FOREWORD

MFI

Aviation security is an essential ingredient of aviation safety. Every reasonable effort must be made to protect the more than 200 million passengers who travel on the U.S. airlines annually. The Federal, state and local governments and the aviation industry share the responsibilities for maintaining an effective civil aviation security program. Fortunately, the general public and the courts have fully supported this combined effort.

Local law enforcement officers have contributed immeasurably to the success of the civil aviation security program. Today more than 5,000 officers with specialized training in airport activities, aircraft operations and aviation security are assigned to more than 400 American airports. Their professional competence and personal concern have played a vital role in deterring criminal threats to air safety and protecting the lives and interests of the local citizens. Much of the success of the anti-hijacking program is due to the dedication of the local law enforcement officers.

In September 1974, in response to a need for the law enforcement organizations participating in aviation security to know and to be able to contact their counterparts at air carrier airports throughout the country, this office published the first issue of the "Directory - Local Law Enforcement Organizations Participating in Aviation Security." This is the fourth revised edition of the Directory.

It is hoped that this Directory will continue to be helpful to those law enforcement personnel involved in aviation security.

Director of Civil Aviation Security

INTRODUCTION

All Directories are updated frequently in order to remain current as personnel, addresses and telephone numbers are continually changing. The Office of Civil Aviation Security would appreciate the recipients of this Directory forwarding all changes and corrections to the Federal Aviation Administration's Air Transportation Security Field Office (ATSFO) with whom they have day to day contact. ATSFOs in turn should send such information to the Chief, Ground Operations Security Division, ACS-300, through their respective Regional Air Transportation Security Divisions.
