percent of all civil cases filed. Cases filed under federal question jurisdiction rose 6.7 percent.

Leading the increase in civil filings were the 9,254 suits for recovery of over-payments and enforcement of judgments. In 1978, there were only 1,856 such filings and 865 in 1977. Most of the cases were instituted by the federal government to recover loans to students.

Other increases noted were:

- Foreclosures increased to 4,711 compared to 4,159 in 1978.
- Filings involving personal injury rose to 23,956 compared to 21,946 in 1978.
- Personal property damage suits were up to 4,945, or 11.7 percent more than 4,429 such cases in 1978.
- Suits brought under provisions of the Labor Management Relations Act rose to 4,119 or by 8.0 percent compared to 3,812 in 1978. Other labor litigation rose to 2,097 compared to 1,643 in 1978 and 1,436 in 1977. Some of these were age discrimination suits which, pursuant to Section 2 of the President's Reorganization Plan No. 1 and Executive Order 12144 of June 22, 1979, will be transferred to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and in the future will be statistically recorded as civil rights "Employment Discrimination" cases.
- Tax suits rose to 3,519 filings, 31.8 percent over 2,669 such filings in 1978.
- Three types of civil suits which in 1979 comprised 30.8 percent of all filings and 27.5 percent of all pending civil cases continue to rise. These are prisoner petitions, civil rights and social security cases.

Criminal Cases

The district courts experienced a continued decline in criminal cases filed. The decrease may undoubtedly be attributed in large measure to the policy announced by the Attorney General in November 1977, directing the federal crime program primarily to organized crime, narcotics, public corruption and white-collar crime. Further, the reduction of prosecutions of bank robbers by turning offenders over to state authorities, along with the diversion of juveniles to the states, has contributed to the substantial decline in the criminal caseload.

Implementation of provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 resulted in an increased rate of dispositions. At the close of the year the number of pending criminal cases dropped to 15,124 or 4.6 percent less than the 15,847 pending criminal cases recorded last year and the lowest number in the decade of the 1970's. A discussion of the statistical impact of the Speedy Trial Act for the interim years 1976, 1977 and 1978 are the subject of a separate report to Congress.

Proceedings commenced by indictment have declined by about 4,000 over last year, whereas proceedings begun by an information remained almost constant. Proceedings under the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act numbered only 78 compared to 120 last year and 1,000 in the early 1970's. Defendants choosing to be tried by a magistrate dropped slightly to 1,114 cases compared to 1,396 in 1978.

The prosecution of white-collar crime began to show with a modest 0.7 percent increase in embezzlement and fraud cases. New case filings for violation of extortion and racketeering statutes increased by 19.0 percent to 376 in 1979 from 316 in 1978. Other offenses showing an increase in prosecutions in 1979 were income tax violations up by 6.1 percent; postal fraud, up 29.7 percent; and immigration violations, up 7.8 percent.

Offenses with substantial declines in filings include auto theft, down 50.7 percent, thus continuing the policy of the Department of Justice of prosecuting vehicle theft where it is connected to organized criminal activity and diverting the joy-rider to state authorities.

To some extent the reduction of narcotic drug violations represents the effort of the Department of Justice to reach the main manufacturer and distributor of illicit drugs with somewhat less emphasis on the small street operator. Also, the long campaign by both state and federal authorities in reducing drug traffic reached its pinnacle in the early 1970's with a substantial number of violators receiving long prison sentences. Thus, drug law violators in Bureau of Prisons institutions in 1970 numbered 16 out of 100 prisoners, whereas in 1979 there were 25 prisoners serving terms for drug related offenses out of each 100 incarcerated.

Other offenses with declines in filings were weapons and firearms, down 60.7 percent or 1,209 filings compared to 3,076 in 1978; prosecutions for forgery declined by 28.7 percent to 2,418 compared to 3,393 a year ago; and bank robbery cases filed in district courts dropped 17.6 percent to 1,066 compared to 1,293 bank robberies filed in 1978.

Juror Utilization in the U.S. District Courts - Petit Jury

The topic of efficient juror management has been of continuing interest to the Judicial Conference. At its September 1941 meeting the Judicial Conference established a committee of five district judges to investigate the need to improve methods of jury selection in United States courts and further, it authorized the recently established Administrative Office to conduct a study of the jury system especially in regard to economy in the selection and service of jurors.

Since that time the Administrative Office has intermittently published figures on the participation of jurors and the cost of juries in the federal courts.

From 1953 through 1963 the Administrative Office collected statistics on the number of petit jurors available for service on jury selection days and the number of jurors reporting for trials which had started on previous days. The collection of this information on the JS-11 reporting form was discontinued in 1964.

For several years there was no collection of juror usage statistics. As the cost of the jury system increased, this lack of information was particularly critical. In March 1970 the Judicial Conference approved the recommendation of the Committee on the Operation of the Jury System to reinstate petit juror reporting on a revised JS-11 form. The first statistics collected on the new form were published in the 1971 Annual Report of the Director and in a new annual publication, Juror Utilization in United States Courts.

The table, "National Petit Juror Usage," provides the breakdown of total available prospective jurors for all districts for the twelve-month periods ended June 30, 1971 through 1979. Total available jurors increased 10.4 percent from 512,553 in 1971 to 565,617 in 1979. In 1979 the percentage of prospective jurors who were selected for or served on jury trials decreased for the first time in the nine years of data collection on the revised JS-11 form. The percentage of jurors who were challenged for cause or peremptorily by counsel rose to 16.2 percent, considerably higher than the 1971 figure of 12.9 percent. Jurors falling into the category of not selected, serving or challenged include jurors who live at great distances from the courthouse and must travel to the place of holding court on the days before and after jury service. The percentage of jurors in the category of not selected, serving or challenged increased to 24.6 percent in 1979 up from 24.0 percent in 1978.

This table also shows that the number of jury trial days rose 31.2 percent from 21,990 in 1971 to 28,851 in 1979, an increase of 6,861 days. When 1979 is compared with other years, however, the number of jury trial days has declined steadily for the past three years from the 1976 level of 30,032 days. The percentage of criminal trial days continues to decline from a high of 59.3 percent in 1976 to the 1979 level of 52.6 percent.

Finally, the Juror Usage Index (J.U.I.) for the last nine years is provided in the accompanying table. The J.U.I. is the average number of jurors on hand for each jury trial day and is calculated by dividing the total available jurors by the total number of jury trial days. The nationwide J.U.I. recorded in 1979 was 19.60. This is a slight increase over the 1978 J.U.I. of 19.51, but is significantly lower than the 1971 J.U.I. of 23.31.

Grand Jury

As the result of a continuing concern for improving juror management, the Judicial Conference in April 1973 recognized that the Administrative Office did not maintain adequate statistical records to determine whether or not grand jurors were being utilized efficiently. The Judicial Conference then adopted the policy that the clerk of each district court maintain statistical records on grand juries within the district to determine if utilization characteristics for the federal grand jury system could be developed. As a result of this action, the Grand Jury Reporting System for the district courts was instituted in January 1974 by the Committee on the Operation of the Jury System, a committee of the Judicial Conference. The testing of this program was conducted in all district courts from January through June 1974, with full implementation occurring on July 1, 1974. The results of the first full year of collection of statistical data on all federal grand juries were presented in the 1975 Annual Report of the Director and the 1975 Juror Utilization Report. The data collected through this reporting program has provided substantial information on the characteristics of federal grand juries and the utilization of persons called for grand jury duty.

Grand jury activity in the district courts, as measured by the number of grand jury sessions convened, has increased steadily in the past five years. The accompanying table, "Grand Juror Statistics", summarizes national trends in juror utilization for the years ended June 30, 1975 through 1979. The total number of grand jury sessions rose a substantial 24.8 percent from 7,846 in 1975 to 9,791 in 1979. Correspondingly, the number of jurors in session climbed from 156,167 in 1975 to 194,168 in 1979, and the number of hours in session increased by 9,475 or 22.9 percent. These increases are partially attributable to efforts to meet the mandates of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 which require that a defendant be indicted within certain time limits and to the increase in the calling of special grand juries pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3331.

The total number of grand juries in existence rose 18.2 percent from 570 in 1975 to 674 in 1979. The 1979 figure is the highest for the five years of this reporting program. The number of grand juries impaneled in 1979 remained high at 311. For the second year in a row there was a decrease in the number of grand juries discharged, indicating that the lifetime of a grand jury is on the increase.

The table also shows the average number of jurors for each session convened as well as the average number of hours for each session. In order to conduct a session of the grand jury there must be between 16 and 23 grand jurors present. Nationally, the average number of grand jurors per session ranged from 19.9 in 1975 to 19.8 in 1979. The average number of hours per session has varied only slightly over the five-year period and stood at 5.20 hours in 1979.

United States Magistrates

The tenth anniversary of the signing of the Federal Magistrates Act of 1968 occurred on October 17, 1978. During the year ended June 30, 1979, United States magistrates continued to provide increasing assistance to the district courts under that legislation. Although the total number of matters handled by magistrates declined slightly from 297,561 last year to 292,179 this year, a drop of 1.8 percent, magistrates are performing an increasing number of the more time consuming "additional duties" under 28 U.S.C. 636(b). The changing volume and nature of services rendered by magistrates during the last four years, and since the first full year of nationwide operation of the system, is reflected in Table 10.

United States magistrates now assist the district judges in expediting civil and criminal litigation in the great majority of the 92 district courts covered by the Federal Magistrates Act. During the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979, for example, magistrates in 74 districts filed written reports and recommendations for disposition of 12,062 prisoner petitions. Magistrates conducted 24,231 civil pretrial conferences for the judges in 77 district courts. In 77 districts they reviewed 34,311 motions in civil cases, of which 4,361 were dispositive matters in which magistrates submitted full reports and recommended decisions under 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B). In addition, magistrates filed reports and recommendations on 4,074 social security appeals in 68 districts.

In criminal cases, magistrates in 84 districts conducted 19,329 arraignments following indictment under Rule 10 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. There were 950 final hearings on probation revocation in 65 districts conducted by magistrates and 1,914 separate sessions in which grand juries returned indictments to magistrates in 72 districts. Magistrates also conducted 3,784 pretrial conferences or omnibus hearings in 49 districts and reviewed 11,185 motions in 75 districts, of which 1,604 were dispositive matters in which magistrates submitted a full report and recommended resolution under 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B).

The 1976 jurisdictional amendments to the Federal Magistrates Act (Public Law 95-577) broadened and clarified the jurisdiction of magistrates. In particular, that law authorizes magistrates to conduct evidentiary hearings on criminal and civil pretrial matters and prisoner petitions. The Act also encourages the designation of magistrates to serve as special masters and to try civil cases on the consent of the parties.

A new table, M-5, reflecting the initial implementation of the 1976 amendments has been included in the appendix of this report. The 3,006 trials and other evidentiary proceedings conducted by magistrates in 78 districts during the year ended June 30, 1979 provided significant assistance to the district judges. These proceedings, moreover, are in addition to other evidentiary matters, such as minor and petty offenses and preliminary proceedings in felony cases, which magistrates also heard.

Additional statistics and discussion of matters handled by U.S. magistrates appear in the Workload Statistics section of this report.

Probation

In 1979 the number of persons received for supervision by the Federal Probation System decreased by 969 or 2.8 percent from the previous year. For persons under supervision at the end of the year there were decreases of 5.2 percent in probationers from courts and 2.2 percent from magistrates. Parole cases were up 8.0 percent; pretrial diversion, up 4.6 percent; and mandatory release, up 5.8 percent. Special parole cases increased 13.6 percent.

The probation system also prepared 109,172 investigative reports in 1979. Of this number, 26,338 were presentence investigation reports ordered by the court. This represents a substantial reduction from the preceding year.

BANKRUPTCY WORKLOAD

In the twelve months ending June 30, 1979, a total of 226,476 bankruptcy cases of all types was filed. This is a numerical increase of 23,525 cases and a percentage increase of 11.6 percent from the 1978 total. The number represents the fourth largest increase in bankruptcy filings in a single year.

The following Table 15 shows bankruptcy cases filed since 1948, the first year under the Referees' Salary Act and illustrates the cyclical nature of bankruptcy filings which has occurred since 1967.

All circuits except the First and Second registered increases in filings. The greatest numerical increase was in the Ninth Circuit which increased by 6,202 cases with the Sixth Circuit following with an increase of 6,112 cases. The Sixth Circuit had a twenty percent increase in filings which was the largest percentage increase of any circuit.

Business bankruptcies declined in 1979 from 30,528 in 1978 to 29,500 in 1979, a drop of 1,028 cases. The number filed in 1979 represents the fifth largest number of business bankruptcy cases ever filed. The ratio of business bankruptcies to total filings dropped to 13 percent, while the non-business filings increased to 87.0 percent.

Table 17 shows that the highest percentages of business cases relative to total workload occurred in the First, Second and Third circuits. The Ninth Circuit has by far the greatest number of business cases, with the Fifth Circuit second.

In 1979, there was an increase in voluntary straight bankruptcy cases of 8.7 percent. There were, however, decreases in all of the special relief chapters, viz. IX, X, XI and Section 77 (railroad reorganizations), except for Chapter XII which increased from 650 to 669 cases and Chapter XIII which had a 30.7 percent increase or a numerical increase of 9,257 cases.

The following Table 18 shows the number of business and non-business cases filed and the percent each group bears to the total filings over the past eleven years.

Filings by chapter of the Bankruptcy Act for the past ten years, and increases or decreases in 1979 from the prior year are shown below in Table 19.

A total of 209,316 cases was closed in 1979. This is a decrease of 7,417 from 1978 and left 258,168 cases pending on June 30, 1979, an increase of 18,021 from the number pending a year earlier.

JUDICIAL ADMINISTRATION

Legislation

Several new laws impacted upon the federal judiciary during the year: the Omnibus Judgeship Bill, the Bankruptcy Deconsolidation Act, the Civil Service Reform Act, the Ethics in Government Act, the Bankruptcy Reform Act, the Federal Pay Comparability Adjustment and the Court Interpreters Act.

In connection with the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, the Division of Personnel established regulations and procedures for providing the Ethics Committee of the Judicial Conference with monthly reports on judicial officers and judicial employees affected by the Act; developed procedures for assuring that each newly appointed individual affected by the Act is provided with the necessary forms to be filled out and returned to the Ethics Committee; generated procedures for furnishing forms and information to individuals promoted into a pay category requiring filings; and formulated procedures for furnishing forms and information on a timely basis to individuals covered by the Act who leave the employ of the Judicial Branch.

In October 1978, the Congress passed the 1978 Omnibus Judgeship Bill creating the largest number of additional judgeships ever in a single bill. The new Act, Public Law 95-486, signed by the President on October 20, 1978, authorized 117 additional judgeships for the district courts (including four to be appointed on a temporary basis) and 35 additional judgeships for the courts of appeals.

The provisions of Public Law 95-486 relating to additional judgeships for the courts of appeals followed the March 1977 recommendations of the Judicial Conference except that one judgeship recommended for the District of Columbia Circuit was not approved and eleven judgeships not recommended by the Conference were approved for the Fifth Circuit. The accompanying table shows the number of additional courts of appeals judgeships created by Public Law 95-486 and the number created in the three previous judgeship acts. The 1978 Act increased the authorized judgeships on the courts of appeals to 132 compared to 97 prior to the Act.

The district judgeship provisions of the new Act followed the September 1976 recommendations of the Judicial Conference except that one temporary judgeship recommended for the Southern District of Florida was not approved and eleven judgeships were added which were not recommended by the Judicial Conference. These included: one judgeship in Maine, one in New Jersey, one in the Western District of North Carolina, one temporary in the Southern District of West Virginia, one in the Eastern District of Kentucky, one temporary in the Northern District of Ohio, one in the Northern District of Illinois, one in the Eastern District of Wisconsin, one temporary in Minnesota, and one in Utah.

The accompanying table shows the number of district judgeships created by Public Law 95-486 and the number created by the three previous judgeship acts of 1970, 1966 and 1961. The 1978 Act increased the authorized judgeships in the district courts to 516 compared to 399 previously authorized.

The Omnibus Judgeship Act also contains two sections of importance to judicial administration. It provides fifteen positions at grades 16, 17 and 18 in the Administrative Office. Taken in context with other legislation, this provides the Administrative Office with its own supergrade positions unrelated to the program established for the Executive Branch. This program was implemented in April 1979.

The Act also provides that any court of appeals having more than fifteen active judges may constitute itself into administrative units complete with such facilities and staff as may be prescribed by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts and may perform its en banc function by such number of members of its en banc courts as may be prescribed by rule of the courts of appeals. This section had not been implemented as of the end of the statistical year, June 30, 1979.

Personnel

In addition to the manifold tasks created for it by the Omnibus Judgeship Act, the legislation affecting the bankruptcy system impacted heavily on the Division of Personnel during the year in deconsolidating clerks' offices, changing criteria for classification of personnel, and computing annuities.

During 1979, the Division of Personnel began its second phase of the Judiciary Salary Plan review. Almost half of the initially targeted representative district and circuit courts have been visited and an interim report has been assembled for review by program divisions.

In connection with the Civil Service Reform Act, interim procedures for reduction in grade or removal for unacceptable performance, and a proposal for the allocation of some positions to be used for part-time career employment have been completed; and many meetings and seminars for educational purposes have been attended. Activities still in progress include: the training and orientation of employees in the Administrative Office and the Federal Judicial Center who are subject to the Reform Act; revision of the Grievance Plan to reflect changes under the Reform Act; implementation of the Merit Pay System; and developing new adverse action procedures concerning suspensions, reduction in grade or pay, removal and furlough. It is anticipated that all or most of these activities will continue in fiscal year 1980, since the Civil Service Reform Act has changed the basic requirements for pay and performance ratings as well as the actual pay scale for certain positions.

The Division of Personnel completed the personnel workshops in conjunction with the Federal Judicial Center, and began efforts to develop and maintain an accurate personnel manual for use in the federal courts. Although no personnel workshops are planned for fiscal year 1980, work on the personnel manual will continue throughout the coming year.

The accompanying Table 22 shows the total number of personnel on board in the federal judiciary as of June 30, 1979.

Judicial Survivors' Annuities Fund

An actuarial valuation of the Judicial Survivors' Annuities System has been requested at the close of calendar year 1979, after the new judges authorized by Public Law 95-486 have entered on duty and their service records have been established.

The number of judges and other judicial officers on the roll and eligible to participate in the system increased during the year from 690 to 709. On June 30, 1979, there were 613 participants compared with 608 on June 30, 1978. As of June 30, 1979, there were 192

BANKRUPTCY ADMINISTRATION

Impact of Legislation

The enactment of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, Public Law 95-598, 92 Stat. 2549-2688, on November 6, 1978, placed substantial additional duties and responsibilities on the Bankruptcy Division during the year ending June 30, 1979.

The principal responsibility of the Division under the Bankruptcy Reform Act will be to conduct studies during the transition period leading to recommendations for adoption by Congress of the number of bankruptcy judges that will be needed for the bankruptcy courts as of April 1, 1984. This has necessitated the development and implementation of a new statistical system to reflect the activities of bankruptcy judges starting October 1, 1979, when the substantive law changes become effective. As pending cases continue to be administered under the Bankruptcy Act of 1898, the existing statistical system must also be retained for several years. The new system has been developed and should be ready for implementation on October 1, 1979. With the cooperation of the Statistical Analysis and Reports Division, the necessary forms have been designed and are being printed. Other bankruptcy forms for use in the courts under the new law have also been designed to the extent possible. These are dependent in part on the procedures established by the Advisory Committee on Bankruptcy Rules.

A second major responsibility has been to establish panels of qualified persons (who are not government employees) as trustees for each bankruptcy court to serve in all liquidation cases in all of the judicial districts except in the eighteen districts which are part of the pilot experiment. There, private trustees will be under the supervision of United States Trustees in the Department of Justice. This has involved not only establishing qualifications to serve as trustee but determining appropriate sizes of panels for each bankruptcy court and requesting some 3,000 prospective trustees to submit applications to be screened. A monitoring system is to be established to fulfill the responsibility of determining when to remove a trustee from the panel. The panel trustee system will become operative October 1, 1979.

Another important responsibility is to provide a smooth transition from a system of separate bankruptcy offices within each district to a system of centralized administrative responsibility. A major aspect of this includes the transfer of certain functions now performed by the clerk of the United States district court for the bankruptcy offices to the office of the bankruptcy clerks of court such as: receiving bankruptcy petitions and schedules and collecting and accounting for the filing fees, budgeting for the bankruptcy courts, procurement of equipment, furniture and supplies, and serving as liaison with the General Services Administration for space for the bankruptcy courts. The objective of a functionally independent court will not be fully achieved by October 1, 1979. The transfer of functions will take place as rapidly as possible consistent with an orderly transfer.

Pursuant to section 407(a) of Title IV of Public Law 95-598, a committee of seven bankruptcy judges was appointed to advise the Director of the Administrative Office with respect to matters that arise during the transition period or that are related to the purposes of the transition period. This committee met at various times during the year and its recommendations have been of substantial benefit to the Administrative Office in planning for the beginning of the transition period of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978.

Minimum technical amendments to the Bankruptcy Reform Act which were incorporated in a technical revision bill now pending before Congress were prepared in the Bankruptcy Division.

Notices to Creditors

The project for developing a computer software program for preparation of notices to creditors to be issued in bankruptcy cases and the handling of claims filed was commenced in fiscal year 1978. It is now in the final development stage, and the contract for the computer software was awarded during the year. The program has been written and is ready for a two-week testing period in July at the bankruptcy court in Trenton, New Jersey. If testing is successful, contracts will be sought to install the program in several pilot courts next year.

Forecasting

The Bankruptcy Division commenced a program to determine whether published economic indicators could be used to forecast bankruptcy case filings with sufficient accuracy to be used in our budget requests. Early experiments disclosed a correlation between certain economic variables and annual bankruptcy filings. By using a standard variable evaluation computer program, it was determined that several of the variables have high prediction value with respect to total filings. The further development of the program is now under consideration. A sound, reliable formula which will accurately forecast bankruptcy filings ahead two years appears to be a possibility.

Bankruptcy - Referees' Salary and Expense Fund

The table shown below shows the status of the Referees' Salary and Expense Fund for the eleven-year period ending June 30, 1979 and the current status of the fund.

The costs of the system have exceeded receipts into the fund every year since 1965 in spite of the fact that the receipts to the fund have increased each year.

MAGISTRATES

Several bills affecting the work of the U.S. magistrates were enacted in the past year. The impact of these can be summarized as follows:

- Omnibus Judgeship Act (P.L. 95-486). This law has generated a need to prepare fully revised statistical data, especially per-judgeship caseload data, for the Judicial Conference Committee on the Administration of the Magistrates System, for its consideration in revising requests for changes in magistrate positions. Moreover, the law has generated several requests for additional magistrates to serve the new judges.

- District Court Reorganization Acts (P.L. 95-408 and P.L. 96-4). These laws have required a recalculation of the general profile data. The redistricting of Illinois presented particular problems, resulting in the expenditure of considerable staff time in recalculating the data on the new districts, and also in generating an additional full-time request.

- Bankruptcy Reform Act (P.L. 95-598). This law has not had as significant an impact after passage as did the extensive staff work performed before passage. Nonetheless, some expenditure of time has been required to coordinate the changes made by the Act, especially as they relate to magistrate salaries and combination bankruptcy judge/magistrate positions. The new bankruptcy law has also generated requests from magistrates for new support services equal to those of the bankruptcy judges.

- Court Interpreters Act (P.L. 95-593). The Magistrates Division has been heavily involved in setting up guidelines for the implementation of this law. Interpreters must be provided at the initial appearance of a defendant.

- Marshal's Transportation (P.L. 95-503). This law required an amendment of the Jurisdictional Checklist and preparation of a proposal to modify the law slightly.

- Prisoner Exchanges (P.L. 95-144). The continuing program of transferring prisoners internationally has required time on the part of one of the staff attorneys and several magistrates.

- Records Disposition (P.L. 95-444). This law has generated a need to revamp the records schedules for the courts, including the records of magistrates.

During the year ending June 30, 1979 the Magistrates Division completed several projects:

- An entirely new Legal Manual for United States Magistrates, containing the first six chapters and appendices.

- Publication of a law review article on magistrate jurisdiction and constitutional considerations in the next issue of the Harvard Journal on Legislation.

- Completion of the first annual revisions to the magistrate portion of the Guide to Judiciary Policies and Procedures. The magistrate manual was completed early in 1978 and is found as Volume IX of the multi-volume guide.

- Preparation of regulations on the use of court reporters for magistrates. The regulations are being used de facto with success, although they have not yet been officially distributed to the field.

- Submission of 97 full survey reports, dealing with 265 magistrate positions, to the district courts, circuit councils, and Magistrates Committee. Twenty new full-time positions were authorized by the Congress, and funding has been requested for October 1. This brings the number of full-time magistrate positions to 196. Also submitted for the July meeting of the Magistrates Committee were 19 reports dealing with 32 positions and five full-time requests.

PROBATION

Pretrial Services

This year marked the end of the four and one-half year demonstration phase of the pretrial services program. In the second annual report to Congress on the Speedy Trial Act, it was noted that if the funds authorized were not sufficient to carry out the program through the demonstration phase, a request would be made to Congress for additional funds. The Congress authorized and appropriated an additional $5,000,000 to continue the program through 1979, the final reporting year, and to provide sufficient funds to continue until the Congress could make a determination regarding the future of the program. The fourth annual report on the implementation of Title II of the Speedy Trial Act was submitted to the Congress on June 29, 1979.

Drug Aftercare Services

In an effort to combine fiscal and supervisory responsibility for drug abusing federal offenders in one branch of Government, Congress enacted Public Law 95-537, the Contract Services for Drug Dependent Federal Offenders Act of 1978. Effective in fiscal year 1980, this legislation transfers authority to contract for the supervisory aftercare and treatment of drug dependent or addicted federal offenders from the Federal Bureau of Prisons to the Administrative Office. Congress appropriated $3,500,000 for the first of three years with $3,645,000 and $3,750,000 appropriated for the second and third years of the program.

A task force was formed within the Administrative Office to plan for and implement the provisions of this legislation. Composed of representatives of the Procurement and Property Management Branch, Financial Management Division, the Office of the General Counsel, and the Probation Division, the task force prepared operational and contracting procedures for drug aftercare.

Assistance was received from over 40 probation officers who reviewed the drafts and offered comment as to the feasibility of the procedures. Further assistance was obtained from the Federal Bureau of Prisons, United States Marshals Service, the National Institute on Drug Abuse, and the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia.

While authority to award, modify, and terminate contracts rests with the Director of the Administrative Office, chief probation officers will act as authorized representatives of the Director in aftercare contracting matters. Chief probation officers will identify available community resources and any need to provide aftercare treatment. After identifying this need the probation office may provide treatment by either using available resources at no additional cost to the government, providing direct treatment itself or by contracting for services. Specific procedures were developed to insure competition and fairness for contractors and competent treatment for federal offenders at a reasonable cost to the government.

Information Management System

This has been a year of further growth for the Probation Information Management System. The first of four phases of this project has been to describe the existing probation information system; that is, the maintenance, accumulation, flow, and retrieval of information necessary to the realization of the probation offices' mission. This required the complete description of the day-to-day operations of a probation office.

During fiscal year 1979 a task group has collected and examined forms and documents used by eight large probation offices, developed a detailed listing of probation office functions, and conducted further studies to assure the validity of system documentation. The project staff are nearing completion of the second stage of field validation. With the cooperation of the Federal Judicial Center, the next steps in the project are: development of user requirements, a software and feasibility study, and field testing.

MANAGEMENT REVIEW

Establishment of the Division of Management Review on May 12, 1975, marked the first time that the functions of the federal judiciary would be analyzed by an organization within the Administrative Office. In conducting reviews, the division identified areas where the efficiency and effectiveness of the operations of each office of the court could be improved, conducted financial audits, recommended suggested improvements, and identified management techniques which might be useful to other courts. Prior to the establishment of the Management Review Division, the basic yardstick used for judging a court's management effectiveness had been its statistics compared with those of similar courts and with national averages. The division expanded the parameters of this comparison by including such factors as caseload characteristics, geographics, adequacy of facilities and personnel, travel requirements, case assignment systems, senior and visiting judge availability, and other variables impacting on a particular court.

Calendar Management

Division of Management Review (DMR) findings included nonuniform case assignments, lack of coordination, underscheduling, inordinate Bar influence over continuances, disorganized systems for assignment of cases to senior and visiting judges, and, in particular, ineffective or nonexistent case monitoring systems.

To improve calendar management, recommendations included:

- statistical reports to monitor and manage each judge's calendar;
- equitable reassignment of cases to new judges;
- a formalized automatic system for scheduling of all pretrial proceedings with a comprehensive pretrial order which includes definite time limits;
- active participation of support personnel in the disposition monitoring process;
- use of trailing calendars; and
- more effective use of senior and visiting judges' time.

Clerks Offices

The division frequently found that clerks do not function as executive officers of the court, which creates administrative and managerial problems throughout the court family. In those situations, many clerk's duties, as specified by the Judicial Conference, are being performed by chief judges, thus limiting their availability to perform judicial functions. In addition, a widespread lack of formal training and cross-training programs, of manuals for standard operating procedures, of mid-management and supervisory position, and of efficient non-duplicative record systems, was noted. Other findings include unncessary attendance by the courthouse deputy during court proceedings, excessive and nonuniform docket entries, and inadequate and untimely data reporting systems.

Among the most frequently made recommendations are the use of modern filing techniques, formal file retirement programs, standard procedures for handling of exhibits and additional training and cross-training of financial clerks.

In the area of jury management, the division recommended jury wheel automation, six-member civil juries, the adoption of two-year master wheel refill cycles, increased use of code-a-phones and the adoption of jury pooling and multiple voir dire practices.

Magistrates

DMR found that in those courts where magistrates had a full range of duties, they were making significant contributions to case dispositions. In these courts, clerks' offices were providing substantial clerical assistance to magistrates' operations. It was consistently recommended that courts consider assigning a greater range of responsibilities and duties to magistrates.

Probation Offices

DMR found that problems in probation offices were generally created by poor office morale rather than by any actual incompetence of the employees. Such situations could be improved by more frequent exchanges of staff viewpoints, caseload monitoring, and increased judge contacts.

Bankruptcy

DMR found in general a lack of standard operating procedures, formal training programs, clearly defined duties and responsibilities of trustees, over-involvement of bankruptcy judges in clerical matters and interest on the part of the Bar members serving as trustees. It recommended a more careful screening of requests for appointment of attorneys and their petitions for compensation, institution of case monitoring systems, and formalized, timely administrative procedures for case processing.

INFORMATION SYSTEMS

During the past year the project managers in the area of automation were transferred to the Division of Information Systems and the planning functions were assigned to the Office of the Assistant Director for Plans and Program Management.

The Division of Information Systems has been making an all-out effort to implement the plan for nationwide adoption of the Uniform Payroll System which it is hoped will become operational early in 1980. In addition, the Division has adopted a modern on-line bankruptcy system to meet both current and new statistical requirements.

ASSIGNED COUNSEL - DEFENDER PROGRAM

For the twelve months ending June 30, 1979, the Administrative Office has thus far recorded 43,000 appointments of counsel under the Criminal Justice Act. Of this number 21,671 persons, or 50 percent, were represented by private panel attorneys and 21,329, or 50 percent, by staff attorneys in the 38 federal defender organizations throughout the country.

Expansion of the defender system has continued with the creation of one new defender organization and two branch offices. The District of Minnesota established a federal public defender office in Minneapolis which replaced a part-time community defender organization within that judicial district. The Middle District of Florida which has its main office in Tampa and a branch office in Jacksonville, established a second branch office in Orlando. In addition, a new branch office in the Western District of Washington commenced operations in Tacoma. There are currently 31 federal public defender offices and seven community defender offices.

PRISONER TRANSFER PROGRAM

The Administrative Office provided the liaison and coordination for the transfer of prisoners between the United States and foreign countries pursuant to Prisoner Transfer Treaties with Canada, Bolivia, and Mexico. Transfer of prisoners between the United States and Canada occurred in October, 1978 and April, 1979. Transfer between the United States and Bolivia was effected in June, 1979 and transfers between the U.S. and Mexico have occurred and continue at regular intervals.

ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

Space Management

No area of the Administrative Office has felt the impact of new legislation more than the space management and procurement branches. With regard to space management, virtually all facilities to be provided under the Omnibus Judgeship Act and the Bankruptcy Reform Act will be major construction projects. From inception to completion, these projects usually require two or more years and involve the formulation of requirements, negotiations with personnel of the courts and the General Services Administration, development, review and approval of construction plans and general supervision of the project until occupancy. The installation of the new circuit and district judges will create above-normal expansion of other court activities in offices such as probation and the clerk of court. This, in turn, will result in securing space and making required renovations/alterations for those functions as well as the bankruptcy offices, for which new space standards have been developed. Every new judge will be provided with lawbooks, supplies and equipment and many bankruptcy offices will be requesting additional equipment. A considerable increase in procurement activity is expected during fiscal year 1980.

Drug Dependent Federal Offenders Act

Plans are being developed to implement the Contract Services for Drug Dependent Federal Offenders Act of 1978. This Act, which will take effect on October 1, 1979, will transfer to the Administrative Office approximately 160 contracts covering an annual expenditure of $3,000,000. Official estimates indicate that the ultimate expansion of this program will increase the number of contracts to 320. The Procurement and Property Management Branch will make continuing evaluations of contract services currently available and evaluate proposals for new contracts to facilitate the choice between competing bidders. The contracting officers will be instrumental in setting minimum standards, offering professional appraisals of the capacities of the contractors, and aiding the negotiation phase of contracts.

Construction

As of June 30, 1979, new buildings containing court facilities were under construction at Columbia, South Carolina; Atlanta, Georgia; Miami, Florida; and Tuscon, Arizona. During this fiscal year construction was completed for the projects at Anchorage, Alaska, and Fort Lauderdale, Florida and these buildings are now occupied. New buildings have been approved for East St. Louis, Illinois; Madison, Wisconsin; and San Jose, California. A contract for an architect/engineer has been awarded for the Madison, Wisconsin project. The East St. Louis, Illinois project has been held in abeyance because of the realignment of the Eastern District of Illinois.

Library Services

During the past year a Library Services Branch has been established to develop, coordinate, and recommend policies and plans for the operation of libraries and legal information resources in the Federal courts. The branch has prepared and submitted to the Ad Hoc Library Committee of the Judicial Conference Committee on Court Administration a report entitled the United States Court Library System which recommends a national court library system based on the existing circuit central library providing all library and information services to the entire judiciary within the circuit. The branch has also:

- Revised the list of suggested books available to new judges who have access to central libraries. This change is expected to result in a $3,265,164 net savings in fiscal years 1979 and 1980.

- Conducted nationwide surveys to determine non-judiciary use of court libraries, library staffing by deputy clerks and library needs of bankruptcy judges.

In addition to space management, procurement and library services, the Division of Administrative Services has also:

- Completed and forwarded to the General Services Administration the Master Housing Plan for judges appointed under the Omnibus Judgeship Act of 1978. One result of this two-year planning effort was the development of 29 prospectus projects which are now pending in Congress or GSA for approval.

- Completed a courtroom utilization survey as requested by the House Appropriations Subcommittee. This survey focused on courtrooms which were previously reported to be used 25 days or less per year.

- Completed 24 security inspections of court facilities which resulted in an annual savings of approximately $560,000.

- In support of the Ad Hoc Committee on Records Dispositions of the Judicial Conference, drafted a completely revised district court records disposition schedule and applicable guidelines.

- Completed a work measurement study of the clerks' offices of the courts of appeals and the clerk's office of the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation. Completed the preliminary phase of a study in the clerks' offices of the district courts.

- In continuing the implementation of the Forms Management Program, seventeen forms were completely revised and three forms were cancelled.

- Developed, for publication and issuance to the courts, guidelines for the procurement, utilization and disposal of supplies, equipment and legal reference material.

- Completed, published, and issued a court space and construction manual which prescribes new and revised space guidelines and design criteria for court facilities.

JUDICIAL APPROPRIATIONS AND EXPENDITURES

Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1979

The Appropriation Act of 1979, P.L. 95-431, approved October 10, 1978, included for the Judiciary, exclusive of the Supreme Court, budget authority in the amount of $478,507,000. The Congress in the Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1979, (P.L. 96-38), approved an additional $24,673,000: $9,573,000 for increased pay costs and $15,100,000 for implementation of new legislation, i.e., the Omnibus Judgeship Act, the Bankruptcy Reform Act, the Jury System Improvements Act, and the Court Interpreters Act.

As displayed in Table 27, the total budget authority for fiscal year 1979, taking into account the supplemental appropriations is $503,180,000. The Judicial Dollar graphically reflects the cost of various programs and activities in the judiciary.

Appropriations for Fiscal Year 1980

The budget estimates submitted to the Congress for fiscal year 1980 (excluding the Supreme Court) initially were in the amount of $606,354,000. On April 30, 1979, the budget was amended (House Document 96-108) to include an additional $1,008,000 for the nine full-time magistrates and staff authorized by the Judicial Conference in March 1979.

Taking into account this amendment, the total requested for the judiciary for fiscal year 1980 (exclusive of the Supreme Court) was $607,362,000. The House approved $577,459,000, a reduction of $29,903,000. The Senate, at the request of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, restored $3 million of the reduction, primarily for upgrading the libraries of bankruptcy judges. The difference between the Senate and House allowance was resolved in conference with the restoration of $1,500,000. Table 28 is a comparative statment of the budget estimates and the amounts appropriated for fiscal year 1980.

Salaries of Supporting Personnel

Both the House and Senate Appropriations Committee approved the appointment of an additional secretary and law clerk by circuit judges and a second law clerk for district judges in lieu of a crier or crier-law clerk. Provision also was made for the implementation of the qualification standards for a career law clerk, grade JSP-13, which were recently adopted by the Judicial Conference. The committees denied increases in the central legal staffs of the courts of appeals and requested that a study be made to determine the need for such central staffs.

Defender Services

The Jury System Improvements Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-572) authorized payment of compensation to attorneys appointed to represent jurors in civil actions for the protection of their employment. Language was added to the Defender Services appropriation to provide for such payments.

Fees of Jurors and Commissioners

An increase of $13,250,000 over the current appropriation was approved. This increase represents the higher fees and allowances authorized by the Congress in the Jury System Improvements Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-572). The Senate Appropriations Committee also inserted language in the Act providing for refreshments, e.g., coffee and doughnuts, for jurors.

Travel and Miscellaneous Expenses

The Appropriations Committee denied a requested increase in the travel allotment and expressed the view that the travel of new circuit and district judges should be absorbed through the adoption of various economy measures and a reduction in the number of conferences and/or meetings being attended by judges, clerks of courts, probation officers, and other Judicial officers and employees. The committee also denied an increase for printing of opinions and asked that the Administrative Office of the United States Courts conduct a survey to determine if such printing can be done more economically.

*The amount of $4,200,000 is a no-year appropriation for the procurement of furniture and furnishings for circuit and district judges appointed pursuant to the Omnibus Judgeship Act of 1978 and for bankruptcy judges pursuant to the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978.

Salaries and Expenses of Magistrates

The increase in this appropriation will provide for the establishment of eight new full-time magistrates and the conversion of twelve part-time magistrates to full-time status, as authorized by the Judicial Conference of the United States in September 1978 and in March 1979.

Salaries and Expenses, Bankruptcy Courts

With respect to the bankruptcy courts, the House Appropriations Committee approved $57 million, an increase of $21.7 million over the amount appropriated for 1979, but $10.8 million less than the amount requested. Provision was made for the appointment of a law clerk by each full-time bankruptcy judge and the appointment of mid-level management personnel for the bankruptcy clerks' offices. Funds also were provided for the reclassification of secretaries and other personnel in the bankruptcy courts pursuant to the Bankruptcy Reform Act. The committee denied a request for full-time salaried court reporters and, in lieu thereof, included funds for contractual reporting services. At the request of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, the Senate Appropriations Committee restored $3 million to be used primarily for the procurement of additional legal research material and upgrading the libraries for bankruptcy judges.

Services for Drug Dependent Offenders

The House and Senate Appropriations Committees approved $3,500,000 to enable the Federal Probation System to provide special supervision and service to drug dependent offenders. The responsibility for such services is being transferred from the Bureau of Prisons to the federal judiciary in fiscal year 1980 pursuant to the Drug Dependent Federal Offenders Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-537).

Space and Facilities

With regard to "Space and Facilities," both the House and Senate Appropriations Committees expressed concern over the substantial growth in the space inventory of the judiciary and both committees stated that they do "not believe that existing facilities are being fully utilized." Each committee also remarked in their respective reports that they do "not believe that bankruptcy judges and magistrates require facilities comparable to those being provided circuit and district judges." The Judicial Conference of the United States has been asked to reconsider the standards and guidelines relating to courtrooms, hearings rooms, chambers, and general office space of these judicial officers. The committees reduced the appropriation by $7 million with the understanding that the United States Marshals Service in fiscal year 1980 would assume responsibility for court security, thus obviating the need for the judiciary to augment the level of protective services being provided by GSA on a reimbursable basis. Additional funds are being provided to the Department of Justice for this purpose.

Special Rail Reorganization Court

The budget request of $2,000,000 was denied. The delays in appointing Special Masters and supporting personnel has substantially lowered the rate of expenditures below the current estimates; therefore, sufficient funds remain to continue the program through fiscal year 1980.

Registry Funds

The total on deposit in the registry fund accounts of the district courts, as of June 30, 1979, is $267,805,827. Of this sum $73,723,843 (27.53 percent) was on deposit in the Treasury of the United States and $194,081,984 (72.47 percent) in local depositaries. Despite the resolution of the September 1976 Judicial Conference that such funds be deposited to the Treasury to interest-bearing accounts, $7,189,511 was on deposit in noninterest-bearing accounts as of June 30, 1979. This compares to a total of $13,599,123 on deposit in non-interest bearing accounts a year ago. Table 29 shows the amounts on deposit in the Treasury and in local depositaries for the respective district courts.

A New Accounting Manual

A revised Clerk's Manual was prepared and issued during this fiscal year. It provided the clerks of court and their staffs with explicit instructions on accounting procedures for their financial officers, and for the reporting of the financial data to the Administrative Office. The Financial Management Division was assisted by a committee consisting of four clerks of court and four financial deputies in the development of the manual. Their comments and suggestions were invaluable in developing the final product.

The new manual also provides for the establishment of an imprest fund. This fund is a means to make emergency payments, such as cash advances to jurors and the reimbursement of employees for approved out-of-pocket expenditures of $25.00 or less.

Three financial management seminars were held during the fiscal year in Chattanooga, Pittsburgh, and Salt Lake. These seminars provided information to the clerks and their financial deputies on the new Clerk's Manual and also stressed the need to develop appropriate security systems and fund control procedures for their offices. The seminars covered the financial liability of clerks and deputies, and the need for internal controls. Small sessions were conducted on these topics to allow the attendees to ask questions and to comment on the subject being discussed.

Juror Fee Regulations

The President, on November 2, 1978, signed into law the Jury System Improvements Act of 1978, Public Law 95-572, 92 Stat. 2453. As a result of this Act, which increased fees and allowances paid grand and petit jurors, the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts revised and issued, in December 1978, new juror fee regulations. These regulations raised attendance fees, travel allowances and subsistence, and provided for reasonable parking fees for the first time. The new fee schedule and regulations went into effect January 1, 1979.

State Court Reporter's Survey

With the approval of the Subcommittee on Supporting Personnel, the Administrative Office conducted a nationwide survey of compensation and benefits of court reporters employed in the system of state trial courts of original jurisdiction. The survey was made as part of a study to determine if the salaries and/or fees of federal court reporters should be changed. A total of 86 responses were obtained from state courts of trial jurisdiction which employ 4,196 permanent state court reporters. Information accumulated and tabulated included range, average and median annual salary of state court reporters in all states, different types of fringe and other benefits, and fees prescribed for ordinary, daily and expedited transcripts.

The results of this survey were made available to the Subcommittee on Supporting Personnel in a memorandum dated June 18, 1979, from the Chief of the Division of Financial Management.

Court Interpreters

The Court Interpreters Act, P.L. 95-539 which was signed October 28, 1978, and which took effect 90 days later, charged the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts with the responsibility to "establish a program to facilitate the use of interpreters in courts of the United States." Heretofore, interpreters in court were frequently employed by the Department of Justice or by the Public Defender Office. At times interpreters were deputy clerks who undertook to interpret for the court as requested. Under the new law, the courts may employ interpreters on a permanent basis or the services will be provided on a contractual basis. To expedite the employment and utilization of contractual interpreters, the Administrative Office of the United States Courts issued a general authorization which gives the courts authority to appoint and pay interpreters pursuant to the Court Interpreters Act. The "Interpreters Report of Services and Claims for Compensation and Expenses," AO Form 322, was prepared to implement this procedure, which provides for immediate payment by the clerk of court for interpreter services provided to the court pursuant to the Act, including interpreter service for magistrates and bankruptcy judges.

AN ANALYSIS

OF THE FEDERAL COURTS

FOR THE

TWELVE MONTH PERIOD

ENDED JUNE 30, 1979

The statistical analysis of the workload of the federal judiciary which appears in this chapter was prepared by the Statistical Analysis and Reports Division. Appendix tables for the courts of appeals, civil, criminal, bankruptcy, and probation statistics were computer generated by the Division of Information Systems.

Foreword

This report by the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts represents the fortieth time that an annual compilation of statistics has been provided by the Director on the workload of the federal courts. Federal judicial statistics, however, have been available since 1871 when the Department of Justice included summary statistics on the federal courts in the Annual Report of the Attorney General. These data were obtained through a summary reports submitted by each court.

It was in 1935 that the summary reporting system gave way to case reporting. Under Attorney General Homer Cummings case filings and disposition reports were received first for civil cases, then for criminal prosecutions and finally for bankruptcy proceedings.

These reporting programs were transferred intact to the newly created Administrative Office of the United States Courts, with the civil and bankruptcy programs transferred in 1940 and the criminal program in 1942.

Since 1940, the individual statistical case reports have grown from 240,000 records to over one million in 1979. The number of individual records has reached a staggering volume in each program area. Thus:

Program Area	Forms Received in 1979
Criminal	114,000
Probation	133,000
Civil (includes trials)	356,000
Appeals	56,500
Bankruptcy	440,000
Total	1,099,500

In addition several summary type forms are provided by the courts including monthly petit and grand jury reports, and reports of the caseload of federal public and community defenders. Annually, the clerks of district courts supply information on three-judge court hearings, the status of three year old civil cases and the status of criminal defendants, plus an annual inventory of passport applications, petitions for naturalization and aliens naturalized.

All of the above reports are received and processed by the staff of the Statistical Analysis and Reports Division which then enters the reports via a mini-computer tape recording system to a mainframe computer operated by the Division of Information Systems. Beginning July 1, 1979, the two divisions initiated direct data entry of bankruptcy filings onto the main computer operated by the of Information Systems

And so in 40 years, federal judicial statistics have moved from small numbers of cases which were generally hand-tallied to the key punching of cards, to a key tape operation in early 1975 and now the direct entry of a vastly increased volume of reports into the main computer. The advantages of direct access are many. It provides immediate transfer of the information sent in by the courts to the computer files. It permits pre-edit of all records simultaneously with the entry by the data analyst, and as fast as a month's work is completed, summary tables can be provided for publication and for responding to special requests.

The "statistical customers" of the Administrative Office gain in more current data, with more time to evaluate the trends which are changing at a more rapid pace than in earlier years. It provides a means of producing the "roll over" 12 months reports on a timely basis, as well as special reports required by the Congress on the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act and the experience generally with the civil caseload.

Other statistics collected by the Administrative Office serve as management tools. Thus, the summary report of investigations by probation officers assists the Probation Division in establishing personnel requirements. For the Magistrates Division, the monthly report of U.S. magistrate activity weighs heavily in preparing survey reports for Congress and for the Judicial Conference of the United States.

What has occurred in these last forty years is a greater intensity in collection of statistics not only for analysis and research, but for management. The concern in this endeavor has been continuity of the information with standard definitions and procedures for collection, processing and tabulating the data. It is for these reasons that readers can be assured that the data in this report, including the special X series of tables in the appendix, represent the combined efforts of several hundreds of judges, bankruptcy judges, magistrates, clerks of court and their deputies, probation officers and their statistical clerks, and public and community defenders. In a given year it has been estimated that over 2,000 federal judicial officials assist in this overall reporting program.

To assure that the tip of the statistical iceberg reaches its many audiences, the reports vary from this one, which is statutorily required, to the "roll over" 12 months reports published as of September 30, December 31 and March 31, the Speedy Trial Report (Title I and Title II), annual report on wiretaps, and four reports established by resolution of the Judicial Conference: Court Management Statistics, Juror Utilization, Federal Offenders and Persons Under Supervision of the Federal Probation System. Of significance to many readers is the Director's summary to the Judicial Conference of the United States referred to as the Pictorial Summary.

For the most part, the published reports are available in the respective courts. In addition, circuit courts libraries, and depository libraries now maintain complete sets of these reports. Also, several reports also have been placed on microfiche by private concerns.

The statistics move from the court to a sophisticated processing system, but how effectively the data assist the courts is determined by the users themselves. Therefore, users are encouraged to identify matters which should be highlighted and to look for new data elements which will fulfill the requirements of a meaningful statistical system.

Summary of the Workload

The workload of the United States courts of appeals topped the twenty thousand mark for the first time as 20,219 cases were filed throughout the eleven circuits - a 6.9 percent increase over the 18,928 docketings recorded a year ago. Case dispositions during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 rose at the same rate as filings, 6.9 percent from 17,714 in 1978 to 18,928. The increase in terminations, however, was not sufficient to stem the rising tide of pending litigation which grew by 1,291 cases from 16,648 in 1978 to 17,939 as of June 30, 1979 swelling the pending caseload at a rate of 7.8 percent.

Table 1 illustrates the nationwide workload of the courts of appeals from 1962 to 1979. This year's increases follow last year's declines, the only downturns in the period covered by the table.

Workload Per Authorized Judgeship

This year witnessed the addition of thirty-five new judgeship positions to be filled in the courts of appeals bringing the total to 132 authorized judgeships. Table 3 graphically illustrates the effect of the seemingly ceaseless tide of appellate filings on the workload of the appellate judiciary. Although filings per authorized judgeship fell from 195 in 1978 with 97 judgeships to 153 in 1979 for the 132 authorized positions (all of the 35 additional were still unfilled), when compared to the 94 cases per judgeship in 1968 - the first year in which the courts of appeals operated at 97 judgeships - clearly the burdens of the judiciary continue to grow even when granted the relief of additional judgeships.

Terminations per judgeship would be reduced from 183 to 143 with the 35 added judgeships; yet when compared to the 1968 level of 85, the workload of each individual judge has skyrocketed 68.2 percent, while pending cases have increased a full 100.0 percent since the first year of the previously authorized level of 97 judgeships.

However, as of June 30, 1979 since none of the 35 additional judgeships to the appellate bench had been filled, the workload of each appellate judge was 36 percent greater than the data indicates. Furthermore, with each case normally handled by panels of three judges, the per judgeship figures should be multiplied by three to reflect the true burden carried by the individual judges.

Filings

Nine of the eleven courts of appeals registered increases in the number of appeals docketed. Three of the five circuits which recorded increases in excess of the 6.9 percent national rise had experienced declines in filings the previous year. In the Second Circuit filings fell 12.7 percent in 1978; however, in 1979 new appeals grew 14.3 percent. The largest increases in new docketings occurred in the Fifth and Fourth circuits where filings jumped 347 cases and 281 cases, respectively. The largest increases in filings developed in the Second, Fourth, and Fifth circuits, all of which experienced declines in filings the previous year.

Dispositions

The disposition of appeals increased 6.9 percent from 17,714 in 1978 to 18,928 during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. This increase of 1,214 terminations follows a downturn of 70 dispositions the previous year.

The Seventh Circuit posted the largest increase, 434 dispositions, after suffering a 25 case drop-off in terminations in 1978. The most significant turnaround in disposition activity came in the District of Columbia where terminations fell off by 296 in 1978 then climbed by 225 in 1979. When the increases experienced in the District of Columbia and Seventh circuits are coupled with the Third Circuit's 234 case jump in dispositions, they account for nearly 75 percent of the rise in termination activity.

For only the second time in the last ten years the Ninth Circuit experienced a drop in the number of cases disposed of from 2,715 in 1978 to 2,551 in 1979.

Pending Appeals

While filings and terminations both rose at a rate of 6.9 percent, docketings outdistanced dispositions by 1,291 cases pushing the pending case backlog to 17,939 - a rise of 7.8 percent for the second consecutive year.

Five circuits were able to close more cases than were filed with the Third and Seventh circuits reducing their pending workloads by 114 cases and 100 cases respectively. Once again, the nation's two most active circuits, the Fifth and Ninth, underwent the largest increases in pending caseloads as each circuit docketed over 450 more cases than they were able to terminate. For the sixth straight year, the Second Circuit was able to decrease its pending backlog which, since 1970, has fallen 39 percent from 1,105 to 674.

Types of Appeals from District Courts

Appeals arising out of the U.S. district courts accounted for 16,322 of the 20,219 docketings or 80.7 percent of the filing activity in the courts of appeals during 1979. While civil and criminal appeals showed a combined increase of 4.3 percent over last year, a rise of 673 cases, criminal appeals fell 8.6 percent from 4,487 in 1978 to 4,102 in 1979. Since 1977, criminal appeals have declined 13.4 percent.

Civil actions comprised 74.9 percent of all appeals from the district courts totalling 12,220 filings, a climb of 9.5 percent over 1978. U.S. civil, cases which account for less than one out of every three civil appeals rose only 1.4 percent to 3,983 appeals. However, actions in which the U.S. was a plaintiff rose 34.1 percent in 1979 and have increased over 70 percent since 1974. U.S. defendant cases dropped slightly from 3,391 in 1978 to 3,263 in 1979. Docketing activity in U.S. defendant contract actions fell 24.4 percent after doubling in 1978. Tax suits dropped at a rate of 14.2 percent after jumping 24.4 percent a year ago. Federal prisoner petitions numbered 775 during 1979, representing 23.8 percent of the appeals from district courts where the U.S. was a defendant.

Private civil cases increased 13.9 percent accounting for 67.4 percent of all appealed civil actions. Those private cases involving federal question jurisdiction rose 15.3 percent, as civil rights litigations climbed by 260 cases or 16.9 percent and state prisoner petitions increased by 512 or 34.9 percent. Prisoner habeas corpus petitions grew 27.1 percent following six consecutive years of declines. Contract and tort actions rose 21.8 percent and 9.0 percent, respectively. Diversity of citizenship cases increased 10.9 percent to 1,991 appeals while general local jurisidiction cases dropped to only 38 appeals, the eighth year in a row such cases declined.

Impact of State Prisoner Petitions

State prisoner petitions climbed 35 percent to an all time high of 1,978 filings in 1979, representing 9.8 percent of all the new cases docketed in the U.S. courts of appeals. The sum total of Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth circuit filings accounted for 61.0 percent of all state prisoner petitions. The Fourth Circuit, alone, accounted for 29.7 percent of all state prisoner petitions as these appeals grew 47.4 percent from 399 in 1978 to 588 in 1979. The Fifth Circuit recorded the second largest number of petitions placed on the general docket, 313, representing 8.1 percent of all new filings in the district as opposed to the Sixth Circuit whose 307 state prisoner petitions comprised 16.3 percent of their new workload.

Reviews of Administrative Agency Cases

The review of administrative agency decisions in the courts of appeals rose to an all time high of 2,922 filings, 22.7 percent more than in 1978. After last year's drop in administrative reviews, four circuits - the District of Columbia, the Fourth, the Sixth and the Seventh - experienced gains of more than 25 percent in docketing these cases. Once again, the District of Columbia Circuit received more agency cases than any other circuit, 666 filings or 22.8 percent of the national total; these cases represent almost one half of the 1,415 total cases commenced in the circuit. The District of Columbia Circuit served as the primary court for the review of Civil Aeronautics Board cases (51 of 59); Environmental Protection Agency appeals (95 of 257); Federal Communications Commission decisions (83 of 93); and Interstate Commerce Commission findings (113 of 205).

Reviews of National Labor Relations Board decisions generated the most appeals - 931 up 18.4 percent over 1978. Such decisions accounted for nearly half of all agency reviews in the Second, Sixth and Seventh circuits. Other agencies with comparatively large numbers of appealed reviews were the Internal Revenue Service - up 28.9 percent to 272 filings; Environmental Protection Agency - up 65.8 percent to 257 cases; and Federal Energy Regulatory Commission cases - up 49.1 percent to 243 cases in 1979. For the third year in a row Immigration and Naturalization Service cases decreased - down from 256 in 1978 to 194 in 1979. Since 1976 appeals of INS reviews have plummeted 49.9 percent.

Miscellaneous Proceedings

The number of miscellaneous proceedings filed in the courts of appeals jumped 10.6 percent to 3,573 in 1979. Although not placed on the general docket, these proceedings often require court time equal to that of a regularly docketed case. It should be noted that in the five years since 1974, miscellaneous proceedings have increased 41 percent while cases on the general docket have risen 23 percent. For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, increases were reported in all categories following last year's downturn. Habeas corpus petitions experienced the single largest rise, up 201 cases or 20.5 percent.

Oral Hearings and Submissions on Briefs

Hearings for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 rose 5.3 percent from 6,000 in 1978 to 6,315 in 1979. Since 1971 the number of hearings has increased only 8.6 percent. In a reversal of last year's data, eight of the eleven circuits reported increases in hearings; the Fourth and Ninth circuits accounted for 78.1 percent of the national rise with 112 and 134 more hearings, respectively, than a year ago. The nation's most active circuit, the Fifth, held 54 fewer hearings in 1979 than in 1978 while the Third Circuit had 45 less. It should be noted that 41 of the hearings were held before courts sitting en banc. In addition to oral hearings, a total of 2,636 cases were reported as submitted on briefs with 35.9 percent of these occurring in the Fifth Circuit. (See tables 8 and 9).

Case Participations by Resident, Senior, and Visiting Judges

Case participations by the federal judiciary throughout the eleven circuits of the courts of appeals remained virtually unchanged rising only 0.6 percent from 27,256 in 1978 to 27,416 in 1979. Resident active circuit judges participated in 77.8 percent of the cases or 21,324 actions - 517 more than in 1978. Participations by resident senior circuit judges dropped to an all time low of 2,547 in 1979 from 3,301 in 1978 - less than 10 percent of the entire caseload. Visiting judges were responsible for 3,545 case participations or 12.9 percent. Of the eleven circuits the Ninth relied most heavily on assistance from senior and visiting judges, who accounted for over 40.7 percent of their 3,955 recorded participations. Two of the nation's three most active circuits, the Second and Ninth, relied on senior and visiting judges for 38.5 percent and 40.7 percent of their total case participations, respectively. However, the Fifth Circuit effectively halved its degree of assistance from senior and visiting judges from 23.2 percent in 1978 to 12.0 percent in 1979.

Opinions and Memoranda

Signed opinions and other papers (including per curiam opinions, memorandum decisions and decisions from the bench) which set forth reasons for a decision accompanied 78.3 percent of the 9,285 cases disposed of after oral hearing or submission on briefs. Overall, these 7,267 stated opinions grew out of 15,613 cases terminated, exclusive of consolidations. Additionally, stated opinions supported 85.9 percent of the 6,328 cases decided without oral hearing or submission on briefs. Thus, stated reasons accompanied 12,702 or 81.4 percent of the 15,613 cases disposed of in 1979 (excluding consolidations).

Reversal Rate

The rate of reversals in cases disposed of after oral hearing or submission on briefs decreased in three of the four major types of appeals bringing the national average down from 17.3 percent in 1978 to 16.6 percent in 1979. Nationwide, the total number of reversals crept from 1,536 to 1,542. It should be noted that reversal data is selected from those cases which are fully reversed, vacated, or reversed and remanded. When a lower court decision is affirmed in part and reversed in part, it is considered for statistical purposes an affirmance. This year seven circuits experienced decreases in their reversal rates with the Second Circuit showing the lowest rate - 11.9 percent. The Fourth Circuit posted the highest reversal rate - 19.1 percent.

Cases Disposed of After Oral Hearing or Submission

The U.S. courts of appeals terminated 9,285 cases after oral hearing or submission on briefs in 1979, compared to 8,850 in 1978. Although the number of cases disposed of in this manner rose a modest 4.9 percent, the proportion of cases terminated after hearing or submission to total dispositions remained high at 49.1 percent. As in 1978 those cases disposed of without oral hearing or submission on briefs in 1979 comprised approximately one-third of all terminations while the proportion of consolidations rose from 16.2 percent to 17.5 percent. Data for individual circuits may be found in the appendix table B-1.

Other Federal Courts

Rail Reorganization Court

The Special Court was established by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 primarily to determine the value of properties transferred by seven principal bankrupt railroads and numerous other transferors in the Northeast and Midwest region. The amounts claimed by the transferors range into the billions of dollars and the proceedings to determine these claims necessarily must be conducted in several stages. The Special Court announced the general principles it would follow in an opinion dated October 12, 1977, 445 F.Supp. 994. During the past year the court has been taking evidence as to the amount which the transferors claim could have been obtained for certain properties for continued rail use in the absence of the Rail Act. In other collateral proceedings arising under its original and exclusive jurisdiction the Special Court reported 6 cases filed and 11 terminated during the year, leaving 34 such cases pending as of June 30, 1979. One case currently entered on the miscellaneous docket represents 1,869 pleadings alone.

Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals

The Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals litigates all appeals from the district courts in controversies arising under section 4(e) of the Economic Stabilization Act of 1971, as well as those pursuant to the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973, the Energy Policy and Conservation Act of 1975, and the Emergency Natural Gas Act of 1977.

The workload of the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals increased significantly during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 as 51 cases were docketed compared to 35 a year ago - a rise of 45.7 percent. The disposition of cases brought to the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals more than doubled increasing from 17 in 1978 to 44 in 1979, leaving 33 cases pending as of June 30, 1978.

Cases Under Submission in the Courts of Appeals and Other Federal Courts

There were 587 cases, not including cases awaiting the submission of additional memoranda or briefs or awaiting an opinion in another case, under submission over 90 days on June 30, 1979 in the United States courts of appeals and the Court of Claims. This is an increase of 78 cases, or 15.3 percent, over the 509 cases reported in 1978. A total of 378 cases (64.4 percent) had been submitted more than three but less than six months, 128 cases (21.8 percent) were reported as under submission for more than six but less than nine months, 34 cases (5.8 percent) had been submitted for more than nine months but less than one year, and 47 (8.0 percent) were under submission for more than one year.

The cases reported by the courts of appeals and the Court of Claims were distributed as shown in the accompanying table. The Ninth and Tenth circuits reported 249 cases representing 42.4 percent of the total cases under submission. Judges in the Ninth Circuit similarly accounted for 17, or 36.2 percent, of the 47 cases reported under submission for more than one year.

The Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals and the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals reported no cases held under submission over three months on June 30, 1979.

Five of the circuits and the Court of Claims reported increases in the number of cases pending over 90 days. These increases ranged from a two case increase in the Court of Claims to a 51 case increase in the Ninth Circuit. The largest decrease in the number of cases pending over 90 days was reported by the Fifth Circuit when its pending caseload dropped from 108 in 1978 to 74 in 1979, a decrease of 34 cases. The number of cases pending over 90 days in the Third Circuit remained stable at three.

United States District Courts

During the current year two Congressional Acts impacted significantly on the statistical presentation in this report. The first was the 1978 Omnibus Judgeship Act (P.L. 95-486, October 20, 1978), which created 35 additional judgeships for the courts of appeals and 117 additional judgeships for the district courts. Also included in that Act was a provision which requires a $10,000 jurisdictional amount on each receipt or bill of lading which is the basis for a claim under Title 49 U.S.C. Section 20(11) or Title 28 U.S.C. Section 1337. The effect of this provision was to transfer the litigation of small freight claims in federal courts to state courts which have concurrent jurisdiction. The effect in the workload of the courts is illustrated in the discussion of Interstate Commerce Commission cases in the civil caseload statistics.

The second Congressional Act affecting data presented in this report was the Federal District Court Organization Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-408, October 2, 1978). Section 4 of that Act reorganized the judicial districts of the State of Illinois. The existing Northern District was not changed; however, effective April 1, 1979, the counties in the old Eastern and Southern Districts were reorganized into the new Central and Southern Districts. The statistics appearing in this report reference the new district alignment just as though those districts existed for the entire twelve-month period.

Civil Cases

Summary of Caseload

Civil litigation in the U.S. district courts has increased steadily over the last twenty years. In fact, over the last decade, the number of civil cases commenced in the district courts has doubled, from 77,193 in 1969 to 154,666 for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. This represents an all-time high filing level and represents an increase of 11.5 percent over the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978. Similarly, the number of civil terminations in the district courts has also been on the rise. During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, there were 143,323 civil cases terminated, an increase of 13.8 percent over 1978. Despite this increasing termination rate, the number of filings has exceeded the number of terminations every year since 1960. Thus, the pending caseload in the district courts has increased steadily over the past twenty years. As of June 30, 1979, there were 177,805 civil cases pending in the district courts, an increase of 6.8 percent over the 1978 level and 190.3 percent over the 1960 level.

Workload Per Authorized Judgeship

On October 20, 1978, the Omnibus Judgeship Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-486) was signed into law. This law increased the number of authorized judgeships in the district courts from 399 to 516. As indicated in Table 17, the per judgeship filing, termination and pending caseloads have increased steadily since 1974. However, with the addition of the 117 new judgeships approved by the Omnibus Judgeship Act, the per judgeship caseloads for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 were reduced to approximately the 1976 levels. Such reductions generally follow the approval of additional judgeships.

Civil Filings

Of the 95 districts, 86 experienced an overall increase in filings. Sixteen districts recorded increases in filings of more than 30 percent over the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978. The Southern District of California showed the greatest increase, up 80.0 percent.

A 223.1 percent increase in the Northern Mariana Islands results from the district court only operating for five months of the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978. The increase in California, Southern is based on an increase in the number of U.S. land condemnation cases filed, which increased from 8 for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978 to 217 such cases in 1979. Massachusetts, on the other hand, showed a decline of 23.8 percent in filings during the year ended June 30, 1979. This reduction can be largely attributed to the curtailing of district court jurisdiction over I.C.C. cases, pursuant to provisions of Section 9 of the Omnibus Judgeship Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-486). Detailed statistics on the number and type of civil cases commenced during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 are provided in appendix tables C2 and C3.

Civil Filings by Origin

The primary origin of civil cases filed in the district courts are original filings. For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, original filings comprised 89.3 percent of the 154,666 civil cases filed. Each source of filings recorded an increase with the exception of interdistrict transfers, which declined slightly. Remands from the courts of appeals represented the smallest portion of civil filings, accounting for only 0.5 percent of total filings.

Types of Civil Cases Commenced

During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, 36.1 percent of the civil cases filed in the district courts were cases involving the United States as either plaintiff or defendant. In 1978, U.S. cases represented only 33.7 percent of total civil filings. As indicated in Table 19, the increase in U.S. cases can be attributed largely to a 37.6 percent rise in the number of U.S. plaintiff cases from 22,534 in 1978 to 31,003 in 1979.

Table 19

Percent Change 1979/1978	11.5	37.6	2.3	6.7	9.1	4.8

The bulk of this increase is in cases related to recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments. As shown in Table 20, the number of such cases filed in the district courts during the year ended June 30, 1979 was 9,254, an increase of 398.6 percent over the number filed in 1978 and more than ten times the number filed in 1977. This reflects the concerted effort of the government to recover delinquent or defaulted student loans. The greatest impact of this increase was in Michigan, Eastern, where filings of such cases increased from 18 in 1978 to 863 in 1979. There was also a substantial increase in tax suits filed in the district courts, which rose 31.8 percent over the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978.

Several types of civil cases showed substantial drops in filings. Cases filed under the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act declined 89.2 percent, dropping from 74 in 1978 to only 8 in 1979. Commerce and land condemnation cases also declined sharply, down 41.0 percent and 20.3 percent, respectively. The reduction in I.C.C. commerce case filings was primarily the result of a drop of such filings in Massachusetts from 1,316 in 1978 to 358 in 1979. Similarly, the overall decline in land condemnation case filings was largely the result of a drop in Florida, Southern, from 5,425 in 1978 to 3,682 in 1979.

Prisoner Petitions

Another source of considerable civil litigation is petitions filed by federal and state prisoners. Table 20 provides a breakdown of the number and type of prisoner petitions filed in the district courts for each of the twelve month periods ended June 30, 1970-79.

During the year ended June 30, 1979, a total of 23,001 petitions were filed by federal and state prisoners. This level represents an all-time high, 43.8 percent greater than the number of petitions filed in 1970 and 4.9 percent over the number filed in 1978. This overall increase is due solely to the increased filings by state prisoners, an increase of 9.0 percent over 1978. The number of petitions filed by federal prisoners declined by 9.2 percent for the year ended June 30, 1979. The bulk of this increase in filings by state prisoners was in civil rights cases, which increased to 11,195 in 1979, 15.1 percent over the 1978 level and 451.5 percent over the number of civil rights petitions filed by state prisoners in 1970. State prisoners filed 80.4 percent of the total prisoner petitions filed in the district courts for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979.

Prisoner petitions accounted for 14.9 percent of the total civil cases filed in the district

Antitrust Cases

During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, a total of 1,312 antitrust suits were filed in the district courts. This represents a decline of 12.9 percent from the 1978 total and is the lowest number of antitrust filings since 1974. Table 23 provides the number and type of antitrust cases filed for each of the twelve month periods ended June 30, 1960-79.

The number of antitrust cases filed by the federal government increased slightly from 72 in 1978 to 78 in 1979. However, private antitrust filings declined by 14.0 percent to 1,234 case for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979.

Interstate Commerce Commission Cases

For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, a total of 1,294 private cases related to Interstate Commerce Commission regulations were filed in the district courts. This represents a decline of 40.9 percent from the 2,188 cases filed in 1978. This reduction is largely the result of changes in the jurisdiction of the district courts in handling these cases. Section 9 of the Omnibus Judgeship Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-486), approved October 20, 1978, severely restricts the jurisdiction of the district courts in cases dealing with commerce regulations. The impact of this law is clearly seen in the filing figures for the court having the largest I.C.C. caseload, Massachusetts. For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978, a total of 1,316 commerce cases were filed in Massachusetts; for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, the filings dropped to 358, a reduction of 72.8 percent. Table 24 provides an analysis of the case flow of private I.C.C. cases, both in Massachusetts and in the other 94 district courts, for the twelve month periods ended June 30, 1978 and 1979.

In addition to Florida, Southern several other districts recorded a significant volume of land condemnation filings: California, Southern (217); Oklahoma, Northern (158); Guam (152); and Missouri, Western (134).

Product Liability

For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, a total of 6,132 cases alleging product liability were filed in the district courts. This represents an increase of 40.3 percent over the 1978 level and 288.3 percent over the number of such cases filed in 1974. Table 27 provides a breakdown of the number and types of product liability cases filed in each of the 95 district courts.

An analysis of the data contained in Table 27 indicates that several districts experienced substantial increases in product liability filings. Increases in Washington, Western and California, Central of 865.0 percent and 386.4 percent, respectively, over the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978 were related to airline personal injury suits. The increase of 407.7 percent in product liability cases filed in the District of Columbia was the direct result of more than 400 suits against the United States related to the swine flu vaccination program.

Environmental Matters, Economic Stabilization Act and Energy Allocation Litigation

For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, filings of cases in the district courts related to environmental matters, the Economic Stabilization Act and energy allocation all increased slightly. Table 28 distributes these filings by district.

Filings involving environmental matters increased slightly, up 7.7 percent. Cases related to the Economic Stabilization Act and energy allocation increased more substantially, rising 25.0 percent and 53.2 percent, respectively. The most extensive increases in the filing of energy allocation and economic stabilization cases were in the districts of Delaware and the District of Columbia. All but one of the 41 economic stabilization and energy allocation cases filed in Delaware and the District of Columbia were suits between the Department of Energy and the major oil companies; nine of the cases were filed by the U. S. and 31 were filed by the oil companies against the Federal government.

Truth In Lending

During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, there were 2,340 civil cases filed in the district courts alleging fraud, including cases arising under the provisions of the Truth in Lending Act (Federal Question only). This represents an increase of 19.6 percent over the 1,957 such cases filed during 1978; it also exceeds the previous high of 2,237 cases filed in 1975. Table 29 provides a breakdown of the fraud cases filed in each of the district courts for the years 1975-1979.

Almost one-fourth of the cases alleging fraud filed in the district courts during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 were recorded in the Northern District of Georgia. The 542 cases filed in this district represent an increase of 83.7 percent over the 1978 level. The bulk of this increase involved cases filed under the Fair Credit Reporting Act and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Saving Act, which includes cases dealing with odometer fraud.

Employment Civil Rights

Civil rights cases filed in the district courts during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 related to employment discrimination declined slightly from 5,504 in 1978 to 5,477 in 1979. Table 30 provides a breakdown of employment civil rights cases filed for each of the years 1973-79.

For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, Illinois, Northern had 338 employment civil rights case filings, up slightly from the 295 filed in 1978. The only other district with more than 200 employment civil rights filings was Texas, Southern with 206.

Social Security Act Litigation

Since rising to a high of 10,355 cases in 1976, the number of filings related to the Social Security Act has remained relatively constant. For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, a total of 9,942 social security cases were filed in the district courts, down slightly from the 9,950 filed in 1978. Table 31 provides the number of social security cases filed in each of the district courts for the years 1971-79.

Those districts experiencing the greatest decline in social security filings between 1978 and 1979 were Virginia, Western, West Virginia, Southern and Kentucky, Eastern. These decreases can be attributed to a reduction in the filing of cases related to "black lung" benefits. As indicated in Table 32, these three districts had only 230 black lung filings in 1979 compared to 581 in 1978.

The most substantial increase in social security filings occurred in Michigan, Eastern, where these filings increased from 608 in 1978 to 809 for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. The bulk of the social security filings in this district were related to disability insurance benefits, representing 679 of the 809 filings in 1979.

Table 33 provides a breakdown by district of the number of cases filed for each type of

Civil Terminations

During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, a total of 143,323 civil cases were closed by the district courts, an increase of 13.8 percent over the same period last year. Statistics of these terminations by district, type of litigation and method of disposition are contained in appendix tables C4, C4A, C5, C5A and C5B.

Seventy-one districts showed increases in the number of civil cases terminated. Massachusetts recorded the highest increase in civil cases closed, an increase of 98.2 percent. For this district the increase in terminations results from a marked increase in the number of I.C.C. cases closed, from 1,006 in 1978 to 3,015 in 1979. This large increase reflects a concerted effort on the part of the district to terminate much of its pending I.C.C. caseload.

Other districts experiencing increases in terminations of more than 50 percent were Utah (69.9 percent), Arkansas, Eastern (51.9 percent) and Georgia, Southern (51.4 percent). In Utah, the increase was attributed to the closing of litigation involving recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments and to increases in closings of securities, commodities and exchange cases. In Arkansas, Eastern and Georgia, Southern, the largest increases in terminations were cases related to recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments and to prisoner petitions involving civil rights allegations.

The number of civil cases terminated (land condemnation cases excluded) for each of the years 1969-79 are provided in Table 37. This table also provides an examination of these terminations by type of disposition. During the year ended June 30, 1979, 43.0 percent of these cases were terminated with no court action. This represents a significant increase over the 36.8 percent closed with no court action in 1978. The proportion of cases terminated with court action thus made a corresponding drop from 63.2 percent in 1978 to 57.0 percent in 1979. This change is largely due to the increase in terminations of cases filed by the U.S. for recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments. In 1979, a total of 4,664 of these cases were terminated with no court action compared to only 744 in 1978. Another factor contributing to this decline is the increase in the number of federal question I.C.C. cases which were closed with no court action. In 1979, there were 3,463 such cases closed, which is an increase of 147.7 percent over 1978 when only 1,398 were terminated with no court action.

The percentage of cases terminated during or after trial has been declining steadily over the last ten years. For the year ended June 30, 1979, only 6.9 percent of the cases terminated reached trial, compared to 7.6 percent in 1978 and 10.8 percent in 1969.

Terminations By Nature of Suit

The overall increase in civil cases terminated (land condemnation cases excluded) was highlighted by significant increases in several case types. As mentioned above, case terminations for recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments increased from 1,115 in 1978 to 5,569 for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. Other types of civil case terminations which increased sustantially include: Federal question I.C.C. cases (up 147.7 percent), federal question real property suits (up 110.8 percent), U.S. tax suits (up 35.4 percent), U.S. contract actions other than recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments (up 32.7 percent), and state prisoner civil rights petitions (up 16.0 percent).

Median Time To Dispose Of Civil Cases

Appendix tables C5, C5A and C5B provide detailed examinations of the median time (in months) from filing to disposition for civil cases disposed of in the district courts during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. The median time required to dispose of civil cases declined by one month from 10 months in 1978 to 9 months in 1979. The most significant improvement was experienced by Rhode Island, which reduced its overall median time from 21 months in 1978 to 12 in 1979; this was primarily the result of a reduction in the time interval for cases going to trial, which dropped from 33 months to 23 in 1979.

The district with the lowest median time for disposing of civil cases during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 was the Northern Mariana Islands with 3 months; 5 districts has median times of 4 months. The highest median time was in Massachusetts, 31 months.

Appendix tables C5A and C5B provide a distribution of median times by type of suit. The lowest median time during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979 was one month recorded for state prisoner mandamus petitions; all other federal and state prisoner petitions had median times of 3 or 4 months. U.S. cases related to recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments also recorded a very low median time of only 2 months. Exclusive of local jurisdiction cases, the highest median time was recorded for U.S. antitrust cases with a median of 25 months.

Pending Civil Caseload

As of June 30, 1979, there were 177,805 civil cases pending in the district courts, an increase of 6.8 percent over the 166,462 cases pending on June 30, 1978. Appendix tables C3A, C6A and C6B provide statistics on the number, type and age of civil cases pending in the district courts. The largest numeric increase in pending caseload was experienced in Florida, Southern, where the number of civil cases pending as of June 30, 1979 was 10,194, an increase of 27.0 percent over the 8,028 cases pending on June 30, 1978. This is the result of an increase of 1,791 in the number of pending land condemnation cases. Despite the overall increase in the pending caseload, 15 districts were able to reduce the number of pending civil cases, led by Massachusetts with a reduction of the court's pending caseload 17.9 percent over the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978.

Table 38 provides a comparison of the number and type of civil cases pending for each of the years 1970-79. For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, the most significant increase is in U.S. contract actions, which increased from 3,763 cases pending in 1978 to 8,276 in 1979; this increase is largely the result of the influx of cases related to recovery of overpayments and enforcement of judgments. The most dramatic increase in U.S. contract actions was in Michigan, Eastern, where the number of such cases increased from 56 in 1978 to 779 in 1979. The most substantial decline in pending cases was recorded for interstate commerce cases, which dropped 26.8 percent from 9,635 in 1978 to 7,050 in 1979. The bulk of this decline was in Massachusetts where, due to a concerted effort by the district, the number of pending I.C.C. cases dropped from 8,828 to 6,144 in 1979.

Civil Cases Pending Three Years or More

Table 39 provides a comparison of pending civil cases (land condemnation cases excluded), by age of case, for each of the years 1961-79. During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, the number of civil cases pending three years or more reached an all-

The 19,089 civil cases pending three years or more represents 11.5 percent of the 166,668 civil cases pending in the district courts (land condemnation cases excluded) as of June 30, 1979. Table 40 provides a comparison of the number and percent of civil cases pending three years or more in each of the 95 district courts.

The largest increases between 1978 and 1979 in the number of civil cases pending three years or more were experienced in Massachusetts (up from 4,426 to 5,314) and Kentucky, Eastern (up from 400 to 1,065). The three districts having the largest percentage of their pending caseload more than three years old include Massachusetts (45.5 percent), Kentucky, Eastern (29.0 percent) and West Virginia, Southern (24.6 percent).

For the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, there were 22 districts with 200 or more civil cases pending three years or more (land condemnation cases excluded). This compares to 19 districts for the same period last year. Two districts with more than 200 three year old civil cases in 1978 were able to considerably reduce these cases in 1979: Pennsylvania, Western declined from 220 to 146 and New York, Western from 220 to 156.

Table 42 provides a distribution by type of case, of all civil cases pending three years or more as of June 30, 1979 (land condemnation cases excluded). The most significant increases in these cases between 1978 and 1979 were in actions under statutes, which increased 23.2 percent from 10,777 to 13,272. Substantial increases were recorded in the older antitrust, employment civil rights, and I.C.C. cases.

Transfer of Cases Under 28 U.S.C. 1407

During the twelve months ending June 30, 1979, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation transferred 936 civil actions which were originally filed in 87 different district courts to 20 transferee district courts for inclusion in coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings with 282 actions already pending in the transferee districts. In 1978, 696 civil cases were transferred from 81 different district courts to 28 transferee districts for the purpose of coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings with 252 actions already pending in the transferee districts.

The district judges to whom actions have been assigned by the Panel have the responsibility of conducting coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings in those actions. Unless an action is closed in the transferee court or ordered transferred by the transferee judge to the transferee court or other district under 28 U.S.C. 1404(a) or 28 U.S.C. 1406, each of the transferred actions will, at the conclusion of the coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings, be remanded by the Panel for trial and any other appropriate proceedings to the district from which the action was transferred by the Panel.

Since the enactment of the Multidistrict Litigation Act, approved April 29, 1968 (Public Law 90-296), which established 28 U.S.C. 1407 and the Panel, multidistrict dockets have included 4,706 transfers of civil actions and an additional 3,032 civil actions originally filed in the district receiving the transfers. Thus 7,738 cases have been a part of Section 1407 pretrial proceedings in the 59 different transferee district courts from 1968 through June 30, 1979. To date, 4,564 actions have been terminated by the transferee courts or reassigned to transferor judges within the transferee courts and 421 actions have been remanded by the Panel.

A look at the caseload in the transferee districts as of June 30, 1979, reveals that the 2,753 pending actions are distributed throughout 158 dockets. To date, 2,035 actions in those dockets have been terminated by the transferee courts or remanded by the Panel, as have 2,901 actions in 101 other dockets that have resulted in transfers under Section 1407 and have been completely closed. In addition, 1,003 actions in 126 groups of multidistrict litigation have been docketed by the Panel but have not been centralized under 28 U.S.C. 1407.

The accompanying tables provide statistics on the number of cases transferred since the Panel was created, and the flow of cases into and out of individual districts for the twelve month period ending June 30, 1979, and cumulatively for the entire period since 1968. Information on specific cases transferred can be obtained by writing the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation.

Criminal Activity In the U.S. District Courts

The Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts continues to offer statistical data that reflect the work of the United States district courts and is constantly seeking improved methods of presenting the data. The most current improvement in the detailed statistical tables had its origin under the auspices of the Subcommittee on Judicial Statistics of the Judicial Conference. The statistics appearing in the "D" series of the appendix tables now show separately all four levels of offenses, unlike the "D" series tables for 1976 and 1977 which showed only two categories: "all cases" and "felony-misdemeanor" combined.

First time readers will find that the workload is identified by major offense categories and by offense level. Statistics on criminal cases and defendants appear in the Appendix Tables D-1 through D-10. The July 1, 1978 pending figure of 15,878 is 31 cases higher than the June 30, 1978 figure published last year due to minor adjustments in the criminal data base.

Appendix Table D-1 Cases and Defendants, in addition to showing filings by offense level, also shows statistics on cases and defendants terminated and pending for the 95 districts. Table D-2 provides nationwide filings statistics on the nature of the proceeding which commenced the case, the nature of the major offense charged, and the level of offenses. Table D-3 includes cases and defendants commenced within district for all levels of offenses combined and by "felony" only level.

The D-4 table details the disposition of defendants by nature of offense for all levels combined and by "felony" level only. Table D-5 gives sentence data on defendants convicted by nature of offense for all levels combined and for "felony" level only. The D-7 Table, a composite presentation of the D-4 and D-5 statistics, shows the type of disposition for all defendants and felony defendants terminated in each district.

D-8 through D-10 tables reflect statistics on pending cases and defendants. Table D-8 provides pending statistics for all cases and for felony cases only by major offense within district. Table D-9 provides a breakdown by district of all cases and defendants considered triable and non-triable on June 30, 1979.

In order to understand the offense levels that appear in the "D" Tables and in the text where they are specifically referred to as felony, other misdemeanor, minor, and petty, the operational definition for each level that the courts began to furnish beginning October 1, 1975 is set out below:

- Felony - a criminal offense punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year. (18 U.S.C. §1)
- Other misdemeanor - any criminal offense where conviction could result in no more than one year's imprisonment and/or a fine greater than $1,000, or any offense specifically excepted under 18 U.S.C.§3401(f)
- Other minor offense - any misdemeanor, other than a petty offense, for which the penalty does not exceed one year's imprisonment or a fine of not more than $1,000, or both. (18 U.S.C. §3401)
- Petty offense - any misdemeanor for which the penalty does not exceed 6 months imprisonment or a fine of not more than $500, or both. (18 U.S.C. §1)

Criminal Workload

During the year ended June 30, 1979, the criminal workload continued its downward trend. This year, case filings (excluding transfers) dropped to 31,536, a 8.9 percent fall compared to the 1978 total of 34,624 and 21.2 percent below the 1977 figure of 40,000. Compared to 1978, both felony and misdemeanor prosecutions dropped (16.6 percent) whereas minor and petty offenses increased (15.8 percent).

The 32,181 criminal cases terminated (excluding transfers) was a decline of 3,711 cases or 10.3 percent compared to last year's 35,892. When the 1979 total is compared to the 42,524 cases terminated during the twelve months ended June 30, 1977, the drop is even greater at 10,343 cases or 24.3 percent.

Cases pending as of June 30, 1979 declined by 723 cases or 4.6 percent fewer than the 15,847 cases pending on June 30, 1978.

Case Flow by Offense Level

Filings of the felony level cases (excluding transfers) continue to comprise the greatest percentage (62.6 percent) of the filing workload. The 20,755 felony cases filed this year is, however, substantially lower by 4,445 cases or 17.6 percent than last year. This drop in felony prosecutions continues the decline begun last year when such cases dropped by 11.6 percent from 28,504 in 1977 to 25,200 in 1978.

Other misdemeanor filings (1,250) increased modestly during the year by 56 cases or 4.7 percent compared to the previous year, but decreased by a significant 1,731 cases compared to 1977.

The table below sets out the case flow by offense level for all offenses reported (exclusive of transfers) during the three years ended June 30, 1977 - 1979.

Offense Classification

Criminal cases are classifed by the Administrative Office on the basis of the offense which carries the highest possible penalty at conviction. If several offenses are involved and they carry the same penalty, the crime against person would take priority over the crime against property. All attempts (except attempted homicide, which is classified as assault), are classified as substantive offenses, as are all conspiracies, aiding and abetting, and accessory crimes. The statistics shown in Appendix Table D-2 and D-3 were developed in this manner.

Criminal Filings Decline in Major Offense Groups

Overall criminal filings (exclusive of transfers) dropped 8.9 percent this year compared to last year. Most offense groups experienced declines, but weapons and firearms under the miscellaneous offense category, and liquor violations under the internal revenue laws led the groups with decreases of 1,867 cases or 30.7 percent and 59 cases or 59.0 percent, respectively. Other groups that experienced substantial decreases during the year were: auto theft with a drop of 411 cases or 50.7 percent; forgery and counterfeiting, down 24.7 percent or 941 cases; robbery, embezzlement, larceny and theft with drops of 228 (16.6 percent), 319 (16.4 percent), and 575 (14.4 percent), respectively.

Some offenses that experienced a decline in prosecutions can be attributed in part to guidelines established by the Department of Justice and federal authorities. For instance, auto theft violators that are the under twenty-one joyrider variety are turned over to the state or local authorities for prosecution. Also, other offenses like narcotics violations and larceny and theft that are committed by persons under twenty-one are diverted to the local or state authorities. Twenty-eight such defendants in 1979 were tried as juveniles under the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act.

The steady decline noted in weapons and firearms violations represents the Treasury Department's policy of prosecuting convicted felons but turning over first time offenders to state and local authorities for prosecution.

Further, the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 has had the effect of reducing the filing of new cases by excluding superseding indictments and informations unless the original indictment was dismissed pursuant to the defendant's request. Although all offenses are affected by this procedure, narcotics violations are mostly affected. (Table 46 presents a two year picture of criminal cases filed by nature of offense).

Filings By District

Criminal case filings (excluding 1,152 transfers under Rule 20 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure) declined 3,088 cases or 8.9 percent during the twelve months ended June 30, 1979 compared to a year ago. This drop is moderately lower than the 13.4 percent drop seen during the previous year.

Thirteen districts experienced declines of more than 30 percent in case filings this year compared to fourteen districts last year. The districts are shown below.

Filings under weapons and firearms statutes dropped significantly in Louisiana, Middle (from 14 in 1978 to 0 in 1979) and Mississippi, Southern (from 33 in 1978 to 4 in 1979). Of the districts that experienced decreases in filings during the previous year, Michigan, Eastern and South Dakota recorded declines in larceny offenses of 46.6 percent and 22.6 percent, respectively. Declines during 1979 were recorded in larceny offenses for Louisiana, Middle, Florida, Middle and Illinois, Central.

Despite the national decline, ten districts during the twelve months ended June 30, 1979 reported gains of 27 percent or more in filings, down from 12 districts last year.

[1]Court in this district was convened on January 9, 1978.
Data provided for comparison only.

Contributing to New York, Western's increase in filings were larceny cases which rose to 120 compared to 109 a year ago, and fraud filings which rose to 75 compared to 43 a year ago. In Iowa, Southern the increase in fraud filings alone, from 25 in 1978 to 143 in 1979, accounted for the impressive rise in case filings.

During the twelve months ended June 30, 1979, Georgia, Southern reversed its down turn of 70.1 percent in filings last year to a rise of 86.7 percent this year. The 79.5 percent drop in minor traffic offenses during 1978 contributed to the overall decline for that year whereas the 206.8 percent rise in minor traffic offenses in 1979 accounted for the overall filing increase this year.

Seven of the ten districts that filed over 31 percent more cases during 1979 than in 1978, also closed more cases for the same period. These districts were:

Selected Districts	Case Terminations 1978	Case Terminations 1979	Percent Increase in Terminations
Iowa, Southern	98	298	204.1
Guam	29	72	148.3
Georgia, Southern	541	975	80.2
Puerto Rico	195	281	44.1
Oklahoma, Western	329	406	23.4
Colorado	366	432	18.0
Hawaii	1,139	1,293	13.5

Conversely, four of the above districts which increased the case closings, had far more filings resulting in a higher caseload at the close of June 30, 1979. These districts are set out below:

Selected Districts	Pending Cases 1978 - 1979		Percent Increase
Colorado	170	432	154.1
Hawaii	282	674	139.0
Oklahoma, Western	47	76	61.7
Puerto Rico	88	125	42.1

The majority of the cases pending in Hawaii (570 or 84.6 percent) and Colorado (295 or 68.3 percent) were minor offenses filed within the last six months.

Proceedings By Indictment Decline

The implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 effectively reduced the number of defendants reported as "new cases" by the use of superseding indictments and informations. Pursuant to Section 3161(h)(6) of the Speedy Trial Act, the clerks of court are instructed not to open new criminal dockets when the original indictment and or information is dismissed on motion of the government's attorney. This change in instruction resulted in a drop in indictment/informations filed as follows: 1977, 3,106; 1978, 2,310; and 1979, 3,520. Stated differently, had these superseding indictments and informations been counted, the overall count of filings in 1977 would have risen to 43,106, in 1978 to 36,934, and in 1979 to 35,056. (See Table 48 for cases commenced by type of proceedings for the two year period ended June 30, 1979.)

Cases commenced by indictment during the twelve months ended June 30, 1979 continue to comprise the greatest portion (59.4 percent) of the filing workload but represent a smaller percentage than in 1978 (65.5 percent), and 1977 (62.5 percent).

Pending Criminal Cases by Offense

The year-end pending reached a new eleven year low of 15,124 cases, a drop of 723 or 4.6 percent compared to June 30, 1978. Only one offense, burglary, remained the same as last year with 61 cases pending while six offenses increased in a range of 14 to 380 cases and 12 groups decreased in a range of 3 to 589 cases. (See Appendix Table D-8). Drug law violations under the DAPCA law of 1970 were up slightly (2.4 percent) this reporting year. At the close of last year they represented the largest numerical drop (353) in pending cases.

Larceny and theft cases continued their downward swing with 1,038 such cases pending at the close of this year, 11.0 percent fewer than the 1,166 cases pending one year ago.

Weapons and firearms (1,212) and forgery and counterfeiting (1,562) also experienced a decline in cases pending with 589 and 317 fewer respective cases than the previous year. Robbery offenses showed 97 fewer cases pending compared to last year.

Pending embezzlement cases which rose in 1978 by 11.6 percent, dropped sharply this year by 17.9 percent. Immigration cases, mostly illegal re-entry, after an increase between 1977 and 1978 of 24.1 percent, rose moderately by 10.9 percent in 1979.

Pending by District

Not all districts shared in the overall decline of 4.6 percent in the pending caseload. Sixty-nine of the 95 districts were able to reduce their pending caseload. Twenty-eight districts lowered their pending caseload by over 20 percent this year, 6 more than last year's twenty-two districts. Declines in the pending caseload of more than 20 percent were recorded in the following districts:

Six districts from last year's list continued to make strides in reducing their pending caseload with more than a 20 percent drop. They were: Georgia, Southern; South Dakota; Alaska; Delaware; Alabama, Southern; and Michigan, Eastern.

Of the twenty-six districts that experienced increases, nine districts reported gains of more than 20 percent in their pending cases. They were:

District	Percent Increase
Colorado	154.1
Hawaii	139.0
Virginia, Western	75.9
Oklahoma, Western	61.7
Puerto Rico	42.1
Texas, Eastern	35.6
Illinois, Southern	33.3
Wisconsin, Western	32.0
Pennsylvania, Middle	25.5

The rise in pending cases in Hawaii and Colorado can be attributed to the substantial increase in minor offenses. These cases rose from 204 to 570 in Hawaii and from 9 to 295 in Colorado.

Status of Pending Criminal Cases on June 30, 1979

The Speedy Trial Act of 1974 began to impact in October, 1975 on the cases pending on the criminal dockets. Previous to that time defendants were classified as triable (available for final plea), tried, or non-triable. The non-triable defendants included fugitives, persons mentally incompetent to stand trial and others, including those for whom the U.S. Attorney had requested dismissals from the Department of Justice.

Now the emphasis has shifted to two categories: triable and non-triable. If a defendant is not a fugitive or is not classified in one of the existing excludable categories pursuant to the Speedy Trial Act of 1974, the defendant is considered triable. (See Table 56 and 58).

Cases with triable defendants on June 30, 1979 numbered 4,351, down 25.0 percent compared to last year when 5,800 such cases were pending.

Districts With More Than 500 Criminal Cases Pending

The number of districts with 500 or more criminal cases pending this year rose by one over the eight districts as of June 30, 1978. In 1978 eight districts accounted for 39.0 percent of the total pending caseload. In 1979 nine districts accounted for 44.4 percent of the pending caseload.

The nine districts, at the close of this year, were responsible for 29.7 percent of all triable cases and 50.3 percent of the non-triable cases; these figures represent a 3.6 percent and 3.8 percent rise in 1979 compared to 1978.

Status of Pending Criminal Defendants

The number of criminal defendants pending in criminal cases on June 30, 1979 is below last year's count of 22,484 by 1,067 or 4.8 percent. The majority (10,279 or 48.0 percent) of the defendants pending this year was filed within the last six months. A substantial number (6,971) of these defendants were available for final plea or were triable but whose cases still remained to be disposed of at the close of the year.

Defendants classified in the non-triable status accounted for more than half (67.5 percent) of all defendants pending, which is greater than last year's percentage of 59.1. The non-triable status also include defendants who were tried but have not been sentenced because they are under observation and study.

Looking at the last three years indicates that the greatest number of fugitive defendants in pending cases was seen in 1979 when the figure was 8,986; this figure comprised 42.0 percent of the defendants in pending cases for that year.

Disposition of Criminal Cases and Defendants

In order to assist new readers in their analysis of the data published in the Appendix D-4, D-5, and D-7 (non-duplicate defendant) termination tables, a synopsis of a fuller discussion which appeared in the 1978 Annual Report is included.

In the statistical accounting used in the defendant termination tables, a defendant is counted as one individual (non-duplicate) irrespective of the number of indictments that may be filed in the same 12-month period in separately docketed cases (in which charges of single or multiple offenses are made). Thus, in counting defendants, it's imperative to count each defendant's disposition only once. The offense is always the most serious offense at the time the case was disposed of whether it ended in dismissal or conviction.

Where a conviction was obtained and was based on multiple offenses, the offense that carried the most severe penalty is considered the offense at time of disposition. The penalty is classified with a severity code used by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. The severity classification accounts for the nature of the crime. Thus, a crime against a person is classified as more serious than a crime against property, while a crime of a moral turpitude nature is second to both.

Duplicate defendants (charged more than once in separately docketed cases) are represented by the single offense that is the most serious. Thus, where the dispositions are mixed (include dismissals and convictions), the most severe offense at time of conviction takes precedence. To do otherwise would result in the dismissal nullifying the conviction outcome. There can be two or more dispositions vying for the most serious offense position. When that occurs, the selection criteria is further based on the disposition by court or jury trial rather than by plea. If this does not end the selection process, the longer time interval from filing to disposition is favored.

Disposition of Criminal Cases

This year there were 33,442 cases terminated involving 44,567 defendants. The disposition rate was 68.9 percent, a slight decrease compared to the 70.2 percent disposition rate of June 30, 1978. The disposition rate is calculated by combining all cases with defendants filed and pending and then dividing by all cases with defendants disposed of, including disposition by Rule 20, pretrial diversion, nolle prosequi, and dismissal. (See the Appendix Table D-1 for the criminal case and defendant activity flow by district).

Defendants Disposed of by Offense

At the close of this reporting year, 41,175 defendants were terminated in the 95 United States district courts. Of 41,175, a total of 6,791 were dismissals, 1,001 lower than last year's 7,792. The majority (80 percent or 32,913) of the prosecutions resulted in conviction and sentence, down by 9.8 percent compared to 36,505 last year.

A part of the reduction in the prosecutions discussed earlier resulted from diverting certain offenses like weapons and firearms and auto theft to state and local authorities pursuant to policies of the federal authorities. For those offenses that were prosecuted in the district courts, the majority were disposed of by plea of guilty or nolo contendere. During the year, 1,255 or 62.5 percent of those charged with firearms violations was disposed of in this manner; the number was 514 or 69.4 percent for auto theft violations. For narcotics drug law violations there were 6,609 defendants terminated with over half (3,662) convicted by plea of guilty or nolo contendere. (Table 54 provides a 10 year span of the narcotic drug law case flow).

Note: "Regular" denotes all persons sentenced without any drug law involvement. DAPCA refers to defendants receiving split sentences who were sentenced under provision of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act.

Of the 32,913 convicted defendants terminated during the twelve months ended June 30, 1979, 14,580 were sentenced to prison terms. This number represents a 16.3 percent drop compared to the 17,426 so sentenced last year. Most of the imprisonment terms were imposed under provisions of regular sentencing statutes (9,818), include 172 juveniles under the Federal Juvenile Delinquency Act, with the remaining under special sentencing statutes (4,762). The average sentence for the 9,818 imprisoned under the regular sentencing statutes was 49.0 months. The average supervision term for the 13,459 placed under supervision of the Federal Probation Service was 32.3 months which is about the same as last year (32.4 percent) when 14,515 received probation terms.

Disposition by Circuit

Analysis of the D-7 table shows that nationwide a total of 3,234 split sentences, 887 indeterminate sentences, and 641 Youth Correction Act sentences were imposed, representing respective decreases of 0.9 percent, 21.6 percent, and 19.6 percent over the previous year. Of the 41,175 defendants disposed of from July 1, 1978 to June 30, 1979, the majority were closed in the Fifth (10,291 or 25.0 percent) and Ninth (8,279 or 20.1 percent) circuits. These two circuits had the largest number of defendants sentenced to imprisonment terms of sixty months and over, 693 and 574, respectively.

The Fifth and Ninth circuits imposed the largest number of sentences under these special statutes with two districts, Texas, Southern (188) and California, Central (167), which led in these circuits with "split sentences". On a national basis, more split sentences were imposed for fraud violations (718), DAPCA Drug law violations (454), larceny and theft (410), and forgery and counterfeiting (359) convictions than any other offense. (See Table 58 which shows regular splits and DAPCA Drug Law splits separately for the years June 30, 1972 through June 30, 1978).

TRIALS

Trials Completed

During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, a total of 18,563 trials were completed in the district courts. For the purposes of this report, a trial is defined as "any contested proceeding before either a court or jury in which evidence is introduced." The 18,563 trials completed in 1979 represents a decline of 1.5 percent from 1978 and is the lowest since 1971. Table 59 provides statistics on the number and type of trials completed in the district courts during the twelve month periods ended June 30, 1962 - 1979.

Of the 18,563 trials completed, 11,764 (63.3 percent) were civil trials, an all-time high; this compares to 61.1 percent for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1978. Nonjury trials comprised 61.8 percent of the trials completed in 1979 compared to 61.9 percent in 1978. Civil nonjury trials experienced the greatest drop, declining 8.1 percent from the 1978 level; the 3,667 criminal jury trials completed in 1979 was the lowest since 1967. Appendix table C-7 provides detailed statistics on the numbers of civil and criminal trials completed in each of the 95 district courts for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979.

Length of Trials

While the number of trials completed in the district courts during 1979 declined slightly, the length of these trials increased. The reduction in overall trials completed was highlighted by a 5.3 percent reduction in the number of trials lasting one day, from 9,358 in 1978 to 8,863 for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. The 8,863 one day trials is a new low for the period from 1972 - 1979. This decline was somewhat compensated for by increases in the number of lengthy trials, especially those lasting from 10 to 19 days. During 1979, there were 384 trials lasting between 10 and 19 days, an increase of 11.6 percent over the 344 such trials completed in 1978. In addition to one day trials, the only other category experiencing a decline was trials lasting 20 days or more, which dropped slightly from 114 in 1978 to 111 in 1979. This increase in the overall length of trials completed is reflected in the fact that during 1979, 18.8 percent of the trials lasted 4 days or more compared to only 17.7 percent in 1978.

The increase in the length of overall trials is also reflected in jury trials. Jury trials lasting only one day declined to 1,066 in 1979, a drop of 11.8 percent from 1978 and 58.4 percent from the number of one day trials completed in 1973. The greatest increases in jury trials were experienced in trials of 4 - 9 days and those 20 days or more, both of which increased 5.0 percent in 1979. The percent of jury trials lasting 4 days or more increased from 33.9 percent in 1978 to 35.9 percent in 1979. This continues a steady rise in this figure from 1972.

Appendix table C-8 provides data on the type and length of civil and criminal trials completed in the district courts during the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. The largest portion of civil nonjury trials lasting 4 days or more were civil rights trials, which accounted for 28.5 percent of the 799 such trials completed. Trials related to personal injury suits represented 558 (46.2 percent) of the 1,208 civil jury trials completed in 1979 which lasted 4 days or more. The largest number of criminal nonjury trials lasting four days or more in 1979 were cases related to drug law violations (30.2 percent) and fraud cases (28.6 percent). Similarly, the largest numbers of criminal jury trials lasting 4 days or more were also related to drug law violations (25.0 percent) and fraud cases (25.0 percent).

Median Time From Issue to Trial

The median time from issue to trial in civil cases where trials are completed has increased steadily since 1976 after remaining constant for the period 1971 - 1976. (Issue is defined as the date when the answer or last response is filed).

During the period ended June 30, 1979, the median time from issue to trial continued to rise, increasing to 14 months which is an all time high. The median time for nonjury trials also increased to an all time high of 14 months, up from 13 months in 1978. The highest median time is indicated for jury trials which rose to 15 months for the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979. This matches the previous high time interval attained in 1967, 1968 and 1969.

Appendix table C-10 provides detailed statistics on the median time from issue to trial for each of the 95 district courts. The highest overall median time was recorded in Massachusetts with 39 months. The lowest median time was 4 months in the Middle District of Alabama. The district with the lowest median time from issue to trial for nonjury trials was Pennsylvania, Middle with a median of 3 months. Virginia, Eastern recorded the lowest median time in jury trials of 5 months.

Three-Judge Court Hearings

The volume of three-judge court hearings plummeted 55.2 percent to a total of 30 during the year ended June 30, 1979. The number of three-judge court hearings had started to fall after the 1973 high of 320 hearings, but the major decline in such hearings in the last three years was due to legislation which reduced the requirements for three-judge courts under Title 28.

Section 2284 of Title 28 provides that a district court of three judges shall be convened when:

1. Required by special statute elsewhere in the law. Such statutes include three-judge court provisions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

2. An action is filed challenging the constitutionality of the apportionment of Congressional districts.

3. An action challenging the constitutionality of the apportionment of any statewide legislative body is filed.

Of the 30 three-judge hearings reported in 1979, 15 were classified as involving voting rights, 3 dealt with taxation, another 3 were hearings on the constitutionality of state statutes, a further 3 were held on reapportionment, while the remaining 6 were matters involving alleged violation of civil rights.

Juror Utilization

A comprehensive picture of the jury operations in the federal courts follows with grand and petit juror usage statistics. These statistics, presented in appendix tables J-1, 2, and 3, are compiled from information reported on the JS-11G and JS-11 monthly forms submitted by the 95 district courts during the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979. National totals for prior years are included in text tables to provide a means of identifying trends in juror usage.

Detailed information on payments to jurors will appear in the 1979 Juror Utilization Report which will be available in the fall.

Grand Jury

Grand jury activity increased markedly in the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979. As shown in the accompanying table, the total number of grand jury sessions convened increased 9.7 percent from 8,929 sessions in 1978 to 9,791 sessions in 1979. Nationally, the number of jurors in session climbed to 194,168 in 1979 - a 10.0 percent increase over the 1978 figure. Hours in session also rose substantially to a record 50,896. This increased activity can be traced to a growing use of special grand juries.[1]

In 1979, there was an increase of 15 grand juries in existence over the 659 reported in 1978. Twelve of the 15 were special grand juries. The number of special grand juries in existence, thus, increased 13.5 percent from 89 in 1978 to 101 in 1979. In large judicial districts, regular[2] grand juries, as a rule, meet to investigate isolated instances of criminal activity, while a special grand jury will be impaneled to study the overall picture of criminal activity in the district. The role of the special grand jury has historically been that of an advisory body and it has had greater discretion than the regular grand jury in investigating crime. At the end of its term of service a special grand jury may submit a report concerning the misconduct of public officials or organized crime conditions in the district.[3]

1 A special grand jury is impaneled pursuant to the authority of 18 U.S.C., Section 3331(a) and may be extended by court order beyond the original 18-month term up to 36 months.

2 Regular grand juries have a natural life of 18 months but may be discharged by court order at anytime during the 18-month period, Rule 6(g), Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.

3 18 U.S.C., Section 3333.

The statistics which are collected on grand juries show that special grand juries meet more frequently and for longer hours than regular grand juries. Each special grand jury met an average of 110.8 hours per year in 1979, up from 84.9 hours in 1978. In comparison, each regular grand jury met an average of 68.7 hours in 1978 and 69.3 hours in 1979. Moreover, in 1979 special grand juries averaged 23.6 sessions per year (19.0 in 1978) compared to 12.9 sessions (12.7 in 1978) for each regular grand jury in existence at some time during the year.

Nationwide, 363 grand juries were in existence on July 1, 1978. During the current year 311 grand juries were impaneled and 282 were discharged, resulting in a total of 392 grand juries in existence on June 30, 1979. Overall, 674 grand juries were reported in existence at some time during the 12-month period. The number of grand juries in existence varies considerably among the districts due to such factors as amount and type of criminal activity and the number of places of holding court. The Eastern District of New York recorded 48 grand juries in existence in 1979. In contrast, only one grand jury served in six of the 92 districts[4] reporting grand jury activity in the 12-month period.

Twenty-four districts reported a total of 101 special grand juries in existence during the 12-month period. The distribution of these ranged from thirteen districts reporting one impaneled special grand jury to the Southern District of New York, Central District of California and Eastern District of New York with 17, 19, and 22, respectively, in 1979.

The Southern District of New York reported the greatest number of grand jury sessions convened (979), the largest number of grand jurors in session (19,738), and the highest number of hours in session (4,329). Montana presents a contrasting picture of grand jury activity with 7 sessions involving 143 grand jurors for a total of 45 hours. Forty-five of the 92 districts reporting grand jury activity conducted 50 or more sessions during the 12-month period - an average of approximately one session per week.

[4] The Virgin Islands, Canal Zone, and Northern Mariana Islands reported no grand juries in existence in the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979.

Grand jurors are included in the category of "Jurors in Session" only when they participate in a convened session.[5] Jurors in travel status, prospective jurors reporting only for impanelment, or jurors waiting for a quorum are not included in this category. Nationally, there were 19.8 jurors per grand jury session and 5.20 hours per session. The average number of grand jurors per session ranged from a low of 18.1 in Oregon to 22.5 in the Western District of Arkansas. A higher average number of hours per session is one indication of more efficient use of grand jurors' time. Twelve districts averaged 7 hours or more per session in 1979. The Western District of Washington recorded 7.97 hours per session, while grand jurors in Vermont spent an average of 3.66 hours per session.

The following table provides a summary of the number of cases that were commenced by indictment and the number of defendants that were proceeded against by indictment for the years 1975 through 1979. This information is derived from the criminal statistical reports submitted to the Administrative Office by the clerk of court for each district. The number of grand jury sessions convened, as well as the number of hours grand juries were in session, is also provided. This information can be used to determine what was produced by the grand jury system in the past five years. Nationally, 18,973 cases, involving 28,395 defendants, were commenced by indictment as a result of the 9,791 grand jury sessions in 1979. While the number of grand jury sessions continued to increase, the average number of defendants indicted per grand jury session continued to drop. In 1975 an average of 5.10 defendants were indicted per grand jury session, while in 1979 the average decreased to 2.90.

Petit Jury

The utilization of petit jurors in the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979 improved in many district courts; however, the national Juror Utilization Index (J.U.I.) increased slightly this past year. The J.U.I. is the average number of jurors on hand for each jury trial day and is calculated by dividing the total number of available jurors by the total number of jury trial days. The national J.U.I. for 1979 was 19.60.

As shown in the accompanying table there were 565,617 prospective jurors available during the current 12-month period. This total has been broken down into three categories according to the status of jury service each juror attained on each day of service. For the first time since 1974 the percentage of jurors selected or serving dropped below 60 to 59.2 percent. The percentage of jurors who were challenged for cause or peremptorily by counsel increased to 16.2 percent. Jurors not selected, serving or challenged rose slightly from 24.0 percent in 1978 to 24.6 percent in 1979.

[5] A grand jury consists of 16 to 23 sworn jurors with a quorum of 16 required to conduct business, Rule 6(a), Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.

Percent	41.9	44.1	40.7	43.3	45.0	47.4	-	-

A 5.7 percent decrease in the number of criminal jury trial days[1] coupled with a 4.0 percent increase in the number of civil trial days resulted in a 1.3 percent drop in the total number of jury trial days in 1979. While criminal trial days account for a majority of jury trial days, civil jury trial days are in an ascent and will soon take the lead if the trend of the last three years continues.

The percent of jurors selected for or serving on jury trials ranged from a high of 81.7 percent in Rhode Island to a low of 18.2 percent in the Northern Mariana Islands. In this category a total of 54 districts recorded percentages higher than the national figure of 59.2 percent.

The Middle District of Louisiana and Western District of Virginia reported highs of 39.1 percent and 39.0 percent, respectively, for prospective jurors challenged either for cause or peremptorily by counsel, while the Northern District of New York recorded 7.4 percent in this category. The wide range of percentages of challenged jurors is partially attributable to the various local court practices and traditions in the use of peremptory challenges by counsel and the increased number of challenges for cause in districts which have had one or more notorious trials.

A prime area of concern for those involved in juror management should be the reduction of the number of people who attend court and who are not selected, serving or challenged. This group includes the people who are not sent to a voir dire because of such factors as an overcall of jurors for that day or late settlements or pleas, and also those who are not reached on voir dire questioning due to such factors as excessively large panels or poor pool management. Many districts have been able to show improvement in this area through the use of juror utilization practices such as the use of less than 12 member civil jury, jury pooling, multiple voir dire, established deadlines for settlements or pleas, staggering of trial starts, reduction in voir dire size, effective use of pretrial hearings, and use of the code-a-phone for notification of jurors not to report when their attendance is no longer required or is to be postponed.

Hawaii achieved the lowest figures of jurors not selected, serving or challenged with 4.2 percent, while 63.4 percent of the jurors in the Northern Mariana Islands and 52.5 percent of Alaska's jurors were so classified. Eighteen districts recorded 15 percent or less of their available jurors as not selected, serving or challenged during the year ended June 30, 1979.

The percentage of criminal jury trial days for the 12-month period ranged from 15 percent in New Hampshire to 100 percent in the Canal Zone and the Northern Mariana Islands. Thirty-seven of the 43 districts having a majority of civil jury trial days recorded J.U.I.'s under 20.00, while only 23 of the 52 districts having a majority of criminal jury trial days recorded J.U.I.'s under 20.00.

The information on jury trial days can be used to develop a better understanding of the type of jury trial demands which the different districts must meet. A high percentage of criminal jury trials generally presents more problems to overcome in attempting to utilize jurors efficiently. The criminal jury trial often requires a larger panel of prospective jurors than needed for most civil trials due to anticipated increases in challenges and alternate jurors.

The Juror Usage Indexes for the year ended June 30, 1979 range from a low of 11.70 in the Western District of Oklahoma to 46.10 in the Northern Mariana Islands. Sixty of the 95 districts recorded indexes under 20.00 for the 12-month period.

1 A jury trial day is counted for each jury in trial each day. For example, one jury in trial on Monday is one jury trial day; four juries in trial on Monday are counted as four jury trial days.

Federal Public/Community Defenders

As of June 30, 1979 there were thirty-one federal public defender and seven community defender organizations in operation. (The defender office in Minnesota converted from a part-time community defender organization to a full-time federal public defender on October 1, 1978.) Appendix tables K-1 and L-1 provide information, by defender office, on the number of cases opened, the number of cases closed, the average number of hours spent in court on each closed case, and the number of cases pending at the end of the report period. The information is broken down into three major categories of representations: criminal, appeals, and other (includes habeas corpus, parole/probation revocation, witness, and motions to correct or reduce sentence). The statistics in tables K-1 and L-1 only cover representations by federal public/community defender offices and therefore exclude representations provided by private panel attorneys under the Criminal Justice Act of 1964. These statistics are available in a separate report.

Federal Public Defenders

Federal public defenders were assigned a total of 14,077 new cases during the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1979, a decrease of 550 cases, or 3.8 percent, from the 14,627 cases opened during the same period last year. This is the first year that there has been a decrease in the incoming caseload of the federal public defenders since the inception of the defender reporting program in 1972. The number of cases opened by those offices which were in operation the entire twelve-month period ranged from a high of 1,627 cases in California, Central to a low of 65 cases in the office serving both Illinois, Central and Southern.

Of the twenty-four offices which were in operation during the entire twelve-month periods ended June 30, 1978 and 1979, seventeen recorded a decrease in the number of cases opened. The largest decrease was reported by the Arizona public defender which opened 957 cases, a decline of 23.4 percent from the 1,250 cases reported in 1978. At the other end of the scale, West Virginia, Southern with 137 representations in 1979 showed an increase of 14.2 percent over the 120 representations reported in 1978.

[1]This category includes both the appeals and other representations shown in appendix Table K1.

As in previous years the majority of matters assigned to federal public defenders were criminal cases. In 1979, 8,834, or 62.8 percent, of the cases opened involved criminal matters.

The number of "other representations" (including appeals) assigned to federal public defenders continued its upward climb. A total of 5,243 such cases were opened in 1979, an increase of 203 cases, or 4.0 percent, over the 5,040 cases opened in 1978. Court directed representations of inmates of the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners at Springfield, Missouri continue to decline. In 1978 these representations accounted for 17.1 percent of all "other representations", while in 1979 this figure fell to 14.4 percent.

Federal public defenders closed 14,205 cases in 1979, down 3.3 percent from the 14,695 cases closed in 1978. Of this total 9,204, or 64.8 percent, were criminal case closings, while 5,001, or 35.2 percent, were closings of "other representations". The number of cases closed by offices which were in operation during the entire twelve-month period ranged from a high of 1,710 case closings in California, Central to a low of 55 case closings in Illinois, Central and Southern. The number of hours in court per closed case has averaged approximately 1.6 hours since 1972.

The 3.8 percent decrease in the number of cases opened accompanied by the 3.3 percent decrease in the number of cases closed resulted in a decrease of 4.0 percent in the number of cases pending as of June 30, 1979. Nineteen of the thirty offices in operation before July 1, 1978 recorded fewer cases pending at the end of the report period.

Community Defender Organizations

A total of 7,177 cases were opened by the eight community defender organizations during the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1979. This was an increase of 10.9 percent over the 6,472 cases opened during the same period in 1978. Only eight case openings were reported by Minnesota in its last three months of operation (July-September 1978) as a community defender organization. Of the total number of cases opened 5,206, or 72.5 percent, were criminal matters, while 1,971, or 27.5 percent, were "other representations" (includes appeals).

The Southern District of California recorded the largest number of case openings with 2,586; the New York organization (includes the Eastern and Southern districts of New York and the Second Circuit Court of Appeals) was second with 2,051 case filings. Georgia, Northern and Oregon recorded the smallest number of case openings with 329 and 320, respectively.

Of the seven offices in operation during the entire twelve-month periods ended June 30, 1978 and 1979, three recorded decreases in their case openings. The largest decline was experienced by Pennsylvania, Eastern which opened 584 cases, 45.7 percent fewer than the 1,076 cases opened a year ago. The number of cases opened by Michigan, Eastern and Georgia, Northern fell by 21.6 percent and 17.5 percent, respectively. At the other end of the scale, California, Southern recorded an increase of 1,170 cases, or 82.6 percent. Most of this increase can be attributed to the large number (975 petty offense cases) of representations before a magistrate for plea and sentencing of aliens charged with illegal entry.

The community defender organizations also recorded an increase of 11.9 percent in the number of cases disposed of during this report period. Three of the seven offices in operation for the entire twelve-month periods ended June 30, 1978 and 1979 experienced an increase, with California, Southern recording the largest increase of 86.2 percent. Pennsylvania, Eastern recorded the largest decline in cases closed, 440 cases, or 40.6 percent.

Of the 7,585 cases closed by the community defender offices in 1979, California, Southern disposed of 2,744, or 36.2 percent. As noted previously, this figure includes 975 immigration related petty offense cases. The New York organization disposed of the second largest number of cases with a total of 2,708 closed. At the other end of the scale, Oregon disposed of 285 cases during the same period.

The average number of hours in court per closed case was 2.0, a modest decrease compared to the 2.3 hours reported a year ago. California, Southern recorded the lowest average in this category with 1.2 hours per closed case; while Georgia, Northern recorded the highest with 3.3 hours.

The pending caseload for the community defender organizations dropped from 2,137 on June 30, 1978 to 1,729 on June 30, 1979, a decline of 19.1 percent. California, Southern recorded the largest decline at 37.5 percent. The only office which reported an increase in its pending caseload was Oregon with an increase of 47.3 percent.

[1]The Minnesota community defender organization is not included in the 1975 data.
[2]The Minnesota community defender organization closed on September 30, 1978.
[3]This category includes both the appeals and other representations as shown in appendix Table L1.

United States Magistrates

During the year, magistrates conducted 560 evidentiary hearings in criminal cases in 52 districts and 783 hearings in civil cases in 59 districts. There were 563 hearings conducted by magistrates in prisoner cases in 53 districts. Magistrates completed 590 special master references in 48 districts. In 53 districts magistrates conducted 570 full trials of civil cases, including 109 jury trials, upon the consent of the parties. These full trials were in addition to other cases terminated without actual trials in which the parties had also consented to disposition of the litigation before magistrates.

Magistrates disposed of 100,267 minor offense cases, including petty offenses, during the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979. The total was slightly less than the 102,547 minor offense cases handled in 1978 (down 2.2 percent).

Of the total, 87,460 were petty offense cases, about 0.2 percent below the 87,654 petty offenses reported last year, but more than reported in any other prior year. The relative stability in petty offense cases in the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979 occurred despite continuing improvements and refinements in the statistical reporting system and the growing use of collateral forfeiture procedures which permit the disposition of many petty offenses without an appearance before a federal judicial officer. During the year, a total of 455,092 violation notices were issued.

Petty offense cases involving traffic, drunk and disorderly, trespass and theft charges increased during the past year, as did offenses grouped under the "other" category. Cases involving immigration, mail, food and drug violations, and hunting, fishing, and camping offenses, decreased.

Of the total number of minor offenses disposed of by magistrates during the year, 12,807 were above the level of petty offenses, a drop of 14 percent from the 14,893 reported in 1978. Of these, 8,302 involved serious traffic violation charges, such as driving while intoxicated, a drop from the last year's figure of 10,473. The other specific categories of minor offenses cases above petty offenses generally declined during the year ending June 30, 1979. Assault, mail and food and drug violations, however, increased during the year, as did offenses under the general category of "other" offenses.

Of the 100,267 minor offense defendants coming before magistrates this year, 19,578 received a full trial on the merits. There were 65,349 defendants who pled guilty, and the remaining 15,340 minor offense cases were dismissed in open court by the magistrates. Of the 19,578 defendants who participated in full trials before magistrates, 13,661 were convicted of the charges against them.

Table 69 shows the number of minor offense cases disposed of by United States magistrates for the years 1972 and 1976 through 1979, classified by nature of offense. The ten districts with the largest number of minor offense cases disposed of by magistrates during the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979 are set out in Table 70.

The number of precommitment proceedings in criminal cases conducted by United States magistrates during the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979 has continued the decline of past years. This category dropped 9.7 percent, from 77,332 last year to 69,798 this year. The decline was, in large part, attributable to an overall drop in the number of felony prosecutions initiated in the district courts by the Department of Justice over that period, as well as to an increased emphasis on initiating prosecutions by presentment to grand juries rather than by complaints before magistrates. It is also due in part to changes in court procedures, such as the conduct of arraignments by magistrates. This procedure permits the combining of some bail hearings with the arraignments, thus a separate bail hearing is not counted in the statistics.

Applications for arrest warrants considered by magistrates fell from 14,721 in 1978 to 11,423 from the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979. Summonses sought, however, rose from 1,413 to 1,722 and search warrants rose from 4,491 to 4,606 for the same period.

The total number of bail hearings, including those involving material witnesses and alleged probation violators, decreased slightly from 43,147 in 1978 to 40,573 for the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979. This year 5,513 applications for review of these bail determinations were reported, also less than the 6,427 applications reported last year. Preliminary examinations conducted by magistrates declined from 5,384 to 4,349 for this period, and removal hearings fell from 1,749 to 1,612.

There were 176 full-time magistrate positions authorized for appointment on October 1, 1978. During the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1979, the incumbents of those positions handled 221,495 matters - 76 percent of the total disposed of by magistrates nationally. The remaining 70,684 proceedings were conducted by part-time magistrates.

Full-time magistrates conducted 79 percent of the preliminary proceedings in criminal cases, disposed of 57 percent of the minor offenses cases and handled 90 percent of the "additional duties" performed during the year. Table 72 shows the breakdown of matters handled by full-time magistrates vis-a-vis part-time magistrates for the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979.

At least two full-time magistrates had been authorized for appointment in each of the 25 largest district courts by October 1, 1978. The extent to which these full-time positions have been used in each court is reflected in Table 73.

FEDERAL PROBATION SYSTEM

Additional Appendix Probation Statistical Tables

This marks the second year that an analysis of the Federal Probation System caseload has appeared in this section of the Annual Report of the Director and the first time it has appeared in the preliminary Annual Report.

In 1969, because of other program priorities, the processing of individual probation records was discontinued. Tables E-1 and E-2 in the appendix were thereafter produced using monthly summary sheets provided by each district. Subsequently, an improved computer system for capturing records on each person received for and removed from supervision was reestablished, and in 1976, a mini-computer was installed with terminals that allowed personnel to directly access and update the computer files. By June 1978, after five years of individual record entries and three reconciliations of field office files with the computer files at the Administrative Office of the U. S. Courts, Appendix tables E-1 and E-2 were produced from the probation records. This year Appendix tables E-3 through E-7 for the first time were generated by the same method for publication in this report.

This system provides a vast array of data collected on each person received for supervision, including the period of supervision, the number of months completed under supervision, and the reason for removal from supervision. Using this expanded base of information, five new appendix tables are presented in addition to tables E-1 and E-2. All new appendix tables on persons received for supervision and removed from supervision exclude inter-district transfer actions and reinstatements.

Appendix Table E-3 reflects all persons under supervision on June 30, 1979 for each district by major offense at the time of conviction. This table complements Table E-2, which focuses on persons under supervision by type of supervision, that is, probation, parole, pretrial diversion, etc.

Appendix Table E-4 indicates, by district, probationers placed on supervision by district court judges by the length of the probation term imposed. Also provided is the percentage of persons received with terms of two years or more.

Appendix Table E-5 presents court probationers who satisfactorily completed all of their supervision terms and those discharged as satisfactory prior to the original expiration date.

Appendix Table E-6 indicates the average term imposed compared to the average term served for all court probationers who successfully completed their terms during the year, and the percentage of early terminations.

Appendix Table E-7 provides the national total of persons removed by type of supervision. Highlighted are the number removed with no violation, and violations with the type of violation in the three general categories, major, minor, and technical.

Probation System Case Flow

During the twelve month period ended June 30, 1979, 33,839 persons were received on new or reinstated periods of supervision. Persons removed from supervision numbered 35,852 excluding transfers, and the number of persons under supervision in the 94 reporting districts (Northern Marianas not reporting) at the close of this reporting period was 66,087 (see Appendix Table E-1).

Persons Under Supervision Decreases Slightly

Table 74 shows national totals of persons under supervision on June 30 of last year and this year by type of supervision with the numerical and percentage change. The 66,087 persons under the supervision of the Federal Probation System on June 30, 1979 represents a slight decrease of 0.9 percent or 594 fewer persons than at the close of last year. Increases in parolees (972; 8 percent), special parolees (492; 13.6 percent), mandatory releasees (111; 5.8 percent), and pretrial diversion cases (105; 4.6 percent) were offset by a large decline in court probationers (-2,031; -5.2 percent) and small declines in probationers serving terms imposed by U. S. magistrates (-161; -2.2 percent) and military parolees (-82; -28.6 percent).

Technical Note

The date on which active supervision begins, or the "Received Date", is used to determine if an individual was under supervision at the beginning of the year (July 1) or was received for supervision during the year.

Each year a limited number of records are filed with received dates prior to the close of the previous year. Thus Appendix Table E-1 shows these persons as having been under suspervision when the year began even though they were not counted at the close of the previous year. For this reason, comparison of persons under supervision on July 1 of this year's Table E-1 and persons under supervision on June 30 of last year's Table E-1 will show minor differences. Yearly comparisons in the text, however, are based on the June 30 figures shown in each report.

Change in District Caseloads is Small

The relatively small change in the national caseload is reflected in individual districts as displayed in Table 75 with over half of the 94 districts showing no more than a five percent change from the 1978 ending figure of persons under supervision. However, fourteen districts, as shown below, had changes of 15 percent or more.

The following districts had increases greater than 15 percent:

District	1978	1979	Increase	Percent
Guam	35	53	18	51.4
New York, Western	404	531	127	31.4
Arkansas, Western	152	196	44	29.0
Virgin Islands	241	288	47	19.5
Idaho	167	196	29	17.4
Tennessee, Western	408	474	66	16.2

In addition, Southern Texas (262; 10.6 percent), Eastern New York (225; 10 percent), and Northern Texas (159; 9.7 percent) recorded an increase in their caseloads of over 100 persons.

These eight districts had declines of 15 percent or more:

District	1978	1979	Decrease	Percent
South Dakota	333	256	77	-23.1
Alabama, Middle	373	292	81	-21.7
Delaware	230	182	48	-20.9
Georgia, Middle	547	419	128	-17.1

Alaska	249	209	40	-16.1
Kansas	580	493	87	-15.0

Further, Eastern Michigan (-199; -10.4 percent), Northern California (-157; -9.1 percent), Northern Ohio (-125; -10.2 percent), New Jersey (-108; -6.3 percent) and Eastern Missouri (-101; -12.3 percent) showed declines of more than 100 persons under supervision on June 30, 1979 as compared to June 30, 1978.

Persons Under Supervision Showing More Parolees, Less Probationers

The final column in Table 74 shows the proportion of the national caseload which each type of supervision represented for last year and this year. Persons released on supervision from institutions proportionately increased from 27 percent on June 30, 1978 to 29.5 percent on June 30, 1979. This is an increase of 1,493 in the number of persons serving under the four types of institutional supervision. Conversely, probationers serving terms imposed by district court judges and U. S. magistrates or serving under conditions of pretrial diversion decreased by 2,087 from 73.0 percent of the total to 70.5 percent.

The accompanying graph shows that persons under the supervison of the court rose continuously from 1970 through 1975, leveled off between 1976 and 1978, and began to decline during the past year. During the same years, the number of persons supervised after institutional release has increased steadily excluding small declines in 1976 and 1977, and since June 30, 1977 this group has risen by 2,794.

PERSONS UNDER SUPERVISION AND RECEIVED FOR SUPERVISION

12 MONTHS ENDED JUNE 30, 1970–1979

*Excludes transfers

Table E-2 in the Appendix shows persons under supervision on June 30, 1979 in each district by type of case. Parole, mandatory release, military parole and special parole accounts for 40 percent or more of the total caseload in six districts. One of these, Eastern Michigan, shows 49.5 percent or one-half of its caseload as persons serving parole for the remainder of institutional sentences. The others are Minnesota (46.2 percent); Texas, Western (42.3 percent); Oklahoma, Western (40.9 percent); Indiana, Northern (40.1 percent); and Missouri, Eastern (40 percent).

The significance of this shift in the numbers of persons under the different types of supervision is that probation is controlled by persons directly accessible to the probation officer - judges, U. S. magistrates, and U. S. attorneys in pretrial diversion cases. Necessary arrest warrants can be obtained and violation hearings held in the immediate vicinity of the probation office. Supervision upon institutional release, by contrast, must be coordinated with the U. S. Parole Commission regional offices which are usually distant from the district and thus communicated with by mail. Violation testimony is written rather than verbal in most parole revocation hearings, and exchange of information affecting the individual parolee is slow and indirect.

Parolees, more so than probationers, are convicted felons and many have previous arrests and convictions relating to an established pattern of criminal activity, making them less amenable to direction from the probation officer. For these and other reasons, parolees tend to require more time of the probation officer in the administration of supervision.

Persons Under Supervision By Offense

Appendix Table E-3 groups persons under supervision on June 30, 1979 in each district by offense. The accompanying chart presents graphically the national totals for all types of supervision. Nearly one out of every four persons under supervision at the end of this reporting period were drug offenders (15,176 or 23 percent of the total) with 12.1 percent (7,974) having committed offenses involving addictive narcotics, 5.8 percent (3,854) involved in marihuana offenses, and 5.1 percent (3,348) having committed offenses with other substances which are controlled under provisions of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970.

Other offenses which accounted for large numbers of persons under supervision were embezzlement and fraud, (19.5 percent; 12,855); larceny and theft, (12 percent; 7,942); forgery and counterfeiting, (10.9 percent; 7,226); and homicide, robbery, assault, and burglary which together comprised 8.5 percent (5,588) of the total. Of 66,087 persons under supervision as of this report, 73.8 percent (48,787) had committed an offense included in one of these five major categories.

Continuing Drop in New Probationers Causes Decline in Persons Received For Supervision

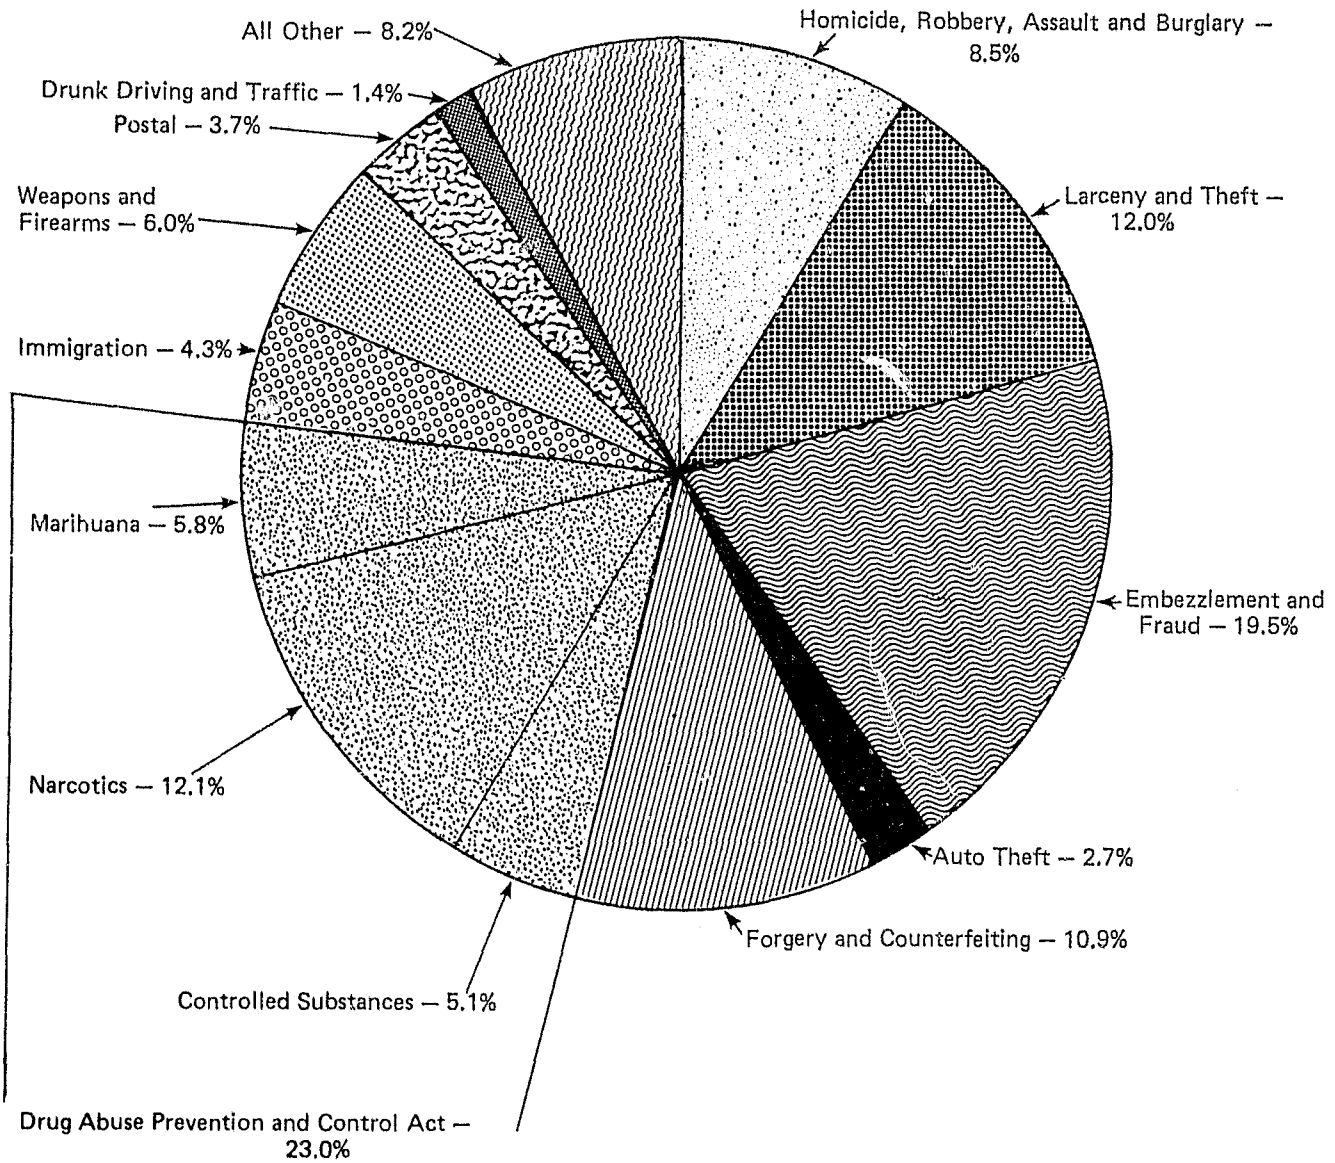

During the past year, persons received for supervision in the Federal Probation System numbered 33,839, excluding transfers, a decrease of 969 (-2.8 percent) when compared to the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1978. Persons received for probation supervision from the district court judges decreased by 1,574 (-10.1 percent) while probationers received on terms imposed by U. S. magistrates dropped by 610 (-10.5 percent). Persons received under conditions of pretrial diversion increased by 120 (5.6 percent). Table 76 shows that the total decrease in persons received on probationary terms since June 30, 1978 is 2,074 (-8.7 percent) and the total decrease since the same date in 1977 is 3,769 (-14.9 percent).

The reverse is found in persons received after institutional release where a substantial increase in persons received on parole (1,013 or 17.4 percent) and a smaller increase in those received on special parole terms (234 or 12.3 percent) exceeded small decreases in mandatory releases (-76 or -2.3 percent) and military paroles (-76 or -44.4 percent). The combined total of 12,288 persons received after institutional custody represented an increase of 1,095 or 9.8 percent from last year and 2,510 or 25.7 percent since 1977.

[2]Pretrial Diversion, formerly Deferred Prosecution

The continued decline in probationers received for supervision can be attributed directly to the decline in criminal prosecutions reported during the last two years, since probationers are placed under supervision immediately in most cases. However, the relationship between reduced prosecutions and a change in persons received for parole supervision is not as direct. The figures below indicate that the rise in parolees received for supervision during the past two years was an effect of the increase in the number of prison sentences imposed during 1976 and 1977.

Year	Number of Prison Sentences Imposed by District Courts	Parolees Received for Supervision by Federal Probation System
1974	14,280	6,299
1975	14,986	7,888
1976	16,219	6,286
1977	16,390	5,222
1978	14,163	5,816
1979	11,346	6,829

The decline in criminal prosecutions during 1978 and 1979 and the accompanying decrease in prison sentences imposed may begin to reverse this trend during 1980.

Table E-1 in the appendix shows all persons received and removed during the twelve months ended June 30, 1979 by district. Table E-4 displays probationers received in each district on court-imposed terms by the length of the probation term to be served.

Persons Removed from Supervision Rises

Excluding transfers, the number of persons who completed their supervision or were removed from active to inactive status rose from 34,102 during the twelve months ending June 30, 1978 to 35,852 during the twelve months ending June 30, 1979, an increase of 1,750 persons removed. Table E-7 in the appendix shows that persons removed during the past year for the first time in that sentence (first removals) numbered 33,943. Of this latter total, 28,541 or 84.1 percent were removed for reasons other than a new offense or violation of the conditions of supervision.

Rates of Violation By Type of Supervision

Analysis of Table E-7 by type of supervision reveals that probationers removed from terms imposed by district court judges and probationers removed from terms imposed by U. S. magistrates showed nearly equal percentages of overall violation, 15.5 percent and 14.9 percent respectively. Court probationers, however, showed a higher rate of removals for new crimes (3.7 percent compared to 1.8 percent for U. S. magistrates probation).

Concerning institutional releases from court-imposed prison terms, federal parole exhibited the highest violation rate overall with 1,360 violations of a total 5,425 removed (25.1 percent). Of these, 368 were violations as the result of involvement in new major offenses (a rate of 6.8 percent), also the highest for all types of supervision. Mandatory release showed a lower violation rate (13.4 percent) than parole. Special parole, while showing a higher overall violation rate (17.2 percent) than mandatory release, had the same rate of persons removed for committing new major crimes (3.0 percent). These three types of parole differ considerably in certain aspects and this should be considered when comparing their relative rates of violation.

Mandatory release is granted after an offender has served the maximum term required prior to a parole hearing, and because of this delay in parole, the ensuing post-release supervision is reduced by six months. Mandatory release, therefore, is usually the shortest period of supervision after imprisonment; in some cases, it terminates in the same month that it commences. Releasees in this category have a shorter period in which to commit new offenses while under supervision, and the overall violation rate could be expected to be lower than for other types of supervision following institutional release.

A special parole term, on the other hand, is an additional period of parole supervision for drug offenders that begins after federal parole or mandatory release is completed. This lengthy period of continued supervision produces a high rate of technical violations not representing new offenses (12.7 percent). Furthermore, special parolees are strictly monitored through periodic physical tests for signs of drug use, resulting in violations that might go undetected for other types of offenders.

Only eight persons removed from pretrial diversion supervision committed new major crimes, and 71 total violations were reported for the 2,198 removals in this category. Persons are generally selected for pretrial diversion when the offense is relatively minor or non-violent and no evidence of a prior criminal record exists. These two factors help to reduce the rate of violations within this type of supervision.

Finally, for the 184 removals of persons serving on military parole after release from a military institution, 182 were removed without violation and none were removed because of a new major crime.

Cases and Motions Under Advisement in the District Courts

Cases and motions held under advisement over 60 days by United States district judges increased 24.3 percent from 1,117 matters on June 30, 1978 to 1,388 matters on June 30, 1979. As shown in the accompanying table, 488 district judges (including senior judges) reported on the status of matters before the court. A total of 308, or 63.1 percent, of these judges reported having no matters under advisement more than 60 days. The number of active judges who did not report decreased from 28 in 1978 to 10 in 1979.

A total of 180 district judges reported 737 cases and 651 motions held under advisement over 60 days. The majority of the matters reported (71.5 percent) had been held less than six months, while 19.4 percent had been held over six months but less than one year and 9.1 percent had been held over one year.

Seven of the circuits reported fewer than 100 matters held over 60 days, while the Seventh Circuit reported 441 matters, or 31.8 percent of the total. The other circuits reporting more than 100 matters were: the Sixth Circuit with 279 matters (20.1 percent), the Second Circuit with 184 matters (13.3 percent), and the Fifth Circuit with 160 matters (11.5 percent). Further, the Sixth Circuit reported the largest number of matters held under advisement over one year with a total of 38 (30.2 percent); while the Fifth Circuit reported the second largest total of 28 (22.2 percent).

Tables 77 and 78 provide historical data on the number of matters held under advisement over 60 days for the years 1970 through 1979. The total number of matters held under advisement rose by a substantial 369 percent from 296 matters in 1970 to 1,388 in 1979. The most significant increase was in the number of cases and motions held more than six months but less than one year which increased 647 percent from 36 matters in 1970 to 269 matters this year.

The average number of matters under advisement per judge increased slightly from 7.3 in 1978 to 7.7 in 1979. The District of Columbia reported an average of 1.8 matters per judge; while at the other end of the scale, the Seventh Circuit reported an average of 33.9 matters per judge. In all, 37 percent of all judges who reported had at least one matter under advisement over 60 days on June 30, 1979.

Passport and Naturalization

The number of passport applications processed by United States district courts decreased for the ninth consecutive year. During the current 12-month period 41 district courts handled a total of only 31,801 passport applications, 16.4 percent less than the 38,029 processed by 50 districts during the year ended June 30, 1978. As the U.S. Postal Service expands its passport function, there has been a steady decline in the number of district courts which provide this service. In 1979 the district courts in Arizona and the Virgin Islands processed the largest number of passport applications, with 5,037 and 4,626, respectively.

Naturalization petitions filed with the federal courts decreased 2 percent, from 140,364 in 1978 to 137,624 in 1979; however, the number of aliens naturalized in 1979 increased 1.4 percent over the previous year, from 140,061 in 1978 to 141,963 in 1979. The Eastern District of New York reported the greatest number of aliens naturalized with 19,970 in the year ended June 30, 1979.

Twenty-five years of passport and naturalization statistics are summarized in the accompanying table. Detailed data by district on the number of passport applications processed, the number of petitions for naturalization filed and the number of aliens naturalized during the 12-month period ended June 30, 1979 can be found in Appendix Table P-1.

[1] Includes over 52,000 criminal cases commenced in 1930 as the result of enforcement of the National Prohibition Act. Had it been possible to exclude these cases the total number of criminal cases filed would have been 26,500.

[2] The figures on criminal cases do not include cases transferred under Rule 20 or 21, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.

[3] Statistics are for the United States District Court for the Virgin Islands established June 26, 1936, Title 48 USC, Sec. 1405X.

[4] Eastern and Western Districts of South Carolina consolidated under P.L. 89-242, effective October 7, 1965.

[6] Beginning in 1940 statistics are for the United States District Court for the Canal Zone established under 37 Stat. 565, August 24, 1912.

[7] For years 1930, 1940 and 1950 statistics reflect cases filed in the four divisions of the district court for the Territory of Alaska. Statistics for 1960 and 1969 reflect filings in the United States District Court for the District of Alaska, established under P.L. 86-70, effective June 25, 1959. Figures for 1960 are for entire fiscal year.

[8] The Eastern and Central Districts of California were established under P.L. 89-372, effective September 18, 1966.

[9] Statistics are for the United States District Court for Guam established under the Organic Act of Guam, P.L. 81-630, effective August 1, 1950.

1. Criminal cases do not include transfers under Rule 20 or 21, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.
2. Middle District of Louisiana established under P.L. 92-208, effective April 16, 1972.
3. The Federal District Court Reorganization Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-408, October 2, 1978), Section 4, reorganized the judicial districts of the State of Illinois. The counties of the old Eastern and Southern Districts were reorganized into the new Central and Southern Districts. Statistics reflect the new district alignment for the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1979, only.
4. The District Court for the Northern Mariana Islands was created by P.L. 95-157, November 8, 1977. Court was convened on January 7, 1978.
