ACQUISITIONS

The criminal caseload in the U.S. district courts during the ten year period, 1970 through 1979 rose from 39,959 filings in 1970 to a high of 49,054 filings in 1972 and declined to 28,921 filings in 1979. Notably, these statistics reflect the impact of prosecutions of Selective Service violations and drug law offenses over the ten year period. This volume is supplemented by Federal Offenders in U.S. District Courts published each year 1970 through 1974 and one report for the five year period 1975 through 1979.

During the period, substantial changes in presentation of criminal statistics tables occurred partly in response to the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 which began its three year phase-in period July 1, 1976. The revisions in the tables were approved by the Subcommittee of Judicial Statistics of the U.S. Judicial Conference Committee on Court Administration.

Through all of this period, every effort was made to provide continuity of the data for scholars and researchers. This report, then, is a compilation of data previously published in the Annual Report of the Director, some of which are now out of print. Therefore, this ten year volume is particularly important for those seeking to chart the number of defendants prosecuted in the U.S. district courts.

This is the third 1970 ten year report provided by the Statistical Analysis and Reports Division under the direction of its Chief, James A. McCafferty. The first such report provided statistics on the workload of the U.S. Courts of Appeals. The second provided statistics on civil cases and trials in the U.S. district courts. This triad of reports is only the tip of the "statistical iceberg" of the data obtained through the assistance of the clerks of court and their deputies.

U.S. District Courts
Criminal Caseload and Defendant Statistics for the Ten-Year Period
July 1, 1970 through June 30, 1979

The U.S. district courts experienced two definite cycles of caseload statistics in the ten year period. Criminal cases filed escalated to 49,054 in 1972 and then dipped slightly to 43,292 filings in 1975. But with the 41,589 filings in 1977, there was a substantial drop in criminal case filings down to 32,688 in 1979, modestly lower than in 1970.

The purpose of this report is to provide a single reference source of the statistical tables on the criminal workload of the U.S. district courts. These tables were originally published in the Annual Report of the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

Two special tables follow which specify the number of cases or defendants represented in the criminal justice statistics reporting program in the U.S. district courts. The column labeled "Original" refers to all defendants (or cases) recorded in U.S. district courts. The exceptions appear in the succeeding columns. Rule 20 refers to the transfers from one district to another, for the purpose of sentencing, when the defendant pleads guilty in the original district to an offense committed in the other district. The number of these cases remains proportionally about the same each year. For defendants terminated (Table 2) a procedure has been developed for accounting for one defendant during the twelve month reporting period. Therefore, additional dispositions of a defendant are counted as "duplicate defendants" and are omitted in the tables referencing terminated defendants. (See Appendix for discussion.)

Three factors impacted on the presentation of the criminal statistical tables in the Annual Report of the Director. First, because of the local characteristics of offenses commenced in the District of Columbia and the territories in the early 1970's, the criminal tables. The Court Reorganization Act for the District of Columbia (P.L. 91-358), which came into partial effect in 1972, established the District of Columbia Superior Court for prosecuting offenders of the District of Columbia Criminal Code. Beginning in 1976, generally all district courts were included in the criminal case/defendant tables.

Second, the impact of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 is reflected in changes to the tables beginning in 1976.

Third, the Judicial Statistics Subcommittee of the Court Administration Committee of the Judicial Conference of the U.S. approved, in November 1977, a revised set of criminal tables. For the most part, the revisions were incorporated beginning in 1978.

The Appendix describes the criminal justice statistics information system operated by the Administrative Office, including a statement regarding the various methods used for handling the accounting of offenses and sentences.

The tables are presented by type for each year 1970 through 1979. All data are for the twelve month periods ended June 30. What follows is a brief explanations of the tables.

Filings, Terminations, and Pending Caseload

Table D-1. This series presents workload by district for filings, terminations, and pending caseload.

Due to the need for different accounting required by the implementation of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974, new tables were provided. Thus in 1976, Tables D-1 and D-1A reflect criminal defendants. In 1977, Tables D-1AC and D-1AD reference criminal cases and defendants, respectively. Table D-1FMC presents all felony and misdemeanor cases and Table D-1FMD reflects all felony and misdemeanor defendants.

Criminal Filings by Offense

Table D-2. Offenses for which criminal cases were commenced are presented in these tables for 1970 through 1976. Beginning in 1978, both cases and defendants are presented. The totals for Table D-2AC (1973-1977) can be compared to totals appearing in the D-1AC series. Table D-2FMC (1976 and 1977) reflect felony and misdemeanor cases filed by offense.

Criminal Cases Commenced

Table D-3. This series provides, by district, the number of criminal cases commenced in major offense groups for each year 1970 through 1979. In 1977, Table D-3FMC reflects only felony and misdemeanor cases commenced. Beginning in 1978, statistics are provided for criminal defendants commenced.

Pending Criminal Caseload

Table D-3a. The number of criminal cases pending by major offense in each district is reflected in these tables for the years 1970 through 1972. In 1973, this table was renumbered as Table D-8.

Table D-3b. For the years 1970 through 1972, these tables indicate, by district, the length of time criminal cases were pending as of June 30. In 1973 through 1976, this table was numbered D-8B. It was renumbered in 1977 as Table D-10AC, which was revised again in 1978.

Criminal Defendants Disposed of by Offense

Table D-4. This series reflects, by offense, the disposition of criminal defendants in U.S. district courts (exclusive of the District of Columbia) for the years 1970 through 1973. The territories are excluded for all years except 1977, 1978, and 1979. Table D-4FMD reflects felony and misdemeanor defendants disposed of in 1977.

Table D-4a and D-5a. These tables present the defendants disposed of by nature of offense for the District of Columbia. The series was discontinued after 1973. Statistics for the District of Columbia appear with all other district courts.

Criminal Defendants Terminated by Offense

Table D-5. This series presents the type of sentence imposed on criminal defendants convicted in U.S. district courts. The territories are excluded for all years except 1977, 1978, and 1979. Table D-5FMD reflects felony and misdemeanor defendants disposed of in 1977.

Median Time for Criminal Defendants from Filing to Disposition

Table D-6. These tables reflect the median time from filing to disposition of a defendant's criminal case in the district court. Filing to disposition time includes all time as a fugitive and, since 1976, time in excludable status pursuant to The Speedy Trial Act of 1974 and Amendments of August 1979.

Disposition of Defendants by Type of Sentence

Table D-7. This series provides, by district, the disposition of defendants and the type of sentence. The major change in this table occurred in 1978 when the type of sentence was enlarged to include the type of imprisonment and, for those placed on probation, the length of supervision imposed.

Table D-7AD. In 1977, this table reflected all defendants disposed of. Table D-7FMD refers only to defendants terminated with a felony or misdemeanor offense.

Pending Caseload by Major Offense and District

Table D-8. This series presents all criminal cases pending by nature of offense in each district. These tables continue the Table D-3a series.

Table D-8a. This table continues the Table D-3b series. It indicates criminal cases pending in each district, exclusive of fugitives.

Table D-8b. Cases by district and length of time pending with and without fugitive defendants are reflected in these tables.

Triable Criminal Cases by District

Table D-9. This series was introduced in 1977. The first table presents criminal cases pending, exclusive of defendants pending six months or more. Table D-9FMC presents data for felonies and misdemeanors only. In 1978, the series was revised to reflect all triable criminal cases, thereby, removing all cases with fugitive defendants together with any case with a defendant with an excludable delay pursuant to the provisions of The Speedy Trial Act of 1974.

Triable and Non-Triable Criminal Cases by District

Table D-10. The 1977 and 1978 tables continue Table D-8b presented earlier. In 1977, Table D-10AC refers to all cases pending, whereas Table D-10FMC presents felony and misdemeanor cases. In 1978 and 1979, pending triable criminal cases and defendants are shown by district as of June 30.

TABLE D-1.—U.S. district courts, criminal cases commenced and terminated, fiscal year 1976 (includes all offenses reported)

The data presented on this table should be regarded as non-comparable to criminal statistics published in previous years. The implementation of provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-619, approved January 3, 1975) necessitated changes in the reporting of information.

TABLE D-1A.—U.S. district courts, criminal defendants commenced and terminated, fiscal year 1976 (includes all offenses reported)

The data presented on this table should be regarded as non-comparable to criminal statistics published in previous years. The implementation of provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-619, approved January 3, 1975) necessitated changes in the reporting of information.

² Included in this column are 19 defendants who were committed pursuant to title 28 U.S.C. 2902, of the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966.

NOTE.—Unlike tables D1, D2, and D3 which refer to criminal cases, tables D4, D5, D6, and D7 reflect individual defendants disposed of during the fiscal year in a given district court. In those situations where the defendant is disposed of in two or more criminal cases, e.g., by conviction and sentence on one indictment and by dismissal on another indictment, only the conviction and sentence (or combination of sentences where such are imposed following conviction on separate indictments) is recorded. This procedure has the effect of the procedure commonly used where in a single indictment separate charges are disposed of by conviction in one or more charges (counts) and other charges (counts) are dismissed.

² Included in this column are 30 defendants who were committed pursuant to Title 28 U.S.C. 2902 of the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966.

NOTE: Unlike tables D1, D2, and D3 which refer to criminal cases, tables D4, D5, D6, and D7 reflect individual defendants disposed of during the fiscal year in a given district court. In those situations where the defendant is disposed of in two or more criminal cases, e.g., by conviction and sentence on one indictment and by dismissal on another indictment, only the conviction and sentence (or combination of sentences where such are imposed following conviction on separate indictments) is recorded. This procedure has the effect of the procedure commonly used where in a single indictment separate charges are disposed of by conviction in one or more charges (counts) and other charges (counts) are dismissed.

² Included in this column are 45 defendants who were committed pursuant to Title 28 U.S.C. 2902, of the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966.

NOTE.—Unlike tables D-1, D-2, and D-3 which refer to criminal cases, tables D-4, D-5, and D-7 reflect individual defendants disposed of during the fiscal year in a given district court. In those situations where the defendant is disposed of in 2 or more criminal cases: e.g., by conviction and sentence on 1 indictment and by dismissal on another indictment, only the conviction and sentence (or combination of sentences where such are imposed following conviction on separate indictments) is recorded. This procedure has the effect of the procedure commonly used where in a single indictment separate charges are disposed of by conviction in 1 or more charges (counts) and other charges (counts) are dismissed.

² Included in this column are 5 defendants who were committed pursuant to title 28 U.S.C. 2902, of the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966.

NOTE.—Unlike tables D1, D2, and D3 which refer to criminal cases, tables D4, D5, D6, and D7 reflect individual defendants disposed of during the fiscal year in a given district court. In those situations where the defendant is disposed of in two or more criminal cases, e.g., by conviction and sentence on one indictment and by dismissal on another indictment, only the conviction and sentence (or combination of sentences where such are imposed following conviction on separate indictments) is recorded. This procedure has the effect of the procedure commonly used where in a single indictment separate charges are disposed of by conviction in one or more charges (counts) and other charges (counts) are dismissed.

TABLE D-4.—U.S. district courts criminal defendants disposed of by nature of offense and type of disposition (territorial courts excluded), fiscal year 1976

The data presented on this table should be regarded as non-comparable to criminal statistics published in previous years. The implementation of provisions of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-619, approved January 3, 1975) necessitated changes in the reporting of information.

Appendix
Criminal Justice Statistics Information System
Operated by the
Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts

Introduction

In 1934, a special committee appointed by the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement (Wickersham Commission) recommended that summary or special statistical reports obtained in 1871 be abolished and a case card reporting system be instituted. Essentially, this system is the basis for the current reporting programs in the Federal Judiciary.

With the enactment of the Administrative Office Act of 1939 (53 Stat.1223), the well-developed case card system for reporting judicial statistics was easily transferred from the Department of Justice to the Director of the Administrative Office. Significantly, the first programs to be transferred were the civil and bankruptcy statistical programs in 1940 followed by the criminal cases in 1942.

In late 1945, the Administrative Office initiated separate case reporting for persons received for supervision by the Federal Probation System. Statistics on criminal cases filed and the outcome of defendants prosecuted have been published in the Annual Report of the Director since 1942. In addition, the Federal Offenders report presents all the demographic data from the probation records, for defendants placed on court and magistrate probation, and for defendants convicted and sentenced to imprisonment, or fined, or both.

In 1935, case cards that were used for each criminal case filed contained all of the names of the defendants charged in the indictment or information. A closing card was supplied for each defendant at the time of disposition. These records were provided by the clerk of court using the cards and instructions established by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. It eliminated the anomaly of 80 different clerks of court making separate classifications and tabulations for publication. The transition to an individual case card for each defendant in 1976 was a fundamental change designed to insure consistency and reliability both in reporting and classification. Also, in 1976, a key punch operation was replaced by a mini-computer and data entry terminals in the central office, and the need for a dedicated staff to enter information and classify the entries became ever so important. Though the programs internal to the mini-computer helped with the statistical classifications, there continued to be a need for judgment by the data analysts assigned to this task. Data analysts enter 500 to 1,000 defendant records each day.

A major impact on the criminal statistical reporting system was the enactment of The Speedy Trial Act of 1974. It resulted in the following changes in reporting criminal statistical information:

1. changes in reporting requirements to include all minor offenses, except for petty offenses, and to exclude superseding indictments or informations from being counted as new cases unless the original case was dismissed on the defendant's motion;
2. complete revision of the reporting forms, with a new docket package for reporting criminal defendants which included a statistical form for each defendant whose criminal case was opened and disposed of by the court;
3. installation of a complex mini-computer system in the central office for inputting records received from the clerks of court; and
4. changes in the presentation of statistical information in both the Annual Report of the Director and in the Speedy Trial Report series.

It has been said that the impact of the Speedy Trial Act on the collection, inputting and analysis of Federal criminal defendant statistics in the last three years was greater than anything else in the previous 100 years. The initiation of the system came about the same time as requests from all quarters for more and more data concerning two significant areas - offenses and sentences imposed for those convicted.

Moving from one method of reporting to a more formidable program was accomplished with the assistance of the clerks of court and the probation offices. Unfortunately, the computerized system has difficulty in meeting informational requirements with the specificity some would like. A system, which contains all of the permutations of both offenses and sentences along with the statutory procedures governing future parole, is not yet attainable at the Federal level. At best, national statistics can provide national and district court patterns. Because the numbers of defendants in the criminal case load among the districts are often small, the use of averages is misleading. Therefore, a specific sentencing profile for a particular offense could only be developed by looking at actual defendant records in the court.

In January, the Federal Judicial Center and the Administrative Office commenced the evaluation of computerized statistical records obtained from the F.J.C. Courtran Criminal docketing system. By 1981, there were 11 districts representing about 40 percent of the criminal workload which were furnishing computerized statistical records to the Administrative Office. These were: Arizona; California, Central, Southern, and Northern; District of Columbia; Georgia, Northern; Illinois, Northern; Michigan, Eastern; New York, Southern; Oregon; and Texas, Western.

The next phase will be interfacing the tape generated statistics initiated by the clerk of court in the 11 district courts with the data prepared by the Administrative Office based on records received from the other 84 clerks of court. The final phase will be to enter the criminal data directly into the main computer, thereby releasing the mini-computer that has satisfactorily served the agency since 1976.

Over the years, policy decisions have been made pertaining to defendant accounting, classification of offenses, and computation of sentences. Set out below is a description of these procedures.

Defendant Accounting

At the time of filing more than one charge can be filed against a defendant. For example, if the motion of the defense for a dismissal is granted, the government, with new evidence of a law violation, can file again. Or there may be filings of different charges against the same defendant in the same case. There is no available means to identify duplicate defendants at time of filing. However, at the time the various criminal charges are disposed of by the court, it is possible to record one defendant exiting the Federal criminal justice system. This can be done by bringing together all of the dispositions during the statistical year ended June 30 and looking at the outcome (conviction over dismissal), the sentence imposed, and the most serious offense for those convicted.

Thus, if a defendant has three different cases prosecuted either together or separately in the district court, and one of the three was dismissed and the other two resulted in a conviction, the convicted offense with the highest penalty imposed is used to identify the defendant who is counted in "termination tables" D-4, D-5, and D-7.

This set of rules applies only for the district where all charges are disposed of. There is always the possibility that a defendant was charged and convicted in more than one district during a given statistical year. At this time, there is no method of comparing these convictions in separate districts involving the same defendant.

The use of duplicate defendant accounting is best explained by comparing Tables D-1 and D-4 in the 1979 Annual Report of the Director. Table D-1 includes duplicate defendants and shows 43,113 defendants terminated, excluding transfers. Table D-4 describes the disposition of defendants and not the disposition of charges. It excludes duplicate defendants and shows 41,175 defendants disposed of, or 4.5 percent fewer. Nationally this is not a large figure, but among separate districts the percentage varies considerably.

For Table D-4, the defendant's conviction controls the location of the defendant's record in the statistics. In Table D-4, the 32,913 convicted defendants were all convicted on one or more offenses. Defendants who were convicted and were acquitted or dismissed on other charges are recorded only once as a conviction.

The 8,262 defendants not convicted were either acquitted by a court or jury or had their cases dismissed. This dismissal category includes individuals placed on pretrial diversion by the court. (Pretrial diversion will not be shown separately in any of the tables.) The dismissal category in Table D-4 includes outright dismissals of criminal prosecutions (or pretrial diversion) and acquittals by court or jury which can be used to obtain the "non-conviction rate," since dismissals for duplicate defendants are not included. If there was no conviction on any of the charges, only one dismissal would be shown.

Offense Classification

Since 1935, the offense classification has been organized into a four digit code. Similar offenses charged by the U.S. Code are included in the various A.O. codes. This method of classification was well suited to the production of reports and was similar to the classification system used by the FBI and state bureaus of criminal statistics.

With the requirement for detailed offense data by Title and Section and often by paragraph within a Section, the Title and Section of the major offense charged was entered into the computerized data entry system beginning February 1976. The offense classification represents a simple grouping of criminal violations, but becomes quite complicated when a defendant has more than one charge.

Each entry represents the total sentence imposed on one defendant in one case. Sentences imposed on other defendants in the same case are shown separately. Amendments to sentences pursuant to Rule 35, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, are not reflected in these statistics, nor are sentences imposed upon remand from the circuit court of appeals.

Consecutive sentences imposed on convictions of separate charges in the same case are added together and shown under the most serious offense. The offense is selected using the following guidelines.

1. The offense for which the longest term was imposed is selected.
2. If two or more equal terms represent the longest sentence, the offense severity codes are referred to in the U.S. Title and Code Criminal Offense Citations.
3. If the severity code is the same, crimes against persons take priority over crimes against property.

Computation of Sentences

The convicted defendant is only one person being sentenced. All consecutive sentences imposed on separate counts in the same case are added together and joined with the most serious offense as classified above.

As an example, if a defendant is convicted of three auto theft violations in the same case and sentenced to two four year terms to run consecutively and a three year term to run concurrently, the total sentence is shown as eight years for auto theft. For a defendant who receives ten years for a bank robbery, five years for carrying away money from the bank (larceny), and five years for carrying a weapon, all to be served consecutively, the total sentence is shown as 20 years and the offense recorded as bank robbery. These sentences are converted to months on the disposition reports furnished by the clerk of court and are entered as the total sentence into the computerized Federal criminal defendant justice system.
