FOREWORD

This bibliography is designed as a reference guide for administrators, planners, researchers, analysts and others who seek to identify sources of information pertaining to the diverse field of criminal justice statistical development. It contains references to published and unpublished documents, produced from 1965 to 1979, potentially relevant for the development of criminal justice statistics, indicators and information systems in particular respect to the Province of Alberta. The bibliography's primary objective is to provide a comprehensive listing of readily available documents to facilitate Alberta criminal justice research, planning and information exchange.

Users of criminal justice statistical information are often faced with difficulties in finding out what data collection and research has been done in the field, especially as statistics and methodology originate from diverse documents and locations. This bibliography is intended to facilitate the search for such information, especially as it pertains to Alberta; it attempts to cite a wide variety of works, from as many available sources as possible. References were identified by examining published, and some unpublished, documents from holdings of Alberta Government departments and other Alberta libraries, including: books, research reports, bibliographies and reference lists from numerous research organizations, journal and periodical articles, academic theses, proceedings of social science conferences, the Current Contents data base, and the U.S. Department of Justice National Criminal Justice Reference Service's data base.

The initiative for the bibliography's development originally stemmed from a request from the National Work Group on Justice Information and Statistics (NWG) to representatives of Alberta Solicitor General and Alberta Bureau of Statistics to define possible criminal justice performance indicators for Alberta. The NWG, composed of representatives from the federal departments of Justice, Solicitor General and Statistics Canada, works toward the development of better national justice statistics and information to meet user needs from the stand-point of management information, policy planning, programme evaluation and a wide variety of research applications. The NWG has agreed to work with the provinces in analysing the problems, recommending solutions and assisting in implementing those solutions which could lead to a more acceptable level of justice information and statistics in Canada. This bibliography offers a source book for purposes of reviewing criminal justice statistical and methodological information for Alberta.

We wish to thank everyone who contributed to the publication of this bibliography, especially those who furnished us with documents and/or references to relevant documents.

Any questions or concerns regarding the content and/or organization of this bibliography should be addressed to the Secondary Data Development Unit of the Alberta Bureau of Statistics.

Organization of the Bibliography

The bibliography cites documents in the areas of criminal justice responsibility (i.e., law enforcement, courts and corrections), surveys (e.g., victimization, attitudes toward various criminal justice issues), and statistical and information system development (e.g., social and performance indicator development). All areas of adult criminal justice at all levels of government are included in this documentation; juvenile criminal justice references have been excluded.

The references from various subject areas are arranged into five sections: Social Indicators, Performance Indicators, Criminal Justice Statistics and Information Systems, Criminal Justice Performance Indicators and Criminal Justice Statistics Bibliographies. The first two sections refer to two broad areas of indicator development, and the last three areas are specific to the criminal justice statistical development field. As the criminal justice areas are subject-specific fields within the broader domain of social and performance indicators, the latter areas provide a broader perspective on indicator development and should furnish the necessary background information to those who need to develop criminal justice performance indicators.

The Social Indicators section documents references concerned with methodological development of statistics that measure and assess aspects of social conditions related to human well-being over time, that are useful for facilitating judgements about progress towards social and/or policy goals and about evaluating programmes and their effects. The Performance Indicators section's references are those relevant to the measurement and assessment of performance of any activity, usually for purposes of providing tools for management planning and control of organizational activities. The Criminal Justice Statistics and Information Systems cites documents pertaining to methodological development and assessment within these two areas. It identifies major Alberta criminal justice statistical reports and systems documentation. While research reports analyzing particular criminal justice issues have been excluded, many research reports and descriptive accounts that will assist in interpreting criminal justice trends in Alberta are found in this section. The Criminal Justice Performance Indicators section includes references relevant to developing criminal justice statistical series that facilitate the assessment of changes in important conditions, societal and/or policy goals and their attainment, planning initiatives and programmes (e.g., citizen satisfaction with police services, changes in court activities over time and jurisdictions, evaluation of correctional programmes). Depending on their specific applications, these indicators may be based on objective and/or perceptual statistical measures, and may be global or partial in nature. The last section, Criminal Justice Statistics Bibliographies, includes references to bibliographies, dictionaries, indexes and directories that source criminal justice statistical information.

As the literature in a particular section is often highly related to literature in other sections, reference classification is not always mutually exclusive. Where this is the case, and where references deal with more than one area, a reference is located in the section of its major impact. For example, a report containing information on criminal justice statistics and performance indicators is located in the Criminal Justice Performance Indicators section, if that report largely deals with the latter topic.

A given document is referenced only once in the bibliography. Each section is listed alphabetically according to author's surname or sponsoring agency's name. The one exception to the organization of the bibliography is the grouping together of most of the U.S. Department of Justice Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's (LEAA) reports in the Criminal Justice Statistics and Information Systems section; some LEAA-funded research may be located under a particular author/sponsoring organization.

Government publications are categorized under the name of the national, provincial, state or municipal government first, then the name of that government's department or agency. Reports prepared by consultants are usually listed under the sponsoring organization, with acknowledgement to the author(s). Multiple references by the same author/sponsoring organization in a particular section are date ordered, from the earliest to the most recent work, except for numerically-ordered publications. The most recent periodic publications available at the time of preparation of this publication are reported.
