ABSTRACT

The school community resource book on child abuse and neglect is the result of a 12-month project to aid Wisconsin school districts in developing community teams who would in turn work with the schools in setting up a policy and procedure concerned with the identification, reporting, referral, and prevention of child abuse/neglect. Sections provide information on the following topics: introductory information (including project goals, rationale for school involvement, and a list of participants); legal responsibilities (including an outline of the Wisconsin Abused Child Law); task definition and organization of community teams; Parents Anonymous, a national organization with local chapters to provide supportive help to parents; formats for workshops and inservice sessions; key regional, state, and national resource people and agencies; audiovisual materials and publications on child abuse and neglect; and policies of participating school districts. Appended are sample referral forms, brief descriptions of reporting procedures, and the texts of federal (P.L. 93-247) and state (Senate Bill 414) legislation regarding child abuse and neglect. # FOREWORD

This resource book is the end result of a twelve month, federally funded project entitled, "Wisconsin Child Abuse and Neglect Training for Educators". The goals of the project were to aide school districts in developing community teams who would in turn work with the schools in setting up a policy and procedure concerned with the identification, reporting, referral and prevention of child abuse/neglect. Ten school districts throughout the state were directly involved as pilot districts. The ten are:

BELOIT	OAK CREEK
BOWLER	ECONOMOWOC
EAU CLAIRE	PLATTSVILLE
GREEN BAY	STEVENS POINT
LAKE GENEVA	WAUSAU

Representatives from these districts received 65 hours of intensive training in the fall of 1976. The training encompassed a comprehensive background in the field of child abuse and neglect, community response systems, and organizational development. These representatives then formed cross-discipline teams within their communities to develop a school policy and procedure. The teams were made up of persons from the school, local police, public health nursing, medicine and the local social services agency.

The project was built around this concept of a team of community professionals working together to create a school policy and procedure which is tailored to mesh with the uniqueness of that particular community. We believe that no one policy could have been written which would have been appropriate for all 436 school districts in Wisconsin. Without input from, and coordination among the various professionals and agencies, a school policy would have been far less effective. School policy of this nature cannot be created in a vacuum!

The policies and procedures of the pilot districts are contained in this book for your reference. These policies are only one concrete result of what was an exciting process. The process of gathering responsible professionals around a sensitive issue, and sharing information, trust, mistrust, ideas, frustrations . . . produced a "mushrooming" effect that went far beyond the specific goal of policy writing. New resources were developed, clogged lines of communication were opened, shared and combined resources increased their value exponentially, and individual personal growth was stimulated.

The book contains the basic information which we found necessary to get this process going in the pilot districts. It can furnish the reader with a starting point and resources for assistance in the process of building a school-community response to suspected child abuse/neglect.

STATISTICS ON THE PROJECT

The Wisconsin Child Abuse and Neglect Training for Educators has just completed a demonstration project which involved 65 intensive hours of training for 12 persons who are now serving as trainers/planners and regional resource people for 10 pilot school districts in Wisconsin.

The project goals were:

1. To field test the URSA Curriculum in keeping with the national goals set by the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect.
2. To administer intensive training (65 hours) to 10 persons in 10 pilot school districts utilizing the curriculum (URSA) distributed by the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect.
3. To develop a policy and procedure for each of these 10 districts for identifying, referring and reporting suspected cases of child abuse and neglect.
4. To develop cross-discipline (multi-disciplinary, community) teams in order to involve community agencies in working with the school districts in the development of CA/N policy for schools.
5. To have the pilot school districts serve as a resource for surrounding school districts who may be interested in developing a similar policy and procedure.

All 10 districts have developed policy procedure and inservice and received the approval of their respective school boards for these policies. As a result of 37 one-day workshops done by the project staff and many inservice efforts by the 10 districts and their cross-discipline (multi-disciplinary, community) teams, we get the following total training package:

- 12 people (trainers/planners) received 65 hours of training
- 92 people who are members of the cross-discipline teams have received 15 to 20 hours of inservice
- 600 people across the state including school social workers, head-start teachers, school guidance counselors, school psychologists, school administrators and students in the areas of early childhood education, nursing, counseling and home economics
- 370 people across the state have received at least 2 hours of inservice
- 3915 teachers representing the 10 pilot school districts have already or will be receiving in the fall, 4 to 8 hours of inservice training in child abuse and neglect. This represents 74,163 school children

As a result of the efforts of this project and its staff, 29 other school districts in the state of Wisconsin are now developing or have developed policy and procedure with respect to child abuse and neglect.

WHY US?
(A Rationale for School Involvement)

Next to the family, the school is generally considered the most important influence on a child's life. The function of the school goes beyond teaching children to read and add and learn historical facts. In some cases, where the family unit is having difficulty protecting or itself threatens the child's welfare, schools can play an invaluable role in identification and support to both the child and the family.

In testimony before the Senate Subcommittee on Children and Youth in 1973, David Gil stated that about half of the reported abuse incidents involved school-age children.<sup>1</sup> The challenge implicit in Gil's statement helps us to see the unique and important role schools can play in cases of suspected Child Abuse and Neglect. School personnel see children, observe their appearance and behavior, and interact with them daily.

There are three general functions all schools can assume: to identify abused and neglected children, to develop preventive programs in conjunction with community resources, and to act as a support to local child protective service programs. Reporting, identification, and preventive measures should not be accusatory actions, but a means of reaching out to families in need of help.

In Wisconsin, school districts are increasingly expressing a growing interest and concern in developing a more positive and active role with the problem of child abuse and neglect. Understanding the dynamics of abuse and neglect, medical, legal, and therapeutic interventions and developing a school policy of support should help to alleviate the hesitancy to deal with suspected abuse and neglect. The school must also play an important role in the follow-up of individual cases in providing a supportive environment for the child and coordinating with other agencies dealing with the family.

Schools that are concerned with the child's total development are potentially the most important link in the preventive and protective chain for cases of child abuse and neglect.<sup>2</sup>

LEGAL

Responsibilities

LEGAL RESPONSIBILITIES

The Wisconsin Statute known as The Abused Child Law is section 48.981 of the Children's Code. This section specifies who is required to report suspected cases of child abuse, how and to whom the reports are to be made and who shall carry out the investigation. It also addresses itself to immunity for those reporting and fines for those failing to report.

The law is quoted below:

48.981 REPORTS ON ABUSED OR INJURED CHILDREN. (1) A physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s.905.04(4)(e), or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise, and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff of the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s.48.57.

(2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed.

(3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

Neglect is covered under a separate section, 48.13 Wisconsin Statutes. County Social Service Departments can investigate reports of neglect under this statute and the juvenile court has jurisdiction over neglected children.

48.13 Jurisdiction over children alleged to be neglected or dependent. The juvenile court shall have exclusive jurisdiction over:

1. A child who is alleged to be neglected because:
  - A. He is abandoned by his parents, guardian or legal custodian; or
  - B. He is without proper parental care because of the faults or habits of his parent, guardian, or legal custodian; or
  - C. He is without necessary subsistence, education or other care necessary for his health, morals or well-being because his parent, guardian, or legal custodian neglects or refuses to provide it; or
  - D. He is without the special care made necessary by his physical or mental condition because his parent, guardian, or legal custodian neglects or refuses to provide it; or
  - E. His occupation, behavior, condition, environment, or associations are such as to injure or endanger his welfare or that of others; or
  - F. He is in a home for which a license is required and which any agency authorized by law to license foster homes has refused to license; or
  - G. He has been placed in a home for adoption for which approval by the county court is required by s.48.63 and the county court has refused to approve the home; or
  - H. He is in the custody of a person whose petition to adopt him has been denied by the county court and the case has been transferred to juvenile court under s.48.95; or
  - I. He comes within the provision of s.48.12 but his conduct results in whole or in part from parental neglect.

As a point of clarification, under the current Wisconsin law, the only school personnel required by law to report suspected cases of abuse are school administrators and school social workers. Reporting neglect is not mandatory for any person.

The abused child law, as it now stands, is not in compliance with the federal law PL 93-247. * As a result a state ad hoc committee**and a number of legislators***have spent a great deal of time and effort this past year updating the law. The outcome of these efforts was Senate Bill 414. This bill had a hearing in May, 1977. If acted upon and passed (with revisions) by the legislature, it will produce substantial changes in the abused child law, thereby bringing Wisconsin in compliance with PL 93-247 and opening avenues for federal funds.

Some of the major changes (SB 414) are:

- 1) Neglect and mental injury will be included in the same statute as abuse
- 2) "Abuse", "mental injury" and "neglect" are more specifically defined
- 3) A guardian ad litem is required to be appointed for each child subject to judicial proceedings under this statute
- 4) The types of persons who are required to report cases of suspected child abuse or neglect are expanded to include school teachers, school administrators, school social workers, school psychologists, school counselors and school nurses, along with other human services and mental health personnel in a variety of fields
- 5) Time limits for reports and investigations are established, as well as procedures for feedback to the individual making the report
- 6) Confidentiality of reports and records is more closely guarded and controlled.

See Appendices A and B for PL 93-247 and SB 414.

COMMUNITY TEAMS

BUILDING COMMUNITY TEAMS

There are all kinds of teams - the Keystone Cops, Three Stooges, Community Committees, Bonnie and Clyde, The Miami Dolphins, Task Forces and Ad Hoc Committees on various standards. Whether or not these teams are effective and efficient is related to someone's being willing to take the basic responsibility for organizing around the defined task. Because school personnel are in an ideal position to identify abused and/or neglected children and all schools should have a policy for effectively handling suspected abuse and neglect cases, it seems reasonable that a school person, then, should be the one to take responsibility for task definition and organization.

Let's take a look at what this means:

The first step is to tailor a policy-making team to reflect the unique nature of your community. Membership on your team will vary with the community; it may include social workers, doctors, lawyers, juvenile or family court judges, psychologists, public health nurses, dentists, teachers, police officers, day care workers, parents and private citizens. Before approaching potential team members, it is helpful to know (1) the child abuse and neglect statutes, (2) something about the incidence of CA/N in your community and (3) the way in which CA/N cases are currently handled in your community. Attending to these things will give you ideas about why a policy is needed, what the nature of the policy will need to be and who in the community would be most likely to want to be involved in writing, etc. It will be helpful to both potential participants and yourself if you have thought through and can articulate the what, who, when, where and how of the policy-making team.

-  What - This is a team composed to write a policy on child abuse and neglect for the school district. It may seem ironic that this needs to be stated but it closely affects the "who" of the team.

-  Who - Although difficult to assess, commitment to arriving at a policy for child abuse and neglect is a basic requirement for inclusion on the team. In other words, if someone wants to be on the team primarily as a stepping stone to public office, their dependability is not as apparent as someone whose belief is that a policy on child abuse and neglect will be helpful to the management of problems in this area. For this reason it is more important to clarify the task of the committee to potential members, rather than advertising only to the probable membership to attract participants. However, it is also helpful to clarify that variety in professions, backgrounds, age, and perspective will add strength to the team. For example, dominance of one professional area (i.e., corrections) can narrow the thrust of the final policy statement. The size of the group is also an important variable

Who - (cont.) to consider. Optimum size for a working group seems to be 5-8 members. As membership increases beyond 8, so does complexity of relationships and logistics.

When - Members will have an easier time assessing their ability to participate if they can have some idea of the time commitment they will be making. Anticipating how often you will be meeting, how long meetings will last, how long it has taken other groups to complete the task and your commitment to holding to these perimeters will allow potential members to decide whether or not they can commit themselves to this task. This will, in turn, help avoid the problem of people dropping out shortly after group formation because they didn't anticipate the level of energy expenditure required of members (better that they don't join to begin with).

Where - A predictable place that is comfortably informal would probably increase the attractiveness of participating on this kind of team. Heaven knows child abuse and neglect is serious enough without having 3:30 p.m. (low energy time for most people) meetings in someone's sterile office or meeting room. Perhaps rotating evening meetings among members homes would be of value.

How - Although informal meeting places, chatting, eating together and sharing a glass of wine would be helpful to the energy level of the team, structure and agendas are also necessary to the team's on-going feeling of task accomplishment. Ample information can be found elsewhere in this Resource Book suggestive of the sequence of tasks and possible meeting agendas helpful in the development of a child abuse and neglect policy. Some discussion of group process seems extremely relevant to the "how" of teams. In the simplest sense, all groups have developmental beginnings, middles, and ends. If the team's development in this regard is not attended to, problems in communication, cohesiveness, leadership, and other aspects of interpersonal relating are predictable. There are many written resources available on process issues (for instance, Naomi Brill's book Teamwork: Working Together In the Human Services) Examples of a few such issues in each developmental phase are:

BEGINNINGS The group is finding its identity

Membership

Shifts and changes can be anticipated. If acknowledged openly as a normal part of group formation, this need not drain group energy.

Interpersonal Relationships

Members will be very aware of any status differences that may exist. It will be very easy for them to accord leadership to the most articulate, assertive members. Attempts on your part to solicit and pick up on the input of the more reserved members will help offset this natural inclination in groups.

Values

In a beginning group people want to know what they will have to give and what they will get in return. They also will be unaware of many value differences and similarities within the group. Comments that indicate the validity of both fun and work, for example, might be helpful (at the end of the meeting - "Say, this was a good meeting . . . I'm glad we can drink a beer, laugh once in a while and still be productive"). Look for helpful emerging norms and values as well and point them out ("I notice we seem to share the load on note-taking . . .").

Communications

Members will be trying to identify themselves and others in the group. Thus, more self-centered as opposed to "we" discussions can be expected. Common experiences (eating together, chatting before meetings, sharing thoughts on unrelated issues, etc. help the group to move through this phase).

MIDDLES

An interesting thing happens in group middles. When people in a group get to know each other and feel comfortable with each other, continuing harmony becomes the goal.

Membership

Group members probably feel belongingness as reflected in comments of concern regarding absent members. The emerging "we" feeling of the group is its dominant theme. This may be a barrier to task completion as people replace the initial goals of the group with the personal goals of its membership. Though difficult, it is essential that you accept responsibility for getting on with the task.

Interpersonal Relationships

The tension and rivalry that predominates in the formative period of the group is replaced with a protectiveness toward the beginning sense of trust and acceptance it shared. The group may be unwilling to deal with potential areas of difference, out of a fear of upsetting the positive feelings in the group. Supporting identification of areas of difference will help the group move toward a more strongly established base of trust and acceptance. ("I noticed a point of difference that we skipped over. I think this group is together enough to resolve it. . . .")

Values

The value has moved from forming a team in order to accomplish a task, to the group as an end 'n itself. A "state of the union" address (memo mailed to members before next meeting) that clarifies where the group started, what was accomplished in past meetings, and what needs to be done in future meetings may help the group over its temporary impasse in what some refer to as the "plateau" phase of group development.

Communication

Though there is greater skill and individual contributions are more respected, there is often much discussion around individual member needs, job problems, family, etc. as the group recognizes its ability to nurture and support. This recognition of the groups' ability to nurture may result in their becoming resistant to task completion, which signals the end of the group and thus the source of nurturing. Taking the time with the group to explore alternative involvements after completion of the policy statement might gently prod them toward getting on with it.

ENDINGS

With the completion of the policy statement, the group's new task is to come to grips with terminating.

Membership

As members become aware of the near completion of the task, some will miss meetings as a way of terminating with the group. Others will suggest "keeping the group together" through informal, social contacts. Recognizing and supporting both ways of termination as reasonable and/or suggesting alternative professional activities for the group would allow the members options.

Interpersonal Relationships

Some relationships become less intense while others become intensified. Pointing out the accomplishments of the group, linkages that have been developed that have implications for further work together in this group or in recombined sub-parts of the group again would allow members options for continuing relationships.

Values

Successful completion of the policy writing task deserves attention in terms of confidence in the future of professional groups working on community problems.

Communication

A formalized written communication that recounts what the group has accomplished would be an appropriate way to finalize the group's communication activity.

Your group may want to go into greater detail with the problem of child abuse and neglect and come up with new and alternative ways of handling it. You may find the group willing to become involved in identification, diagnosis, treatment and/or community education. For a detailed account of how this can be undertaken please refer to Vol. 3 of Child Abuse and Neglect: The Problem and Its Management, The Community Team: An Approach to CA/N Management and Prevention.

"SELLING" OTHERS ON COOPERATING WITH US*

1. If you are making contact directly, START WHERE THE PERSON IS.
CONSIDER THEIR MOTIVATION.

Possible motivation on the part of others:

Be on the "bandwagon" - lure them to this?
Have some need of their own:
To look like a "good guy" (make self feel better);
Save tax money; save money;
Help the "poor unfortunates" (patronizing attitude);
Be "in" - "the thing to do";
Real caring;

Appeal to their stated and/or real commitment

Public Notice - offer newspaper or TV publicity

2. GET TO THE RIGHT PERSON THROUGH THE RIGHT PERSON

Who has the most influence in the community?
Who knows this person and can get to him/her?

3. RESISTANCE: Start where the person is:

Recognize demands already made on community personnel.
Give reassurance about involvement.

Arguments to be met:

"There aren't that many - why be concerned?"

Not have to be many to be important;
Many more than we know;
Not limited to low socio-economic classes;
As pressures mount, many more people can get caught in this behavior;
Give examples and statistics if possible to substantiate above

"Schools are strictly for education."

What is meant by "strictly education"?

Cite other school problems

Note school's responsibility for the "whole child".

Education for healthy happy living.

"These people are impossible - why bother?"

Law requires certain people to report

Takes only one child mistreated for concern to be valid

Break pattern of behavior - cost to community:

Kids learn this pattern and repeat it;

Commitment to producing productive, responsible citizens

4. VESTED INTERESTS:

- 1) Recognition for what they have done and/or praise for their concern.
- 2) Let them know their experience and ideas likely will be very important and valuable to others.
- 3) Let them know they are a force in the community, and, therefore, their input is important - people look to them for leadership.
- 4) Inquire about the areas of your concern that this person sees needing change, expansion, improvement, etc.
- 5) Ask: "How would you like to see this handled?" "What are your ideas?"
- 6) Note there is "enough for everyone" - not have to be an "exclusive" area - how can we dovetail efforts.

5. HOW TO WORK WITH NEGATIVE COMMITTEE MEMBERS:

In committee member selection process, avoid such persons, if at all possible.

If unavoidable, learn why they are angry. What do they want? How do they see proceeding?

May need to point out power of others in group; may need to politely and firmly over-ride. This may require mobilizing other committee members.

HOW TO FINANCE ANY OR ALL OF THESE NEEDED SERVICES

- 1) Financial contributions from agencies represented by committee members
- 2) Financial contributions from other possibly interested agencies and persons
- 3) Contributions of talents and skills; scour community to find those willing to contribute needed skills free or at least cost

WRITING COMMUNITY POLICY ON IDENTIFICATION, REFERRAL AND REPORTING: This is the end purpose of all PR efforts.

Build community support and interest so writing policy will be a natural outcome of this interest

A second outcome can be a continuation of the life of your cross-disciplinary committee as a program/publicity/resource committee

If the interest of committee members and community is highly developed, these end results can well be the natural outcome of this enthusiasm

RESISTANCES AND ROADBLOCKS TO TEAM DEVELOPMENTBasic Problem Areas (during beginning process of team)

- bureaucratic red tape
- defensiveness
- territorial aggression
- failure to make commitments
- misunderstanding of other agency's role(s)
- individual prejudices
- buck passing
- blaming
- staying with problem in a negative light
- leadership - resistance to

Anticipated Problems (in ongoing work of team)

- who would take responsibility? cooperation, collaboration?
- funding
- attitudes of individual members
- procedural
- staff time commitment

Suggestions for ways to re-direct meeting when things go wrong:

- set possible tone ("we have to work together")
  - make personal commitments
  - wade through hidden agendas
  - make the PURPOSE of the team clear and positive
  - stress the importance of each team member's participation and input

WRITING THE POLICY

In a booklet entitled "Education Policies and Practices Regarding CA/N and Recommendations for Policy Development" put out by the Education Commission of the States, suggestions for policy writing are outlined. The first and strongest recommendation is that every school system adopt and issue a CA/N policy particularly in the area of reporting. An effective CA/N policy should inform school personnel of their legal obligations, as well as immunities, to report. Following is the list they provide:

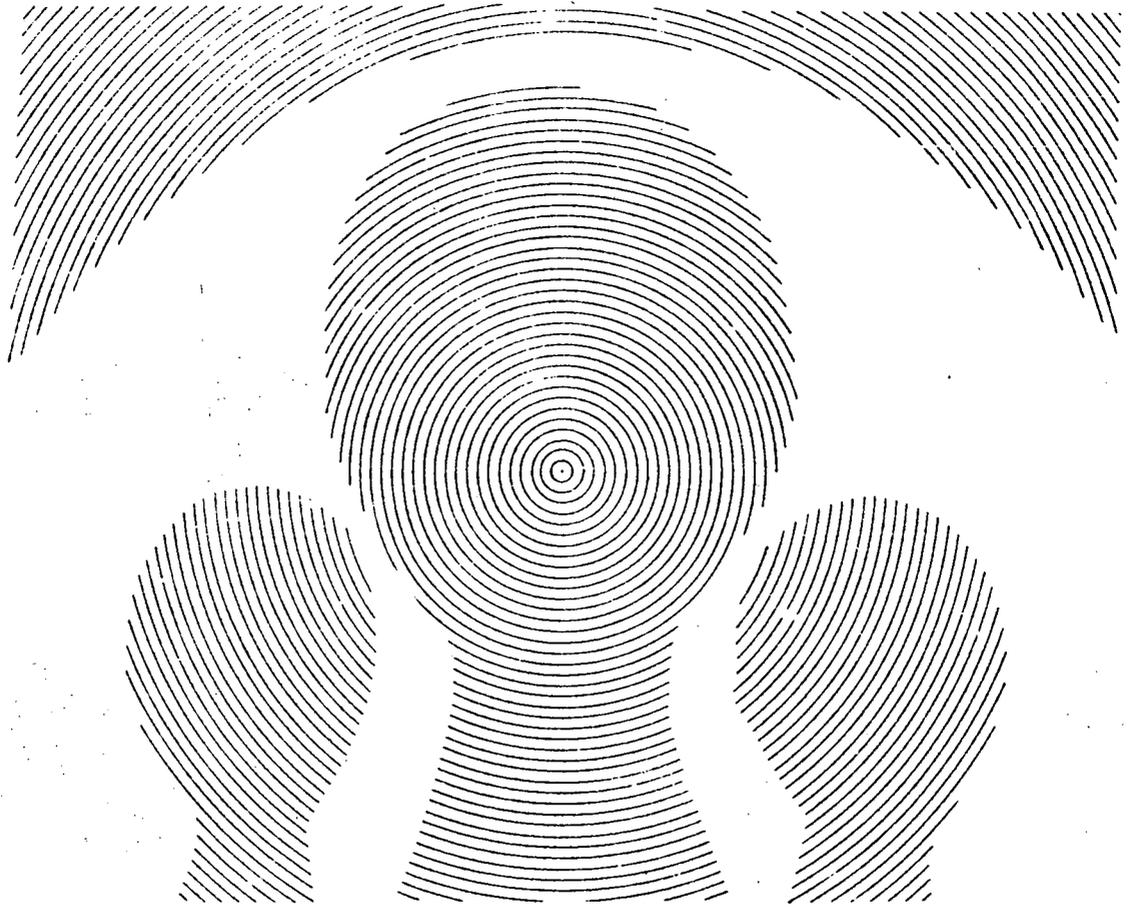

1. A brief rationale for involving school personnel in reporting.
2. The name and appropriate section numbers of the state reporting statute.
3. Who specifically is mandated to report and (if applicable) who may report.
4. Reportable conditions as defined by state law.
5. The person or agency to receive reports.
6. The information required of the reporter.
7. Expected professional conduct by school employees.
8. The exact language of the law to define "abuse" and "neglect".
9. The method by which school personnel to report (if appropriate list telephone number for reporting) and the time in which to report.
10. Whether or not there is immunity from civil liability and criminal penalty for those who report or participate in an investigation or judicial proceeding, and whether there is immunity for "good faith" reporting.
11. Penalty for failure to report, as established by state law.
12. Action taken by school board for failure to report.
13. Any provisions of the law regarding the confidentiality of records pertaining to reports of suspected abuse or neglect.*

It will also be important for your school district to determine how records of reported cases will be kept (written, confidential, permanency). The school must also decide whether or not parents will be informed when a report is made.

In the policy, a school district can specify its role in multidisciplinary cooperation, professional training, public awareness and programs of prevention. It may also be valuable to include some means of evaluation for the CA/N policy. By spelling out realistic expectations and some means to evaluate the goals of the policy regularly, more effective programs can be ensured.

A last suggestion is that for school policy to be truly useful and effective, it must be widely disseminated. Copies should be distributed to all school personnel, parents and community people. This can be done through school inservices offered to all school personnel and/or parents, agency inservices, etc. (please refer to the section on workshops and inservice for agenda samples). You may also want to utilize the media (newsletters, newspapers, radio, etc.). The community needs to be informed about child maltreatment both to broaden the base of potential reporters and to ensure public awareness of available help to abusive parents and their families.

PARENTS
ANONYMOUS

PARENTS ANONYMOUS

Parents Anonymous (P.A.) is a national organization that has local chapters spread all over the country. In essence, it is a support program to help parents prevent damaging relationships between themselves and their children. The basic P.A. philosophy begins with an unconditional acceptance of the parents as they are, as worthwhile individuals in and of themselves. Members develop new parenting skills, new ways to relate to others, and begin to seek alternate ways to handling their anger.

Each P.A. group has a Chairperson, who assumes a surrogate-parent role to the chapter members and a group sponsor, who assumes a surrogate-parent role to the chairperson. Parents Anonymous is for the parent who is afraid he/she may become abusive or has a high potential for abuse. It is also for any parent who feels insecure in his/her parenting role and needs to feel better about himself or herself as a person. Their purpose is to stop abuse by offering parents in the community an alternative they can fit into and feel comfortable with in order to stop or prevent abuse. There are not, nor can there be, any guarantees or easy solutions when it comes to child abuse. It is as individual a problem as all the individuals who attend P.A. What P.A. offers is a guiding hand, empathic and supportive help and an honest approach to overcoming a behavioral pattern that has threatened to or has gone out of control.

Because of the intensity of the sharing experience and emotional involvement in a P.A. group, insight into one's problems which might have taken months in traditional therapy may reveal themselves sooner. Defenses and inhibitions are quickly broken down in the group environment. Group members begin to become aware of the behavioral patterns that are negatively affecting their lives. In addition, contact with other parents having similar problems help them feel less isolated and better about themselves.

The P.A. group also provides opportunities for other methods. The group will often tailor their meetings to meet individual member's needs; roleplaying; quiet reflection, group support, discussion, etc. The group also provides members with the means to exert their own initiative in deciding what course of action to take, thus fostering a sense of confidence in their own judgement and a sense of achievement in their own ability to cope.

"We meet weekly to discuss our kids, our feelings, and better ways to manage day-to-day with our children. We often share alternative ways to deal with our children. We learn that the first step in handling anger and impatience toward children is accepting the fact that these are honest, human, and universal feelings. We work very hard at learning how to express our anger, frustration, and impatience without damaging our children. We also recognize that sometimes, with the best intentions, we create situations which make us very angry. We share ideas, trying to learn ways to avoid setting ourselves up to get very angry.

In time, we are able to look at the things in our environment, other than our children, that contribute to our anger and frustration. Many of us have been able to take constructive action to change things for the better. The great thing about P.A. is that you can share your feelings with other members - you no longer have only your children to unload on. You also get a good feeling about yourself when you realize that you are making strides; improving your parenting skills; making life more enjoyable for both yourself and your family."

- Exerpt from introductory letter to parents from Parental Stress/
Parents Anonymous Madison Chapter

P.A. groups are an excellent resource for communities to develop. Present available help to the potentially abusive parent is too little, too expensive, too late or non-existent in some areas. P.A. can provide a long or short term approach to help establish, strengthen and maintain a healthy emotional and physical relationship between parents and their children. P.A. is a private organization and is not an extension of any agency or other organization. What goes on at a P.A. meeting is confidential.

The essential ingredients to begin a P.A. group are finding: 1. a parent/chairperson, 2. a sponsor, 3. a place to meet, 4. a child sitter (for meeting times), and 5. publicity.

The parent/chairperson, like the P.A. group members has had or still has a child abuse problem. The role of the chairperson is an extremely important one. Initially, group members turn to the chairperson for support and advice. As the group progresses, members should begin to interact with one another more. Yet, the chairperson, in the role of leader, must constantly balance his/her peer relationship and his/her parent-surrogate relationship with the group members. The chairperson needs to be sensitive to feelings and be able to realize that what members verbalize is not always what they are actually feeling. Parents with abuse problems need to identify the real cause(s) of their anger and handle it in a more appropriate way than taking it out on their children.

Traditionally, the P.A. sponsor has been a member of the social work profession. But sponsors have also been public health nurses, psychologists, various other professionals or sensitive, caring lay people. The sponsor basically helps the chairperson realize his/her own potential as an effective and strong group leader. The sponsor also provides reassurance and support to the chairperson. Sponsors are a big help in training the chairperson in group techniques, answering questions that the group otherwise can't answer and locating other resources available in the community.

Parents Anonymous groups usually meet in church basements, community centers, or people's homes. To insure confidentiality, the meeting place and time are only given to those parents who are going to attend the meeting. Communities often have unused space and are willing to let P.A. groups meet weekly there.

P.A. groups provide a child sitter during their weekly meeting time. This will often be the calling card to get the parent to attend the meeting and thus is a very important consideration in getting a group off the ground.

It will be helpful if the effort is initiated by a parent and if the group has the interest and support of local groups and professional organizations. Referral sources may be the local police department, court system, private physicians, hospitals, schools, community agencies, the county social service agency, radio, television, newspaper or simply word of mouth.

It is vital to the success of the group to have clear and comprehensive publicity to all of these possible referral sources. Initially, this is the most tiring and time consuming aspect of the group. It will involve a lot of phone calling, personal visits, writing brief, descriptive articles, etc. Hopefully, as the group grows, others will be willing to take over some of the responsibility for publicity (for an excellent "How-To" on publicity, please see How to Plan and Carry Out a Successful Public Awareness Program on Child Abuse and Neglect as listed in the publications section).

Currently, there are 14 Wisconsin communities that have Parents Anonymous chapters (see last page of this section for complete listing and contact phone number). As is the case with too many self-help organizations, Parents Anonymous has had recent financial difficulties. The national office and the toll-free hotline located in Redondo Beach, California were not refunded this year and they have been forced to close down.* Wisconsin is located in the P.A. Region V, but unfortunately, the coordinator position for Region V was also not refunded. Currently, for any further information about P.A. you can write to the Madison P.A. group at 111 S. Hamilton Street, Madison, WI 53703 (information is available at a minimal cost) or call the Madison Parental Stress Hotline (608) 251-2266.

*As of July, 1977, the national P.A. office has been invited to submit a new proposal for review and more than likely will be refunded in the near future.

WORKSHOPS

Workshops and Inservice

Throughout the year-long time span of the project, workshops and inservice sessions have been held for a number of various professional groups and community organizations. They have dealt primarily with the field of child abuse and neglect, community response systems, organizational development and teamwork. The schedules from some of these sessions are included at the end of this section.

It takes a great deal of energy to organize and deliver a workshop. If you do plan on giving some type of presentation on child abuse and neglect, following are a few basic points to consider regardless of the group you are talking to:

- 1) Set modest goals as to how much you plan to cover. It is often difficult to limit oneself, but with a sensitive issue like child abuse, it is vitally important not to "open a Pandora's Box" and then run out of time to deal with all the issues that have arisen.
- 2) Begin the workshop with something that the participants can relate to personally. Whether using a film, exercise or some other means, it should elicit some kind of personal reaction. This is not to suggest using graphic pictures of victims or cold, hard national statistics (we often began by asking the participants to write down their gut level reactions to abuse, and then followed it with a film that builds, in the viewer, an identification with an abused child who grew up to be an abusive parent).
- 3) Set a non-punitive tone early, by emphasizing that child abuse is a multi-faceted problem in a family which is under stress. The National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect has several posters which emphasize this point. They read:

"There are two victims in every child abuse situation:
 1) the child
 2) the parent"

"Being a parent is one of the toughest jobs in the world"

(These posters may be available to you at your county social services department)

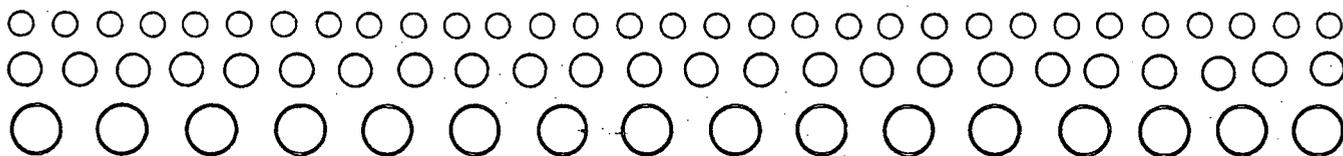

- 4) Allow plenty of time for the inservice participants to react in small groups. Child abuse and neglect is an emotionally laden topic and many people will need to share their ideas, questions, fears, suggestions . . .
- 5) Hold the workshop in an environment that is conducive to the exchange of feelings and ideas in small groups.

The National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect provided a number of excellent audio-visuals on child abuse and neglect to the Wisconsin project. These films and filmstrips are available for use from:

I. Lorraine Davis
Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction
126 Langdon Street
Madison, WI 53702

An annotated bibliography of these films is included for your reference in the audio-visual section of this booklet.

What follows are several different formats for workshops (of varying lengths and to various audiences). These sample agendas can be adapted in developing inservice and workshops peculiar to your own needs.

Unit 1: Introduction to the Curriculum

Working Together (film, 40 minutes) 000541

The film consists of interviews with members of multi-disciplinary teams or councils in three different communities: San Diego, California (a small coastal city); Montgomery County, Maryland (an affluent suburb of Washington, D.C.); and Salina, Kansas (the county seat of a rural midwestern county). These communities cover the range and sizes and types of communities that have developed and can develop effective multi-disciplinary approaches.

Unit 3: Identifying the Physically Abused Child

"Physical Indicators of Abuse, Signs of Alert" - Part A 000544
 "Physical Abuse, What Behavior Can Tell us" - Part B (filmstrip) 000549
 The filmstrip presents an overview of physical and behavioral indicators of physical abuse. Part A looks at major external and internal physical manifestations of abuse. Part B looks at child behavior and interactions between children and parents which may indicate abuse.

Abusive Parents (film, 35 minutes) 000562

This film includes excerpts from a panel discussion by four women incarcerated at the California Institute for Women for crimes involving child abuse, followed by an interview with Elsa Ten Broeck, founder and former director of a therapeutic day care center for abused children and their families. The interview covers the social context of abuse, personal and family dynamics that may contribute to abuse, and a generic profile of abusers.

Unit 4: Identifying the Neglected Child

"Identifying Neglect, Before It's Too Late" (filmstrip) 000561
 This filmstrip shows some typical forms of neglect and its behavioral and physical indicators. It raises the issue of child neglect as a serious problem, but one which is frequently difficult for professionals to identify -- especially when it seems to involve differences among child-rearing practices in various cultural and socio-economic groups.

Unit 6: Identifying the Sexually Abused Child

Sexual Abuse (film, 50 minutes) 000612

This film provides an overview of intra-family sexual abuse of children: what it is, common myths, physical and behavioral indicators, family dynamics, how to conduct examinations and investigations with a minimum amount of psychological damage to the child, and different approaches to the problem among various professionals.

Unit 8: Reporting Child Abuse and Neglect

"Issues in Reporting Child Abuse and Neglect" (filmstrip) 000615
 This filmstrip dramatizes a variety of reasons child care professionals may be reluctant to report cases of suspected child abuse and neglect, followed by interviews with professionals in the child abuse field who suggest ways of minimizing this resistance and improving the system. The filmstrip also includes information on the origin, purpose and basic provisions of reporting laws.

Unit 9: Investigating Child Abuse and Neglect

Investigating Reports of Child Abuse and Neglect (film, 35 minutes) 000623
 This film dramatizes investigations of 1) a reported incident of alleged physical abuse, and 2) a report of an unsupervised child. The film presents comments from practitioners who are responsible for investigating reports of child abuse and neglect. The discussion following the film focuses on the differing approaches to investigation of social workers and police, and how the investigations in the film might have been done differently, by both disciplines, given different sets of circumstances during the investigation (e.g., the presence of the father during the interview in the Garrett case).

Unit 10: Case Planning and Referral

"Case Planning and Referral" (filmstrip) 000625
 The filmstrip looks at case planning from both the family's and the professional's point of view. Using a case history, it examines the major problems encountered in each part of the process - assessment, treatment planning, and case monitoring - and presents some solutions to these problems that have improved the effectiveness of agency and individual efforts.

Unit 12: Coordinating Community Response to Child Abuse and Neglect

Working Together (film, 40 minutes) 000541
 The film consists of interviews with members of multi-disciplinary teams or councils in three different communities: San Diego, California (a small coastal city); Montgomery County, Maryland (an affluent suburb of Washington, D.C.); and Salina, Kansas (the county seat of a rural midwestern county). These communities cover the ranges and sizes and types of communities that have developed and can develop effective multi-disciplinary approaches.

Unit Specialized Training for Social Work Professionals
 The Social Worker in Court (Module 2)

Presenting the Case (film, 35 minutes) 000627
 Trainees view a film that shows a social worker testifying in a juvenile court child abuse hearing. A narrator critiques the testimony, highlighting major points. Following the film, trainees discuss examples of rules of evidence, rules of testimony, and cross-examination.

Unit 14: Specialized Training for Medical and Health Professionals
 The Diagnosis of Child Abuse and Neglect (Module 1)

"Medical Indicators of Abuse and Neglect" (filmstrips)
 Five short filmstrips will be shown, each focusing on one of the following conditions: sexual abuse, neglect, and physical abuse as manifested by skin trauma, bone injuries, and internal injuries. Each filmstrip presents the medical indicators and special concerns to be aware of in diagnosing abuse and neglect.

Unit 14: Specialized Training for Medical and Health Professionals
The Diagnosis of Child Abuse and Neglect (Module 1) cont.

Part One: Skin Trauma	000629
Part Two: Internal Injuries	000629
Part Three: Skeletal Injuries	000636
Part Four: Neglect	000643
Part Five: Sexual Abuse	000684

The Medical Interview (Module 2)

The Interview (film, 40 minutes) 000695

This film presents an actual interview between a parent of a suspected abused child and a physician. The film demonstrates important interviewing principles for the medical interview, and outlines one approach to gathering important medical, social, and psychological information with which to conduct an assessment and treatment plan. In the discussion session after the film, the group is encouraged to review the film's content, trainee reactions to and feelings about the film, and the interview process demonstrated.

Observing the Behaviors of Children and Parents (Module 3)

Slide Vignettes (1 hour, 35 minutes) 000664

Six series of slides are shown, each of which suggests a story line to the viewer by means of the behaviors depicted in the slides. Trainees are asked to interpret the pictures by making up stories to accompany each set of slides. Trainees then share and compare their stories with the group, illustrating variations in interpreting behavioral indicators.

The Legal Context of Child Abuse and Neglect (Module 6)

"Issues in Reporting Child Abuse and Neglect" (filmstrip) 000615

This filmstrip (Unit 3) dramatizes a variety of reasons child care professionals may be reluctant to report cases of suspected child abuse and neglect, followed by interviews with professionals in the child abuse field which suggest ways of dealing with this resistance. The filmstrip also includes information of the evolution, purpose and provisions of child abuse and neglect reporting laws. The brief discussion following the filmstrip concentrates on reasons why some professionals are reluctant to report and ways by which individuals and communities have dealt with resistance portrayed in the filmstrip.

The Medical Witness in Court (Module 7)

The Medical Witness (film, 35 minutes) 000696

The film portrays a physician carrying out the various functions involved in testifying as an expert medical witness in a juvenile court child abuse case. The doctor is seen in a pre-trial interview with the county attorney assigned to present the case in court, and later as an expert witness at the adjudicatory hearing. A narrator highlights the main points made by the film's dramatizations.

Unit 15: Specialized Training for Educators

"Child Abuse and Neglect - What the Educator Sees" (filmstrip) 000702
 This filmstrip depicts physical and behavioral indicators of abuse and neglect which children are likely to display in a school setting. The filmstrip also discusses the unique vantage point that teachers and other educators have in identifying and responding to abused and neglected children. Following the filmstrip, trainees discuss physical and behavioral indicators they have encountered in their schools -- what the indicators were, whether other professionals would have been able to recognize these maltreated children, and the difficulties which the educator faces in trying to decide when to respond in such cases.

Unit 16: Specialized Training for Law Enforcement Professionals

The Role and Responsibilities of Law Enforcement in Child Abuse and Neglect Cases (Module 1)

Abusive Parents (film, 35 minutes) 000562

This film includes excerpts from panel discussion by four women incarcerated at the California Institute for Women for crimes involving child abuse, followed by an interview with Elsa Ten Broeck, founder and former director of a therapeutic day care center for abused children and their families. The interview covers the social context of abuse, personal and family dynamics that may contribute to abuse, and a generic profile of abusers.

The film presents comments from practitioners who are responsible for investigating reports of child abuse and neglect. The discussion following the film focuses on the differing approaches to investigation of social workers and police, and how the investigations in the film might have been done differently, by both disciplines, given different sets of circumstances during the investigation (e.g., the presence of the father during the interview in the Garrett case).

The Beloit Public Schools concerns itself with the welfare of all children. Furthermore, the overall goals of education are to help students to be more effective citizens and parents. The Board Policies of the Beloit Public Schools state, "Growth in respect for property, authority and the rights of others shall be vital to the development of a mature attitude on the part of the student towards his/her conduct in a democratic and free society". It is recognized that the impact of child abuse and/or neglect would have a profound effect on this goal and on the learning process.

The Beloit Public School System is aware of the importance of its role in the identification and referral of cases of suspected child abuse and neglect. Because of the large amount of time school personnel spend with children, they are in a unique position to identify and refer children who may be abused or neglected, thus helping to prevent further instances and to provide intervention which may help to break the cycle of abuse and/or neglect.

II. Specific Referral Process

Wisconsin Statutes require that school personnel as listed in the law, who suspect that a child may be abused, report same to the designated authorities. The law furthermore grants immunity from prosecution to those who report in good faith. (Please see section B for neglect referrals.)

The following reporting procedure shall be used when referring a child for suspected abuse and/or neglect:

A. Suspected physical abuse, sexual abuse or severe neglect

1. Any school employee covered under the law who suspects that a child has been abused physically or sexually, or severely neglected, shall report this immediately to their building principal. Severe neglect includes abandonment and children who are undernourished.

2. The principal shall immediately contact the school social worker or psychologist of his/her building. If the school social worker or psychologist for that building is not available, the report shall be made to the Director of Pupil Services or School Nurse. The school social worker, psychologist, Director of Pupil Services or nurse, shall investigate the report at that school and then report their findings to Rock County Social Services, Protective Services Unit. This report shall be made early enough in the day so that a social worker from Rock County Social Services can begin his/her investigation by interviewing the child at school.

The school social worker or psychologist shall inform the Director of Pupil Services within 24 hours after a referral is made. The Director of Pupil Services shall then inform the Superintendent of Schools.

3. The telephone report to Rock County Social Services shall be followed as soon as possible by a written report (see attached form).

4. The reporting school social worker or psychologist shall contact the social worker from Rock County Social Services by phone three (3) days after the report is made to receive feedback on the progress of investigation. The school social worker or school psychologist shall then report back to the building principal and Director of Pupil Services. The Director of Pupil Services shall inform the Superintendent of Schools.

B. Neglect

1. Cases of suspected neglect, other than severe neglect, shall be handled by the Building Consultant Team at each building. Intervention shall be planned using the school social worker and/or psychologist, and other community resources. All such intervention shall be documented and, if unsuccessful in remediating the situation, shall be referred to Rock County Social Services according to the above procedure.

I. General

The Beloit Public School system is aware of the important role educators play in the referral of children who are suspected of being abused or neglected. As part of the commitment to this area the school system encourages active, ongoing in-service to create an awareness on the part of school personnel.

School staffs will be made aware of information on the following areas:

Child Abuse and Neglect Legislation
School Policy
Referral Procedures
Indicators of Abuse and Neglect

II. Specific

- A. It is recommended that "Cipher in the Snow" be shown at the orientation meeting to all staff in the fall. The purpose would be to create interest in the area of child abuse and neglect.
- B. The Department of Pupil Services will be responsible for providing in-service to building staffs. It is hoped that each building staff will receive in-service during September and October 1977. Two meetings are suggested:
  1. Describe dynamics of problem using "Theft of Childhood". Also, provide staff with specific indicators using "What the Educator Sees". A discussion will be held in regard to the indicators. Proper caution will be stressed so that hopefully, inappropriate referrals are avoided.

The use of cable TV will be considered when the A-V materials are used.
  2. The second meeting will be devoted to a presentation of school policy and the referral system. It is also recommended that a social worker from Social Services present information on the referral process, and follow-up services.
- C. It is recommended that the film "Incest: The Victim Nobody Believes" be shown to all physical education staff and guidance counselors. The purpose would be to create an awareness of the problem and allow for discussion.

- D. Pupil Services staff and principals will receive in-service the week prior to orientation day.
- E. It is recommended that Pupil Services staff meet with the PTA council executive board to discuss program ideas that can be used at PTA's during 1977-1978.
- F. It is recommended that a list of resource materials, speakers, etc., be made available to appropriate secondary teachers for use in their classroom. For example, appropriate classes may include Child Development, Social Studies, Physical Education.

Bowler

The Bowler Board of Education has an overall philosophy of helping each child to develop to his or her fullest potential. It is recognized that each child will not develop to this extent because of varying circumstances. The purpose of this policy is to intervene for those students who are the victims of child abuse and neglect. This policy will adopt a procedure whereby students suspected of being abused or neglected can be referred to proper authorities in an organized manner.

The Bowler School System believes that better results can be obtained if we work positively with parents, help them become better parents, and try to alleviate the stress or other kind of situation rather than to punish. School people are in a unique position to identify children or families that are in trouble. Our efforts will be in training the staff to recognize the indicators of abuse or neglect, to systematically refer suspected cases of abuse or neglect, and to work with the parents in eliminating the conditions that caused the problem.

1. For the purposes of this policy we will use the following definitions:
Child Abuse - any injury - physical, sexual, or emotional - inflicted on a child by another by other than accidental means or an injury which is at variance with the history given of it.
Child Neglect - the condition or situation of a child which results in the impairment of his physical, mental, or emotional well-being or safety or when the natural and probable consequence of failure to provide adequate food, shelter, clothing, education, physical protection, medical, dental, or surgical care is likely to endanger the child's well-being or safety.
2. Reports on abused or injured children - (1) A physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s.905.04(4)(e), or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff of the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary, he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s.48.57.

(2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed.

(3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

BASIS FOR REPORTING

It shall be the responsibility of all Bowler School staff to report all cases of neglect or abuse. This is in compliance with Wisconsin Statute 48.981 which requires reporting of child abuse and neglect. The following procedures are intended to set up an organized system of training, identification, referral, and reporting.

Staff who refer students for suspected child abuse or neglect are immune from liability, in fact; by statute, there is a criminal penalty of a fine or jail sentence or both for failure to report.

TRAINING

Yearly the staff of Bowler School will have an inservice training session on the indicators which identify conditions of child neglect. All staff members will also have proper training in the referral process. Whenever appropriate, staff members will provide supportive services when this is a part of a treatment plan.

IDENTIFICATION

Following are the indicators which Bowler School staff people should be sensitive to in child abuse or neglect cases. IT SHOULD BE KEPT IN MIND, HOWEVER, THAT EXCEPT IN OBVIOUS CASES OF PHYSICAL ABUSE, NO ONE INDICATOR BY AND OF ITSELF NECESSARILY MEANS THAT THE CHILD IS EXPERIENCING ABUSE OR NEGLECT.

1. A child who is frequently absent or late. Whether his problem is at home or in school or within himself, known to his parents or not, his habitual lateness or absence strongly suggests a maladjustment.
2. A child who arrives at school too early and hangs around after classes without apparent reason. He may not be welcome or cared for at home. He may hate his home or be afraid of it.
3. A child who is unkempt and/or inadequately dressed. If he is dressed inappropriately for the weather, if his clothing is dirty and torn, if he is habitually unwashed, if other children don't like to sit near him because they think he smells bad, he is clearly neglected.

4. A child who more than occasionally bears bruises, welts, and other injuries. Will he say how he got them? Does he complain of being beaten at home? Is he always fighting?
5. A child who is hyperactive, aggressive, disruptive, destructive in behavior. He may be acting out his own hostility. He may be reflecting the atmosphere at home. He may be imitating his parents' behavior. He may be crying out for attention and help.
6. A child who is withdrawn, shy, passive, uncommunicative. He is too compliant or too attentive to comply at all, he has sunk into his own internal world, a safer one, he thinks, than the real world. His message is in his passivity and silence.
7. A child who needs, but is not getting medical attention. He may have untreated sores. He may have an obvious need for dental work. He may need glasses to see the blackboard.
8. A child who is undernourished. What is the reason - poverty or uncaring parents?
9. A child who is always tired and tends to fall asleep in class. Either he is not well, his parents are neglecting to regulate his routines, or he is simply unable to get to bed and to sleep because of his family problems.
10. A parent who becomes overly aggressive and abusive when approached with a view of discussing the child's apparent problems.
11. A parent or child who is slovenly, dirty, and possibly smelling of alcohol.
12. A child who describes parents' behavior as bizarre and unusual.
13. A child whose behavior is observed by school personnel to be strange, bizarre, irrational, or unusual in any way.
14. A child who has a sudden drop in achievement.

REFERRAL PROCEDURES

Teachers are asked to be aware of problems students exhibit in school. They should be sensitive to the indicators listed above and work with students and parents in the alleviation of these problems. In difficult cases, the principal should be notified and he will set up a committee to deal with the situation. The committee will be composed of the Principal, Guidance Counselor, and two of the child's teachers. The following procedure will be followed:

1. If the safety or well-being of the child is in jeopardy, the Committee will immediately refer the child to the Department of Social Services or sheriff's department. The school will at all times cooperate with the Department of Social Services in its investigation and any of the supportive agencies that may intervene for the child.
2. The committee may deal directly with parents in the problem area in hopes of alleviation of the problem. A special school program may also be instituted.
3. If a combination of indicators, or serious problem with one indicator leads to a suspicion of neglect or abuse, referral will be made to the Department of Social Services by the Principal. The staff will cooperate with any investigation and will stand ready to provide any supportive services where this is part of a treatment plan. Regardless of the determination of the Department of Social Services, the staff should continue to work with the child in his problem areas.

Introduction

The incidence of reported child abuse and neglect has increased nationally as well as in Eau Claire County. Because the Eau Claire School System is concerned with the whole child, seeking help for the child who is suspected to be abused or neglected is compatible with educational objectives. In dealing with this problem, the schools recognize the need to develop clearly defined school policies, referral procedures, and in-service programs.

The Eau Claire School System believes in a positive approach to child protection, pursuing a preventative and therapeutic approach to child abuse and neglect rather than a punitive approach. School personnel can be aware and sensitive to the causes of child abuse and neglect, assuring accurate reporting. Prevention of the problem can be affected by various curriculum additives and/or revisions. Effective treatment of the family in trouble can involve close cooperation between the home and school and/or other agencies.

In conjunction with a federally funded project initiated by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, the Eau Claire School System, through the interest of the Pupil Services Director, Dr. James R. Jacobs, selected representatives, Joel Strayer, School Social Worker and Carol Rheingans, Elementary Counselor to serve as trainer/planners for the project in Eau Claire.

A cross-discipline team of community professionals was established to develop policy and procedures with regard to the identification, referral, and reporting of suspected child abuse in the Eau Claire School District.

Members of this team included:

Emily Anderson, R.N.
City-County Health Department

Dr. Dale Peterson, Asst. Director
Family Practice Clinic

Sue Brisiel, Detective
Eau Claire Police Department

Fred Roth, Supervisor
Protective Services Unit
E.E. Co. Dept. of Social Services

Al Lechleitner, Principal
Black/McKinley Schools

Karen Miller
Director of Social Services

Della Lee, LFC Teacher
Boyd School

John Cunningham
Director of Social Services
Sacred Heart Hospital

Steve Kassing, Patrolman
Eau Claire Police Department

In-service and curriculum recommendations will be dealt with separately in an effort to create more awareness of the problem and develop more techniques and programming which may lessen the future impact of child abuse and neglect.

The following statement has been adopted by the Eau Claire Board of Education and the referral procedures will be the administrative policy of the Eau Claire Public Schools for the reporting of suspected cases of child abuse and neglect.

Policy Statement on Child Abuse and Neglect

The Eau Claire Board of Education recognizes the serious local, state, and national problems associated with child abuse and neglect. The Board also recognizes the legal responsibility for reporting suspected cases of child abuse to the proper constituted state, county, or local authorities.

Since school employees are in a unique position to identify potential cases of abuse and/or neglect of children, responsible action by school employees can be achieved through recognition and understanding of the problem, knowing the reporting procedures, and participating in the information programs in child abuse provided for Eau Claire Public School employees.

Based on these legal requirements and moral commitments, the Board directs the administration to develop guidelines which will provide direction for school staff members in identifying and reporting suspected child abuse/and or child neglect cases. Such guidelines should make staff personnel aware that by state statute they are immune from civil and/or criminal liability when reporting suspected child abuse cases. Failure to report may result in legal action.

To maintain awareness on the part of all professional staff members, the Eau Claire Public Schools will cooperate with other appropriate community agencies in providing periodic staff development on the subject of child abuse and neglect.

Policy Statement Modifications

Changes will be made, as necessary, to conform with changes and/or revisions in the state statutes.

Wisconsin Child Abuse Law

Chapter 48.981, Wisconsin Statutes, reads as follows: REPORTS ON ABUSED OR INJURED CHILDREN. (1) A physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s.905.04(4)(e), or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise, and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff of the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s.48.57.

(2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed.

(3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

Procedure for Reporting Cases of Child Abuse

The following procedures are to be used in referring suspected child abuse:

1. Any school employee who suspects that a child has been abused shall report this immediately to his/her school administrator who will verify the report.
2. The school administrator will immediately make an oral report of all suspected child abuse to the designated school social worker and if he/she is not available, to the Director of Social Services. If neither is available, all suspected child abuse cases shall be immediately reported orally to the Eau Claire County Department of Social Services or the Eau Claire Police Department or the Eau Claire County Sheriff's Department. Thereafter, the school social worker will be notified of such report by the school administrator as soon as possible. If there is any doubt or question in reporting such cases, it should be resolved in favor of the child.

3. The administrator shall attempt to notify the parents that child abuse is suspected, and that the school is required by law to make a report to the county department of social services.
4. The school social worker and/or Director of Pupil Services shall receive all reports of suspected child abuse from the school administrator and report same immediately to the Eau Claire County Department of Social Services or when that office is not available, the Eau Claire Police Department or the Eau Claire County Sheriff's Department. Within two (2) working days, the school social worker or Director of Pupil Services shall submit a written report to the Eau Claire County Department of Social Services (see Appendix A). A duplicate copy of the report will be retained with the Department of Pupil Services.
5. The Eau Claire County Department of Social Services, after investigating the suspected child abuse referral, shall within two (2) weeks, submit a written response to the Department of Pupil Services regarding the status of the referral (see Appendix B). Continuing dialogue will occur between the school social worker and the referral source.
6. All appropriate school personnel shall be available to provide supportive services when this is part of the treatment plan. It is anticipated that an interagency team approach will be utilized when necessary. This team might include representatives from the school, Eau Claire Department of Social Services, and other community resources.
7. Any repeated suspected child abuse incidents on a previously referred child will be reported as outlined above.
8. If there are no significant changes from the standpoint of the school following a referral, the Department of Pupil Services may request a new status report and/or an interagency conference.

Reporting Procedure Modifications

Changes will be made, as necessary, to conform with changes and/or revisions in the state statutes.

Procedures for Reporting Cases of Child Neglect

Chapter 48.13, Wisconsin Statutes, reads as follows: Jurisdiction over children alleged to be neglected or dependent. The juvenile court shall have the exclusive jurisdiction over:

- I. A child who is alleged to be neglected because:
  - A. He is abandoned by his parent, guardian or legal custodian; or
  - B. He is without proper parental care because of the faults or habits of his parent, guardian or legal custodian; or
  - C. He is without necessary subsistence, education or other care necessary for his health, morals or well-being because his parent, guardian or legal custodian neglects or refuses to provide it; or
  - D. He is without the special care made necessary by his physical or mental condition because his parent, guardian or legal custodian neglects or refuses to provide it; or
  - E. His occupation, behavior, condition, environment, or associations are such as to injure or endanger his welfare or that of others; or
  - F. He is in a home for which a license is required and which any agency authorized by law to license foster homes has refused to license; or
  - G. He has been placed in a home for adoption for which approval by the county court is required by s.48.63 and the county court has refused to approve the home; or
  - H. He is in the custody of a person whose petition to adopt him has been denied by the county court and the case has been transferred to the juvenile court under s.48.95; or
  - I. He comes within the provisions of s.48.12 but his conduct results in whole or in part from parental neglect.

School personnel are not required by law to report suspected child neglect, although the Department of Social Services has statutory authority to investigate reports of suspected child neglect.

The following procedures should help to protect the child suspected of being neglected and should enhance family functioning:

1. Any school employee who suspects a child is being neglected by his/her caretakers is strongly encouraged to report this to his/her school administrator.
2. The school administrator will report any suspected neglect of a child to the school social worker.
3. The school social worker will review the school information and assess the need for home contact, use of other school resources and need for referral to appropriate community resources.

4. If the above interventions do not reduce suspected neglect situations, the school social worker will make a formal referral to the Eau Claire County Department of Social Services.
5. The Eau Claire County Department of Social Services, after investigating the suspected child neglect referral, shall within two (2) weeks submit a written response to the Department of Pupil Services regarding the status of the referral. Continuing dialogue will occur between the school social worker and the referral source.
6. All appropriate school personnel shall be available to provide supportive services when this is part of the treatment plan.
7. If there are no significant changes in a suspected neglect referral from the standpoint of the school, the Pupil Services Department may request a new status report and/or interagency conference.

POLICY REPORTING MODIFICATIONS

Changes will be made, as necessary, to conform with changes and/or revisions in the state statutes.

CHILD ABUSE

A report must be submitted on any case in which child abuse is suspected. It is not necessary to observe outward signs of injury to the child. Neither is it necessary for the reporter to establish proof that abuse has occurred. Protection of the child is paramount. If abuse is suspected, a report must be submitted.

Examples of Observable Abuse of a Child:

1. Bilateral bruises; extensive bruises; bruises of different ages; patterns of bruises caused by a particular instrument (belt buckle, wire, straight edge, coat hanger, etc.).
2. Burn patterns consistent with forced immersion in a hot liquid (a distinct boundary line where the burn stops); burn patterns consistent with a spattering by hot liquids; patterns caused by a particular kind of implement (electric iron, etc.) or instrument (circular cigarette burns, etc.).
3. Lacerations; welts; abrasions.
4. Injuries inconsistent with information offered.
5. Injuries inconsistent with child's age.
6. Sexual abuse, whether physical injuries are sustained or not, is any act or acts involving sexual molestation or exploitation, including but not limited to incest, rape, carnal knowledge, sodomy, or unnatural or perverted sexual practices.

CHILD NEGLIGENCE

There is no requirement in law to report suspected neglect, but such a report is highly encouraged.

Examples of Observable Neglect of a Child:

1. Malnourished; ill-clad; dirty; without proper shelter or sleeping arrangements; lacking appropriate health care.
2. Unattended; without adequate supervision.
3. Ill and lacking essential health care.
4. Denied normal experiences that produce feelings of being loved, wanted, secure (emotional neglect).

5. Irregular school attendance.
6. Exploited, overworked.
7. Emotionally disturbed due to continuous friction in the home, marital discord, mentally ill parents.
8. Exposed to unwholesome and demoralizing circumstances.
9. Abandoned
10. Physically abused or cruelly treated.

NOTE: The above examples do not prove that abuse or neglect has actually occurred, but provide evidence for further investigation.

Green Bay

Subject: Proposed Policy and Procedures for the identification, reporting and referral of suspected child abuse, neglect and emotional maltreatment cases. These have been developed by the Child Protection Task Force, Green Bay Public School System. This Task Force has been composed of school and community professionals involved in the problem area of child abuse and neglect. Members participating have been:

Daniel Nerad - Chairperson, School Social Worker
Darlene Axtell - Guidance Counselor, Preble High School
Dr. William Hinz - Pediatrician
Cheryl Smoot - Director of Nursing
Green Bay City Health Department
Helen Ferslev - Director of Elementary Education
Green Bay Public Schools
Mary Dibble - Supervisor of Child Protection Unit
Brown County Department of Social Services
Ann Sonenfield - Medical Social Worker
St. Vincent's Hospital
Pat Lawrence - Green Bay Police Department

Proposed Policy Statement on Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect

The Green Bay Board of Education recognizes the serious local, state and national problem of child abuse and neglect. The following represents a comprehensive approach toward the identification and reporting of suspected child abuse and neglect.

The Green Bay School System is concerned with the whole child, seeking help for the child who is suspected of having been abused or neglected. This is compatible with educational objectives. It is also recognized that undue stress within families may result in abuse and neglect.

School personnel are in a unique position to identify children and families that may be under stress.

The Green Bay Board of Education believes in a positive approach to child protection, involving preventative and therapeutic approach. School personnel can be aware of and sensitive to the causes of child abuse and neglect, assuring appropriate reporting. Inservice training to school personnel will help facilitate this process.

Mandated Agencies

According to Wisconsin State Law (48.56), the County Department of Social Services is charged with the responsibility of receiving and investigating referrals of children alleged to be abused, neglected, or dependent. In Brown County a specialized Child Protective Services Unit has been set up for this purpose. Law enforcement agencies are also mandated to receive and investigate reports.

Confidentiality

School policy regarding confidentiality of records shall pertain to reporting child abuse and neglect. Pertinent information regarding facts and circumstances forming the opinion regarding suspected abuse and neglect must be given to the investigating agency in the best interests of the child. This may include statements of the child's condition, child and parental behavior, and child parental interaction.

Definitions

- "Child" means any person under 18 years of age
- "Abuse" means any injury, physical or sexual, inflicted on a child by other than accidental means by any person*
- "Sexual abuse" refers to rape or molestation of child, whether or not physical injury is sustained
- "Emotional maltreatment" refers to injury to the intellectual or psychological capacity of the child as evidenced by an observable and substantial impairment in his ability to function within a normal range of performance and behavior, with due regard for his culture
- "Neglect" refers to the failure or refusal to provide the basic needs of the child. This can include failure to provide adequate supervision, nutrition, shelter, education and medical care. Neglect can be thought of as an act of omission.

The county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s.48.57.

- B. The school administrator, his appointee or the school social worker will immediately report orally (Appendix B) all suspected child abuse to the intake worker for Protective Services, Brown County Department of Social Services.
- C. If the child is in immediate physical danger, reports should be made directly to the police department.
- D. If the building administrator or his appointee is not available, anyone can and should report to the Child Protection Unit, and, at a later time, inform the administrator.
- E. The school social worker will be notified by the person making the referrals as soon as possible if such report is made directly to Protective Services.
- F. If there is any doubt or question in reporting such cases, it should be resolved in favor of the child. Consultation between administrator and school social worker should be encouraged, keeping in mind prompt reporting is essential.

- G. Any repeated suspected child abuse on a previously referred child should be reported as outlined in Steps A-F.
- H. Within 48 hours after oral report is made, the school social worker will submit a written report to the Child Protection Unit (Appendix C1).
- I. The Child Protection Unit, after investigating the suspected child abuse, will within two weeks submit a written response to the school social worker regarding the status of the referral (Appendix C2). The school social worker will immediately share this information with the building administrator.

Procedures for Reporting Suspected Neglect

In general, the reporting procedure for suspected neglect is identical to the reporting procedure for suspected abuse. Neglect cases are often less emergent and more difficult to substantiate. For these reasons, differences in procedures will be used regarding assessment of the situation and feedback from the Child Protection Unit.

- A. In other than emergency situations, in which the child would be in immediate physical danger, suspected neglect cases will be reviewed by person(s) suspecting neglect, the school administrator, and the school social worker. This group will evaluate the situation to determine if neglect might exist or whether further information is needed to substantiate the likelihood of the claim.
- B. In emergency situations reports should be made directly to the police department.
- C. Written reports regarding the status of the referral from the Child Protection Unit to the school social worker will be submitted within 30 days (Appendix C2).

When Brown County Social Services receives a referral of alleged abuse from a school, the assigned social worker will, in most cases, go immediately to the school to speak with the child and school personnel and to view any injuries that may be present. In severe cases, the worker may request that a police photographer come to the school to document the injuries. All of these activities can be performed without parental permission. Afterwards, the worker speaks with the parents, without mentioning the source of the complaint. The worker discusses the complaint with the parents and tries to determine whether abuse has occurred and/or if there are problems and stresses in the family that could lead to abuse. A judgement must also be quickly made as to whether or not the child is in immediate danger in that home. If the worker believes that the child is in imminent danger, he/she proceeds to notify the court and request an Emergency Custody Order with temporary placement of the child in a foster home. In the great majority of the cases, however, removal is unnecessary, and the child remains in his/her home while the social worker assists the family in solving their problems.

With referrals of alleged neglect, the procedure is much the same, except that there is rarely a need to see the child in school before the parents are contacted. In situations of both abuse and neglect, coordinated case planning may require a meeting between Child Protection and school personnel.

COMMUNITY HEALTH NURSES' ROLE
IN CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT
CASES IN THE SCHOOLS

This paper represents the intention of the Green Bay Health Department Community Health Nursing Division to work in cooperation with the Green Bay Public School System in relation to child abuse and neglect. The goal of our involvement is to work with the community to provide a safe and healthy environment for children and their families.

The Green Bay City Health Department, Community Health Nursing Division, will continue according to state statute reporting suspected cases of child abuse and neglect to the Protective Services Division of the Brown County Social Services Department.

All referrals to the Community Health Nurse that come to the Health Department will come through the Director of Nursing who will act as a referral and resource person in the agency and will delegate referrals according to the residence of the client. It is understood that the Community Health Nurse will clarify her role and determine the type and amount of nursing assessment and intervention that is appropriate and feasible in each individual case.

Service offered may include:

- assessment and counseling regarding immunization status
- teaching and assisting parents to identify developmental stages and their role in each stage
- child care support, guidance, and information
- discussion and referral to other health agencies for services (i.e., education, financial help)
- discussion of appropriate use of physician and assistance with follow through on physician recommendation and orders
- nutrition education
- accident prevention education
- helping to coordinate school and home

All intervention will be recorded which includes goals and progress notes and a summary of information will be available to the Brown County Social Services Department.

We expect a sharing of information from the school in cases where we are actively involved. A coordinated effort will help individualize each case and eliminate any unnecessary duplication or confusion.

We also will participate in inservice education as a key to keeping knowledgeable and current in all areas of health promotion and accident prevention.

Parents Anonymous432-8444

Parents Anonymous is a self-help group for parents who are, or feel they are about to abuse their children. P.A. meetings are a place where people with the same kinds of problems can get together and talk about them. It is a place where people can learn to talk about anger, frustration, and loneliness. It is a place where people can learn new ways of handling their problems.

The local P.A. chapter has a professional sponsor and a great chairman who provides leadership for the group. It is affiliated with the national Parents Anonymous organization. All members are self-referred. The chapter maintains a 24 hour crisis telephone answering service at 432-8444. This number may also be called for information. Posters, pamphlets and speakers on Parents Anonymous may be obtained by calling this number.

CHILD PROTECTION SUBCOMMITTEE

INTRODUCTION

The incidence of reported child abuse and neglect has increased nationally, in Walworth County and the Lake Geneva area. The Lake Geneva Schools have referred suspected child abuse and neglect to the Walworth County Department of Social Services to the extent that such situations have come to their attention.

Child abuse and neglect is recognized as a problem which needs to be examined further in an effort to develop clearly defined school policies, referral procedures, inservice programs and curriculum revisions or additions.

The Guidance and Counseling Committee was requested to deal with this issue. This committee appointed a Child Protection Subcommittee chaired by Joyce Walter, School Social Worker. Other members appointed to the committee included:

Carol Brocker - University of Wisconsin - Whitewater
- Supervisor, Protective Services Unit,
Social Services Department
Shirley Duesler - Guidance Counselor, Lake Geneva Schools
Duanne Lafrenz - Social Worker, Lakeland Counseling Center
Shirley Meister - Badger High School Nurse
Ken Menting - Division of Family Services, Milwaukee
Daniel J. O'Sullivan - Director of Pupil Services
Karl Reinke - Superintendent of Schools
Tony Serpe - Director of Instruction
Butch Skinner - Juvenile Officer, Lake Geneva Police Department

The following school policy and referral procedures have been developed by this committee and will be presented for formal adoption by the Boards of Education of Jt. School District #1 and Badger High School.

Inservice and curriculum recommendations are being dealt with separately in an effort to create more awareness of the problem and develop more techniques and programming which may lessen the future impact of child abuse and neglect.

A POLICY STATEMENT ON CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT

The Lake Geneva Boards of Education recognize the serious local, state and national problems of child abuse and child neglect. The Lake Geneva Boards of Education adopt a comprehensive approach leading toward the detection and reporting of suspected child abuse and child neglect to duly constituted authorities.

The Lake Geneva School System is concerned with the whole child. Seeking help for the child who is suspected to be abused or neglected is compatible with educational objectives. The Lake Geneva Boards of Education believe that effective parenting is a goal of all parents. However, it is recognized that undue stress may lead to the abuse or neglect of children. School personnel are in a unique position to identify children and families that are in trouble.

The Lake Geneva Boards of Education believe in a positive approach to child protection, pursuing a preventative and therapeutic approach to child abuse and neglect rather than a punitive approach. School personnel can be aware and sensitive to the causes of child abuse and neglect, assuring accurate reporting. Annual inservice programming will help meet this objective. Prevention of future child abuse and neglect can be affected by various curriculum additives and/or revisions. Effective treatment of the family in trouble can involve close cooperation between the home and school and/or other agencies.

INFORMATION AND PROCEDURES FOR REPORTING SUSPECTED
ABUSED AND NEGLECTED CHILDREN

Reporting Cases of Child Abuse. Chapter 48.981, Wisconsin Statutes, reads as follows: Reports on abused or injured children (1) A physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s. 885.21 (1)(f) or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise, and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified in s. 48.56 (1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff or the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s. 48.56 (1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s. 48.57. (2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed. (3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

The following procedures are to be used in referring suspected child abuse:

1. Any school employee who suspects that a child has been abused shall report this immediately to their school administrator.
2. The school administrator will immediately report all suspected child abuse to the school social worker and if he/she is not available, to the Director of Pupil Services. If neither is available, all suspected child abuse shall be reported immediately to the Protective Services Unit, Walworth County Social Services Department, or the Walworth County Sheriff's Department or the Lake Geneva Police Department. The school social worker will be notified of such report as soon as possible. If there is any doubt or question in reporting such cases, it should be resolved in favor of the child.
3. The school social worker and/or Director of Pupil Services shall receive all reports of suspected child abuse from the school administrator and report same immediately to the Protective Services Unit of the Walworth County Social Services Department or when that office is not available, the Walworth County Sheriff's Department or the Lake Geneva Police Department. Within 40 hours, the school social worker or Director of Pupil Services shall submit a written report to the Social Services Department, Protective Services Unit (See Appendix A)
4. The Social Services Department, after investigating the suspected child abuse referral, shall within 2 weeks, submit a written response to the Department of Pupil Services regarding the status of the referral (see Appendix B). Continuing dialogue will occur between the social services worker and the referral source.
5. All appropriate school personnel shall be available to provide supportive services when this is part of a treatment plan. It is anticipated that an interagency team approach will be utilized when necessary. This team might include representatives from the school, Social Services, Lakeland Counseling Center and other community resources.
6. Any repeated suspected child abuse incidents on a previously referred child will be reported as outlined above.
7. If there are no significant changes from the standpoint of the school following a referral, the Department of Pupil Services may request a new status report and/or an interagency conference.

In general, suspected child abuse includes:

- Physical injury to a child under age 18 by anyone other than by accidental means
- Any sexual abuse, including molestation, indecent liberties, incest of a child under age 18 whether or not physical injury is sustained.

Reporting Cases of Child Neglect. Chapter 48.13, Wisconsin Statutes, reads as follows: Jurisdiction over children alleged to be neglected or dependent. The juvenile court shall have exclusive jurisdiction over:

1. A child who is alleged to be neglect because:
  - a. He is abandoned by his parent, guardian, or legal custodian; or
  - b. He is without proper parental care because of the faults or habits of his parent, guardian, or legal custodian; or
  - c. He is without necessary subsistence, education or other care necessary for his health, morals or well-being because his parent, guardian, or legal custodian neglects or refuses to provide it; or
  - d. He is without the special care made necessary by his physical or mental condition because his parent, guardian, or legal custodian neglects or refuses to provide it; or
  - e. His occupation, behavior, condition, environment, or associations are such as to injure or endanger his welfare or that of others; or
  - f. He is in a home for which a license is required and which / agency authorized by law to license foster homes has refused to license; or
  - g. He has been placed in a home for adoption for which approval by the county court is required by s. 48.63 and the county court has refused to approve the home; or
  - h. He is in the custody of a person whose petition to adopt him has been denied by the county court and the case has been transferred to the juvenile court under s. 48.95; or
  - i. He comes within the provisions of s. 48.12 but his conduct results in whole or in part from parental neglect.

School personnel are not required by law to report suspected child neglect. The Department of Social Services has statutory authority to investigate reports of suspected child neglect. In general, suspected neglect may fall into one of the following categories.

- malnourished
- unattended
- emotional neglect
- exploitation
- unlawfully kept from attending school
- environmental emotional disturbance
- exposure to demoralizing circumstances
- ill or lack of medical attention

The Social Service Handbook provides a more detailed description of the above (see Appendix C).

The following procedures should help to protect the child suspected of being neglected and should enhance family functioning:

1. Any school employee who suspects a child is being neglected by his caretakers is encouraged to report this to their school administrator.
2. The school administrator will report any suspected neglect of a child to the school social worker.
3. The school social worker will review the school information and assess the need for home contact, use of other school resources and need for referral to appropriate community resources (Legal Aid, Lakeland Counseling Center, Social Security Office, financial department of Social Services, supportive services from the Child Welfare Unit of Social Services, etc.).
4. If the above interventions do not reduce suspected neglect situations, the Director of Pupil Services will make a formal referral to the Child Protection Unit of Social Services (See Appendix D).
5. The Social Services Department, after making every effort to obtain a release of information to the Department of Pupil Services and investigating the suspected child neglect referral, shall within 2 weeks submit a written response to the Department of Pupil Services regarding the status of the referral (see Appendix B). Continuing dialogue will occur between the social services worker and the referral source.
6. All appropriate school personnel shall be available to provide supportive services when this is part of the treatment plan.
7. If the Department of Social Services refers an alleged neglect situation to the Juvenile Court, school personnel having factual testimony shall appear in court after being duly subpoenaed.
8. If there are no significant changes in a suspected neglect referral from the standpoint of the school, the Pupil Services Department may request a new status report and/or interagency conference.

Modification of this policy:

Changes will be made in this policy to conform with changes and/or revisions in the state statute.

Pupil Services
March 1977

Children have a constitutional right to an education; educators should be alert to conditions that deny that right. Those engaged in the practice of education are keenly aware of the relationship that exists between a successful school experience and good physical, mental and emotional health.

Abuse and neglect may be revealed by a variety of symptoms in the school, such as high absenteeism or truancy, inability to concentrate on tasks, inability to achieve, excessive aggression, bruises, welts, burns and illogical and/or conflicting excuses for physical irregularities. In short, any deviant behavior or appearance of children in school are symptoms to which school personnel should be sensitive and which they should attempt to understand.

The Oak Creek Board of Education affirms its position that all school personnel shall cooperate vigorously in following the reporting laws regarding suspected child abuse and neglect.

To fulfill our obligations to our pupils in conformity with the law of the State Chapter 48.981, Wisconsin Statutes, which reads as follows:

REPORTS ON ABUSED OR INJURED CHILDREN.

(1) A physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s.885.21(1)(f), or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker, or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise, and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff of the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary, he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s.48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s.48.57.

(2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom, shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed.

(3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

The following procedures are to be used in referring suspected child abuse:

(1) Any school employee who suspects that a child has been abused shall report this immediately to their school administrator (The school administrator, if unable to reach the school social worker or nurse, shall report the suspected abuse directly to 289-6444).

(2) If there is good reason to believe a child has been abused, the principal or designee, shall consult with the school social worker and/or the school nurse (Using whatever information the school social worker, school nurse, teachers and other school personnel can supply to the principal, he will then make an immediate judgement as to disposition). If abuse is remotely suspected, a school employee should document every incident or clue which may be of value during an investigation of the situation.

(3) The 24 hour emergency number of the Child Protective Services at Milwaukee County Welfare Department (289-6444) will be posted with all other emergency numbers in the administrator's office.

(4) The principal after appropriate consultation, shall contact the Protective Services Unit or may request the school social worker to provide the following information: name, address, age of student, nature and extent of injuries or description of neglect and any other information that might establish the cause of the injuries or condition.

(5) The Protective Services Unit will contact the Oak Creek Police if their involvement is considered appropriate for adequate case planning.

(6) The administrator or school social worker will submit a written report within 48 hours to the Director of Pupil Services outlining the procedures used in a specific referral for child abuse or neglect. Such reports will remain confidential in the Director of Pupil Services office. Within one week after the referral, Protective Services will give a written report to the Oak Creek Schools as feedback regarding handling of the referral, case plan, etc.

It is believed that school staff have a responsibility for "alerting" as well as conscientiously observing possible abuse and neglect that they may encounter during their professional duties. Therefore, all school employees should adopt a policy of supporting multi-disciplinary efforts to investigate and treat child abuse and neglect and should seek to implement a non-punitive therapeutic approach to working with abused children and their families.

Indicators/Physical Abuse

In a School Setting

1. A child who is frequently absent or late. Whether his problem is at home or in school or within himself, known to his parents or not, his habitual lateness or absence strongly suggests a maladjustment.

2. A child who arrives at school too early and hangs around after classes without apparent reason. He may not be welcome or cared for at home; he may hate his home, or be afraid of it.
3. A child who is unkempt and/or inadequately dressed. If he is dressed inappropriately for the weather, if his clothing is dirty and torn, if he is habitually unwashed, if other children don't like to sit near him because they think he smells bad, he is clearly neglected.
4. A child who more than occasionally bears bruises, welts, and other injuries. Will he say how he got them? Does he complain of being beaten at home? Or is he always fighting?
5. A child who is hyperactive, aggressive, disruptive, destructive in behavior. He may be acting out his own hostility. He may be reflecting the atmosphere at home. He may be imitating his parents' behavior. He may be crying out for attention and help.
6. A child who is withdrawn, shy, passive, uncommunicative. He is too compliant or too attentive to comply at all, he has sunk into his own internal world, a safer one, he thinks, than the real world. His message is in his passivity and silence.
7. A child who needs, but is not getting medical attention. He may have untreated sores. He may have an obvious need for dental work. He may need glasses to see the blackboard.
8. A child who is undernourished. What is the reason -- poverty or uncaring parents?
9. A child who is always tired and tends to fall asleep in class. Either he is not well, his parents are neglecting to regulate his routines, or he is simply unable to get to bed and to sleep because of his family problems.
10. The parent who becomes aggressive and abusive when approached with a view to discussing the child's apparent problems.
11. The parent who doesn't bother to show up for appointments, or is so apathetic and unresponsive that he might as well have stayed at home.
12. The parent who is slovenly, dirty, and possibly smelling of alcohol.
13. The parent who shows little concern for the child or what he is doing or failing to do.
14. The parent who does not participate in any school activities or come to any school events
15. The parent who will not permit the child to participate in special school activities or events.

- 16. The parent who is not known to any of the other parents or children.
- 17. The parents behavior as described by the child as bizarre and unusual.
- 18. The parent whose behavior is observed by school personnel to be strange, bizarre, irrational, or unusual in any way.

Oconomowoc

The Board of Education believes that a child's family and the schools have a prime and cooperative role in the education and welfare of children. Therefore, in cases where the family unit has some internal problems that may reflect upon the child's welfare, the schools will intervene in a supportive and/or advocate role.

The Board recognizes its obligation in the detection and reporting of suspected child abuse and neglect. When there is reasonable cause to believe that a child has been abused or neglected, school personnel will act in accordance with Wisconsin Statutes and report incidents to duly constituted authorities.

The Board of Education also believes in a positive and a preventative approach toward child abuse and neglect. Therefore, the Board will endorse efforts toward making staff members more sensitive and cognizant to the issues involved in child abuse and neglect through inservice programs. It is hoped that through cooperation between home, school, and other agencies, effective treatment be provided to children and/or their families.

THE LAW

48.981 REPORTS ON ABUSED OR INJURED CHILDREN. (1) A physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s. 905.04(4)(e), or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker, or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise, and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified in s. 48.56(1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff of the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary, he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s. 48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s. 48.57.

(2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom, shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed.

(3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

PROCEDURES FOR REPORTING CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT
FOR OCONOMOWOC AREA SCHOOLS

Because of their sustained contact with school age children, school employees are in an excellent position to identify abused or neglect children. Therefore, the following procedures are to be used in referring suspected abused and neglected children to County Social Services Departments and Police Departments.

1. Any school employee who suspects that a child's physical or mental health or welfare may be adversely affected by abuse or neglect, shall report this immediately to the school administrator.
2. Any principal who has received a report and who has reasonable cause to believe a child is abused or neglected, shall immediately contact the school social worker or Director of Pupil Services.
3. The principal and school social worker or Director of Pupil Services, shall simultaneously contact the social services department and police department. When there is a question regarding the appropriate police department or county social service department, the Oconomowoc Police Department and Waukesha County Department of Social Services will act as a clearing house.
4. The principal and social worker will provide the following information: name, address, age of student, nature and extent of injuries or description of neglect, and any other information that might help establish the cause of the injuries or condition.
5. Within 48 hours, a written report will be submitted to the Director of Pupil Services, outlining the procedures used in a specific referral of child abuse or neglect. These reports will remain in the Director of Pupil Service's office.

Platteville

The School District of Platteville Board of Education recognizes the local, state, and national problems of child abuse and child neglect. The Platteville Board of Education adopts a comprehensive approach leading toward the detection and reporting of suspected child abuse and child neglect to duly constituted authorities.

The Platteville School System is concerned with the whole child. Seeking help for the child who is suspected to be abused or neglected is compatible with educational objectives. The Platteville Board of Education believes that effective parenting is a goal of all parents. However, it is recognized that undue stress may lead to the abuse or neglect of children. School personnel are in a unique position to identify children and families that are in trouble.

The Platteville Board of Education believes in a positive approach to child protection, pursuing a preventative and therapeutic approach to child abuse and neglect rather than a punitive approach. School personnel can be aware and sensitive to the causes of child abuse and neglect, assuring accurate reporting. Annual inservice programming will help meet this objective. Prevention of future child abuse and neglect can be affected by various curriculum additives and/or revisions. Effective treatment of the family in trouble must involve close cooperation between the home and school and/or other agencies.

The following procedures are to be used in referring suspected child abuse and neglect:

1. If you as an employee of the School District of Platteville observe possible abuse or neglect contact the school administrator and discuss the possibilities of initiating a referral. You need not determine for a fact that abuse or neglect exists, for simple observation of the possibility should be cause enough. In the absence of the school administrator, contact either the school social worker or the school nurse.
2. The school administrator upon receiving a report of suspected neglect or abuse shall notify the school social worker or school nurse. The school social worker or nurse shall make referral immediately to the Department of Social Services or when that office is not available, the appropriate Grant County law enforcement agency. Within 48 hours, the school social worker or school nurse shall submit a written report to the Department of Social Services (see Appendix A).
3. In the event that a school administrator does not wish to initiate a referral on a particular case and you (as an employee of the School District of Platteville) disagree, as a private citizen you have an obligation to make a direct referral, which may be anonymous if you so desire.

4. The Department of Social Services, after investigating the suspected child abuse/neglect referral in the school or home shall within 4 weeks submit a written response to the referrent regarding the status of the referral.
5. Any repeated suspected child abuse incidents on a previously referred child will be reported as outlined above.
6. Any doubt about reporting a suspected situation should be resolved in favor of the child and a report made immediately. Validation of suspected abuse and/or neglect is the responsibility of the County Department of Social Services.

INFORMATION AND PROCEDURES FOR REPORTING SUSPECTED
ABUSED AND NEGLECTED CHILDREN

Reporting Cases of Child Abuse. Chapter 48.981, Wisconsin Statutes, reads as follows: Reports on abused or injured children (1) a physician or surgeon being of the opinion as specified in s. 835.21(1)(f) or a nurse, hospital administrator, dentist, social worker or school administrator having reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him has had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means, shall orally report the same and the facts and circumstances forming the opinion. The report shall be made immediately by telephone or otherwise, and followed by a report in writing to a county child welfare agency specified s. 48.56(1), the sheriff of the county or the city police department. The recipient of the report shall notify the other receivers of reports within 48 hours. When the recipient of the report is the sheriff or the county or city police department, he shall make an investigation consistent with the facts and circumstances described in the report and take whatever emergency action is necessary for the protection of the child. If the sheriff or city police department determines that legal action is necessary he shall refer the case to the district attorney for criminal prosecution. The county child welfare agency specified in s. 48.56(1) shall investigate each report and act in accordance with its powers and duties as set forth in s. 48.57. (2) Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil or criminal, that might otherwise be incurred or imposed. (3) Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

For the purposes of this policy the terms abuse, neglect, and emergency will be defined as follows:

1. "Abuse" means any injury - physical, sexual or emotional - inflicted on a child by other than accidental means.
2. "Neglect" means the failure to provide a child with necessary food, care, clothing, shelter, medical attention or the opportunity for education.
3. "Emergency" - a situation wherein a child's condition or fear of returning home appears to warrant medical attention and/or detention.

GRANT COUNTY SOCIAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT'S FINDING:

DATE:

PROTECTION SERVICES WORKER ASSIGNED:

Employees of the Stevens Point Area Schools will identify and report suspected cases of child abuse consistent with Wisconsin Statutes and the guidelines of the Portage County Department of Social Services.

Definition

According to State Statute 48.981(1) an abused child is any child who has "had physical injury or other abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means". This definition is construed to include physical and/or emotional abuse and sexual molestation or exploitation regardless of whether or not physical injury is sustained.

Immunity

Under SS 48.981(1) a school administrator is required to report to the County Department of Social Services, the City Police Department, or the County Sheriff when he has "reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him" has been abused as defined above. In so doing SS 48.981 (2) grants him the following immunity:

"Anyone, in good faith, participating in the making of a report pursuant to this section or participating in a judicial proceeding resulting therefrom shall in so doing be immune from any liability, civil, or criminal that might otherwise be incurred or imposed."

Penalty

48.981(3) further states that:

"Anyone knowingly and willfully violating this section by failing to file a report as required may be fined not more than $100.00 or imprisoned not more than six months or both."

In addition to the penalty prescribed by state law, staff personnel, as well as administrators could be subjected to legal action by the abused child's guardian if it is established that the school employee had prior knowledge, which if reported may have prevented further injury.

Procedures

Any teacher or teacher's aide having reason to believe that a child may have been abused shall make an immediate report to the principal of his respective school or, in his absence, the assistant superintendent of schools. Such reports shall include the name(s), and home address(es) of the child(ren), and the parent or other person responsible for the care of the child(ren). The report shall also include the present whereabouts of the child(ren), the age(s) of the child(ren), and the nature and extent of the abuse and the circumstances surrounding the abusive treatment, if known.

Any school administrator who either personally suspects that a child has been abused or has received a report of suspected abuse from a teacher or teacher's aide shall immediately call the Portage County Department of Social Services, the Stevens Point Police Department, or the Portage County Sheriff's Department. Following an oral report, the administrator will submit a written report to the Portage County Department of Social Services providing identifying information and the circumstances surrounding the suspected abuse. A copy of this report will also be forwarded to the superintendent of schools.

Since it is the responsibility of the Department of Social Services and law enforcement to investigate possible abuse, school personnel should not pressure the child to divulge information regarding an injury or other circumstances surrounding the abuse. The school need not prove that abuse exists before reporting. They need only suspect that abuse has occurred.

WausauThe Wisconsin Child Abuse Reporting Law,
How We Implement Its Requirements

Wisconsin law mandates that school administrators and social workers refer cases where "they have reasonable cause to believe that a child brought to him or coming before him had physical injury or abuse inflicted upon him by another, other than by accidental means." In the near future additional school personnel will probably be added to the list of professionals required by law to report child abuse to social service departments and/or local law enforcement agencies.

Making the determination that a child is being neglected or abused is a difficult process. A thorough knowledge of the common indicators of abuse and neglect can assist a person in evaluating the situation and reporting his concerns to his building principal, school social worker or guidance counselor. While the indicator lists included are condensed more extensive information will be made available to any school personnel by their calling the school social work office at City Hall.

The attached referral flow sheet outlines the care in which such referrals are handled by Wausau school personnel. These steps were specifically designed to protect the parent's rights in the process of identification, referral and treatment. A teamwork approach is essential through the entire process to insure more complete evaluations and accurate and prompt referrals.

Action Flow Chart for Handling Neglect and Abuse Situations

1. Employee Responsibility

Any school employee who has a belief that a student may be being neglected or abused, must contact his/her building principal, school social worker or guidance counselor with his/her information.

2. School Staff Meeting

A meeting is led by the principal with all school staff familiar with the child/family to discuss the information they collectively possess.

3. School Referral of Abuse and Neglect

In meetings where the staff members present believe the child (under age 18) is a probable victim of neglect and/or abuse.

- a) The Marathon County Department of Social Services personnel are immediately called and given a verbal report of our findings (an assigned staff member will personally meet with the reporting party).
- b) Within 48 hours the school social worker or guidance counselor sends a typed neglect or abuse report to the social services department person making the investigation.

4. Marathon County Social Services Investigation and Decision Making

Their intake or protective services social worker investigates the situation through a home visit and interview with the parents. They make the actual decision regarding the existence of child neglect and/or abuse.

5. Follow-Up Services

Treatment, not punishment is the goal of service personnel in the Wausau community in working with these families. Depending on the parent's involvement and the nature of the individual situation several different agencies' personnel, including school staff members could be involved in the service plan to the family.

Indicators of Neglect and/or Abuse

The presence of a cluster of indicators does not confirm either neglect or abuse. When several indicators are present school staff should study the child's circumstances carefully. The definitions of abuse and neglect and the accompanying materials and inservice should assist school staff in their decisions of when to ask (1) for a staff meeting to carefully evaluate the situation, (2) the department of social services and/or local law enforcement personnel to further investigate the child-family situation.

Working Definition of Child Neglect

Child neglect occurs when there is a sustained pattern of the child's basic needs not being met. The most common basic needs are supervision, safety, medical care, proper food, clothing and shelter. Care of the child's moral, educational, emotional and self-growth needs is important to the basic personality development of every child.

Neglect Indicator List

Consistently dirty clothing	Key clothing items missing
Body Odor	Hunger
Sleepy	Withdrawn child
Aggressive child

Working Definition of Child Abuse

Child abuse is the actual physical injury to a child (person under 18) by any adult by non-accidental means.

Abuse Indicator List

Bruises

- especially if unusual shape or shape of an instrument
- especially if bilateral and identical
- especially facial bruises
- especially bruises to the back side of the body

Swollen stiff joints - especially if reddish-purple (twisters)

Burns (shape, instrument, cigarette)

Absence of hair

Hemorrhaging under the scalp

Rope burns

Belt, buckle, electric cord markings

Consider the above injuries in relation to:

The "child's report", "adult report" of how the injury occurred (child's adult's behavior and affect or emotional response).

The "developmental ability" of the child in injuring himself in such a way.

Extension of the injuries (bruises, cuts, etc.)

- a) over a large or various parts of the body
- b) different colors, stages of healing, ages of the injuries

Working Definition of Sexual Abuse

Sexual abuse of children by adults includes sexual intercourse and acts designed to stimulate the child sexually or to use a child for sexual stimulation of the perpetrator or of another person.

Sexual Abuse Indicator List

Limping (noticeable change in walking)
 Stained, torn clothing
 Sudden unwillingness to change clothes or participate in gym class
 Bruises, swelling, bleeding, pain in the genital area
 Venereal disease in young children

Teachers Key to Finding Abused Children

Child abuse victims are three times more likely to be enrolled in special education than are nonabused children. What's more, abused children are "almost uniformly" below grade level in reading, math, and spelling. These statistics, from Utah State University special education professor Donald F. Kline, were presented to a cross-section of nearly 1,000 social workers, educators, physicians and law enforcement officials attending an American Humane Association symposium on child abuse and neglect in Denver last week. The special education study was based on 300 child abuse cases in Utah juvenile court records from 1968-75 and included psychological and educational data about the children provided by the state family services division and school districts. Older abused children had the greatest deficits on achievement tests, Kline said. Those who had been sexually abused showed the greatest academic deficit and the neglected children had the least. Psychological traits that were frequently associated with physically abused children were fearfulness, destructiveness and aggression. The neglected children were characterized by teachers and school psychologists as "clingy, with poor social relationships". The sexually abused were frequently described as hostile or fearful.

Schools can be a valuable resource for discovering and reporting child abuse, Kline added, because teachers are the only persons trained in child development who have continuous contact with children. Also, children usually like their teachers and may confide in them about what is happening at home. "Watch for paydays," Kline said, "abuse and neglect often peak about the first and fifteenth of the month". Nancy Parker, a nurse with the East Detroit (Michigan) School District, urged educators to involve lay school employees as well as teachers. The cafeteria workers see what children eat and the bus drivers see the home, she pointed out. An assistant high school principal from Kentucky said he implemented a child abuse reporting program easily and with no cost to the district. Gene Sells said he was "home free" after he cited to the school board a state statute that protected from liability those who reported suspected child abuse. He then prepared a short, written policy about reporting and designated himself as the contact person. "Just by picking up a telephone," he added, "I've been able to help two students." 143

Schools have a responsibility to teach "parenting", several speakers added, as a first defense against future child abuse. "There is no such thing as a mothering or fathering instinct", said Lawrence Brown of the American Humane Assn., Children's Division. Much frustration that leads to abuse stems from mistaken expectations about a child's abilities, such as an assumption that a child can be toilet trained at age one. It is important to teach students how to deal with anger, he said, adding that "63% of child abuse results from discipline that goes too far". Parent education for adults can be successfully taught in small discussion groups aimed at experience in problem-solving. Participants should have something in common, he added, such as being working mothers or single parents.

Parent education won't happen in the schools without public support, said Grace Baisinger, first vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. The National PTA is working with the American Red Cross to develop a parent education curriculum (see ED USA, p. 187, 4/5/76). "Parenting needs to be aimed at the teachers as well as the students", said Kline. "It doesn't make sense to talk to parents about physical abuse while institutions still sanction corporal punishment. Punishment and discipline are not the same thing", he said. "We cannot tolerate abusive behavior by teachers, whether psychological, emotional or physical". The symposium was co-sponsored by the Education Commission of the States, the American Public Welfare Association, the children and youth committee of the American Legion and the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges.

PROCEDURES IN ASSESSING AND REPORTING CHILD NEGLECT AND/OR ABUSE

Wisconsin law requires schools to report all incidents of child neglect and/or abuse to either the Marathon County Department of Social Services or the local law enforcement agency. The Marathon County Department of Social Services has a child protective services team with social workers specifically trained to investigate reports of child neglect and abuse. Marathon County agencies are presently developing a full assessment team of professionals from the medical, legal, law enforcement and psychiatric fields to work with the protective services staff in completely assessing each particular situation.

The Youth Advocacy Committee feels that the following categories should be contained in a definition of child abuse and neglect:

1. Visible bruises
2. Internal bruises/brain damage
3. Broken limbs/sprains
4. Psychological and emotional stress such that a child cannot maintain himself in his home
5. Nutritional deficiencies
6. Failure to provide necessities, e.g. clothing, health standards, etc.
7. Any type of burn
8. Cuts and abrasions
9. Unattended children
10. Sexual abuse and incest

Specific Procedures

In order to insure an accurate and complete report of the abuse or neglect incident and to support the completion of the referral process the following steps are required of school staff (Please note that steps 1-4 must take place the same day the abuse is discovered).

1. Any staff member who discovers an abused or neglected child shall immediately relate this information to the school principal and school social worker or counselor.
2. The principal shall then convene a meeting with the school social worker or counselor, school psychologist, and school nurse along with the staff member who originally reported the abuse or neglect incident.
3. The school staff will share and collect all the information they have available on the particular child and his family.
4. The principal and/or social worker-counselor shall call the Marathon County Social Services Department or local law enforcement agency and ask that an assigned staff member come to the school to receive the abuse report and meet with school staff. A written report, by school staff must be filed and should include:

- a. The names and addresses of the child and his parents or whoever is caring for him;
  - b. The child's age
  - c. The nature of the child's condition, including any evidence of previous injuries or disabilities; include dates.
  - d. Any other information that may be helpful in establishing the reason for the abuse and the identity of the perpetrator(s).
  - e. Factual information - dates of trancies and absences, school performance and behavior and general physical appearance of the child.
5. The school social worker and/or counselor shall be assigned to (1) follow the progress of the particular child in school and (2) to keep school staff informed of the results of the child protective team's assessment and treatment with the child and his/her family.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This proposal makes various changes relating to reporting child abuse, mental injury or neglect. Its chief features include:

(1) A court is required to appoint a guardian ad litem for each child subject to a judicial proceeding regarding child abuse, mental injury or neglect.

(2) The types of persons who are required to report cases of suspected child abuse or neglect are expanded, generally including medical and mental health professionals, social and public assistance workers, educators and child care workers. Psychiatrists and psychologists must report cases of suspected mental injury of a child if they think the child is in immediate danger or if professional efforts have failed and they think it is in the child's best interest to make the report.

(3) Time limits for reports and investigations and procedures for emergency protective custody are established.

(4) A central registry for reports of child abuse, mental injury or neglect is created.

(5) Criteria are established for a classification of reports into categories of "suspected", "indicated" or "unfounded". The bill also specifies criteria for the destruction of various types of reports.

(6) The department of health and social services must notify a person within 24 hours after the department receives a report classifying a case involving that person as "indicated". The person may then have a hearing to have the report or parts of the report destroyed.

(7) Reports and records relating to child abuse, mental injury or neglect will be confidential, except to the subject, staff, an attending physician or a court conducting abuse, neglect or child protective proceedings. Information will be available for bona fide researchers, but persons and reporters will not be identified. Subjects will not be told the name of the initial reporter.

(8) The department and county agencies will conduct continuing education and training programs.

(9) Any person who wilfully fails to file a report may be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both. Any person who violates the confidentiality requirements may be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

For further information, see the fiscal estimate which will be printed as an appendix to the proposal.

7 child's health or safety is in immediate danger, the investigating
8 officer shall place the child in protective custody and deliver the 9 child to the county agency.

10 3. If the police or other law enforcement officials determine
11 that legal action is necessary, they shall refer the case to the 12 district attorney for criminal prosecution.

13 (c) Duties of county agencies. 1. The county agency shall 14 act in accordance with s. 48.57. Within 24 hours of the receipt of

19 a visit to the child's home or usual place of abode, observation of 20 the child and an interview with the child and the child's parents or 21 custodians.

22 2. Additionally, within 72 hours after receipt of an initial 23 report the county agency shall complete and forward to the central

 2 or "unfounded". A finding of "indicated" shall be supported by a
 3 preponderance of the evidence available to the agency; whenever
 4 there is less than a preponderance of the evidence indicating child
 5 abuse, mental injury or neglect, the report shall be classified as
 6 "unfounded". Reports classified as "indicated" shall include a
 7 description of the services being provided to the child and those
 8 responsible for his or her care, as well as all relevant

 15 registry, the agency shall destroy all its records concerning cases
 16 of child abuse, neglect or mental injury classified as "unfounded".

17           5. The county agency may hold temporary physical custody of a

 21 nile court that it is holding the child in physical custody. Within 22 the time period specified, the agency shall either apply to the 23 court for emergency legal custody under s. 48.28 (1) (em) or return
 24 the child to the parent or guardian. The application shall not be 25 considered binding in any other proceeding relating to child abuse
 26 or neglect or termination of parental rights or in any criminal

5 report suspected cases of child abuse, mental injury or neglect that 6 steps were taken to protect the health and welfare of a child who is
7 the subject of a report made by the person. At least one contact
8 shall be made under this subdivision within 60 days after receipt of 9 the initial report by the agency.

10 8. The county agency shall cooperate with law enforcement
11 officials, courts of competent jurisdiction and other human service

13 and neglect. To the extent possible, the county agency shall co-
14 ordinate the development and provision of services to children found
15 to be abused, mentally injured, or neglected under this section.

16 9. The county agency shall forward copies of all written
17 investigative reports of suspected child abuse or mental injury or 18 of neglect alleging that a child's safety is endangered, classified
19 as "indicated" or "unfounded", to the central registry under sub.
20 (8).

21 (d) Independent investigation. If an agent of an investi-
22 gating agency is the subject of the initial report, an independent
23 investigation shall be conducted by the department or by another 24 agency designated by the department.

25 (5) IMMUNITY FROM LIABILITY. Any person or institution parti-
26 cipating in good faith in the making of a report, ordering or taking

1 of photographs or ordering or performing medical procedures and
2 examinations of a child under this section shall have immunity from
3 any liability, civil or criminal, that results by reason of the 4 action. For the purpose of any proceeding, civil or criminal, the 5 good faith of any person reporting cases of child abuse, mental 6 injury or neglect shall be presumed.

8 report cases of suspected child abuse or neglect who has reasonable
9 cause to suspect that a child died as a result of child abuse or 10 neglect shall report the fact to the appropriate medical examiner or 11 coroner. The medical examiner or coroner shall accept the report
12 for investigation and shall report the findings to the appropriate
13 district attorney, the department, the county agency and, if the 14 institution making the report initially is a hospital, to the hospi-
15 tal.

17 ure to file a report as required, may be fined not more than $100 or 18 imprisoned not more than 6 months or both.

19 (8) CENTRAL REGISTRY. (a) The department shall maintain a con-

23 pected child abuse, mental injury and neglect cases and shall trans-
24 mit information to authorized persons and agencies under sub. (10).

25 (b) The central registry shall be operated in such a manner as 26 to enable the department to:

6           2. Serve as a case management tool for the department in 7           reviewing the adequacy of local child protective efforts.

8           3. Aid research efforts aimed at increasing the general
9           knowledge of child abuse, mental injury and neglect.

10           (c) Reports of child abuse, mental injury and neglect shall be
11           maintained at the central registry in one of 3 categories: sus-
12           pected, unfounded or indicated.

13           1. All preliminary reports shall be classified as suspected;
14           such reports shall be maintained for no longer than 60 days after 15           receipt of the preliminary report from the county agency, after 16           which they shall be classified as "unfounded" or "indicated".

17           2. A report may be classified as "indicated" only when such a 18           finding is supported by a preponderance of the evidence available to 19           the county agency, as provided in sub. (4) (c) 3. Indicated reports
20           may be maintained in the central registry only when supplemental 21           information as required under sub. (4) (c) 3 is attached.

22           3. A report determined by the county agency to be "unfounded"
23           shall be classified "unfounded by reason of insufficient evidence".

24           4. A report which has not been the subject of a finding by 25           the county agency within 60 days after its receipt shall be classi-
26           fied "unfounded for want of an investigation".

1 (d) The reports to the central registry shall contain the

6 injuries, abuse or neglect, to the child or siblings; the names of 7 the persons alleged to be responsible for the abuse or neglect;
8 family composition, including names, ages, sexes and races of other
9 children in the home; demographic data related to census tract data;
10 the source of the report; the person making the report, his or her

13 provided.

14 (e) The names, addresses and all other identifying character-
15 istics of all persons named in "unfounded" reports shall be 16 destroyed immediately upon their classification as "unfounded". The 17 identifying characteristics of persons named in "indicated" reports
18 shall be destroyed 7 years after receipt of the report, unless 19 representatives of the local agency show good reason why the 20 information should not be destroyed.

21 (f) If the investigation of the initial report by the county
22 agency fails to disclose a preponderance of the evidence indicating 23 abuse, mental injury or neglect, all information in the report shall 24 be removed from the central registry and destroyed not later than 60
25 days after the initial report.

26 (9) NOTIFICATION. Within 24 hours after receipt of an

9 any other governmental agency and destroyed. If a petition under s.
10 48.20 has been filed, the petition for destruction shall not be 11 granted unless the court finds that the petition under s. 48.20 was 12 unwarranted. If a petition under s. 48.20 has not been filed and 13 the petitioner for destruction proves by a fair preponderance of the 14 evidence that the report of child abuse is without foundation, the 15 report shall be classified unfounded.

16 (10) CONFIDENTIALITY. (a) 1. All reports and records made
17 under this section and maintained by the department, county agen-

15 this section may be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not 16 more than 6 months or both.

22 shall be designed to encourage reporting of child abuse, mental 23 injury and neglect, to encourage self-reporting and voluntary accep-
24 tance of services and to improve communication, cooperation and co-
25 ordination among all agencies in the identification, prevention and 26 treatment of child abuse, mental injury and neglect. The department

9 are not limited to, receipt, investigation and verification of 10 reports; determination of treatment or ameliorative social services;
11 or referral to the appropriate court.

12 (c) In meeting its responsibilities under par. (a) or (b),
13 the department or a county agency may contract with any public or

17 abuse, mental injury and neglect.
