Foreword

This report is the sixth in a statistical series published since 1973 that analyzes trends in data from the justice expenditure and employment survey. These data are extracted from more detailed annual volumes entitled Expenditure and Employment Data for the Criminal Justice System (the 1979 volume is entitled Justice Expenditure and Employment in the U.S., 1979).

Similar trends reports were published annually from 1973 to 1977. There was no trends report for 1978; however, this report incorporates data from the 1978 as well as 1979 surveys.

To facilitate analysis of the 8-year time span presented in this report, the table formats were revised to provide rates of change for two intermediate time periods — 1971-75 and 1975-79 — as well as the overall 1971-79 period. To accommodate the space required, individual data for the years 1972, 1974, and 1978 had to be eliminated from tables 16 to 29. Data for these years can be obtained from the 1971-77 trends report or from the annual reports cited above.

The annual criminal justice expenditure and employment survey, which provides the data in this report, has been conducted by the Census Bureau for the Department of Justice since 1971. The 1979 data collection effort was the last survey using methodologies and geographic coverage that have remained virtually unchanged throughout the period. There are two reasons for discontinuing the series: necessary economies in the Bureau of Justice Statistics data collection program and changes in the need for expenditure and employment data. In the past, the data from the survey were used in the formula distribution of funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) to State and local governments — a purpose requiring geographic coverage and data precision that could be accomplished only with a large and costly sample of State and local governments.

The demise of the LEAA program in 1980 allowed BJS to pursue less costly data collection strategies. These take two forms:

First, for 1980 and 1981, selected data on police protection, correction, and judicial functions are being extracted from the Census Bureau's ongoing annual public finance, expenditure, and employment surveys and will be presented in a separate report. Those surveys use methods similar to those used in past justice expenditure and employment surveys and will produce much data readily comparable to previously published data. However, the geographic coverage will not be as extensive — data will not be available for cities with a population less than 300,000 nor counties under 500,000. In addition, because those surveys lack some substantive detail, national and State-by-State estimates will be available only for police protection and corrections, although total justice expenditure and other functional detail will be available for State governments and the large city and county governments. The report containing 1980 and 1981 data should be available by early 1985, although the actual data can be obtained before then by contacting BJS.

The second data collection strategy affects data beginning in 1982. The Census Bureau is revising its annual governmental surveys to provide justice data with more substantive detail than in the past. Beginning with that year's data, total justice expenditure and judicial estimates will be available for the Nation as a whole, State governments, and large cities and counties.

We believe these new data collection strategies will produce data that meet a wide variety of data needs at a sharply reduced cost. As always, we look forward to hearing from the users of our data and will make whatever refinements we can to improve the usefulness of the data.

Selected findings

National trends

Expenditure for justice purposes by Federal, State, and local governments rose steadily from $10.5 billion in 1971 to $26.0 billion in 1979, an increase of 148%. Over the same period, expenditure for all government functions rose 109%.

The 9-year period was characterized by high percent increases in justice spending from 1971 to 1975 and by lower percent gains but larger dollar increases from 1975 to 1979. Total justice spending rose $6.7 billion or 64% from 1971 to 1975, but $8.8 billion or 51% from 1975 to 1979.

Per capita justice expenditure of State and local governments rose 131%, from $45 in 1971 to $104 in 1979.¹ The South led all other areas with a 153% increase in per capita justice expenditure, from $34 in 1971 to $86 in 1979. The Northeast region closed out the 9-year period with the highest per capita justice expenditure—$127, followed by the West—$126, and the North Central region—$90.

Full-time equivalent employment for justice activities at all levels of government rose 37% from 1971 to 1979—over twice the increase in employment for all governmental functions. The highest percent increases in justice employment occurred from 1971 to 1975, when all levels of government except State governments recorded their largest numerical gains in justice employment.

The monthly payroll for all justice employees jumped from $715 million in October 1971 to $1.7 billion in October 1979, an increase of 137%.

¹Per capita expenditure is computed from estimated population of States and the District of Columbia as of July 1, 1978 from Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series p-25, No. 876, February 1980.

The "other criminal justice" and public defense sectors were the fastest growing over the 1971-79 period, recording increases of 434% and 365% respectively.

Police protection and corrections together accounted for more than 75% of total justice expenditure in each of the 9 years and showed the greatest increases in dollars expended. These sectors also had the greatest numerical gains in full-time equivalent employment from October 1971 to October 1979: 125,000 in police protection and 97,000 in corrections. Police salaries made the greatest gain in average monthly pay over the 9 years—77%.

Federal trends

Total Federal justice expenditure increased by $2.6 billion, or 181% from FY 1971 to FY 1979—substantially more than the 119% increase in Federal general expenditure. Sixty percent or $1.6 billion of this increase occurred from 1971 to 1975, when total Federal justice expenditure rose 108%.

Federal intergovernmental payments to State and local governments increased by 256% from 1971-75, and then decreased by 17% from 1975-79. More than 90% of total Federal intergovernmental payments for justice programs were made by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), which distributed $5.5 billion to State and local governments from FY 1971 to FY 1979. LEAA disbursements, which increased from $226 million in 1971 to a high of $836 million in 1976, declined by 25% to $629 million in 1979.

The largest share (about half) of Federal justice expenditure was for police protection activities. The police protection sector showed the greatest dollar increase, rising from $805 million in FY 1971 to $2 billion in FY 1979.

In contrast to the 3% decline in total Federal employment from 1971 to 1979, Federal justice employment rose from 78,000 to 102,000—an increase of 33%. Two-thirds of this increase occurred in the police protection sector.

State trends

State governments recorded the highest increase in justice spending of all government levels—190%.

State intergovernmental payments to local governments increased 347%, about double the increase for State direct justice expenditure for the same period.

States had the largest numerical increase in justice full-time equivalent employment, from 206,000 in 1971 to 329,000 in 1979, an increase of 123,000.

The greatest gains at the State level occurred in the public defense sector. States increased their direct expenditure for public defense by $111 million (641%) from FY 1971 to FY 1979 and increased their intergovernmental assistance to local governments for public defense from $1 million to $10 million. This sector also showed the greatest percent increase in full-time equivalent employment—272%.

The largest portion of State justice expenditure in all years was for corrections. The corrections sector had the largest increase in direct dollars expended over the 9-year period—$2.2 billion—and the greatest numerical increase in full-time equivalent employment at the State level—55,000. State corrections capital outlay expenditure rose from a low of $99 million in 1973 to $358 million in 1979.

Local trends

Local government justice expenditure increased by $8.7 billion from FY 1971 to FY 1979, exceeding the combined increase of $8.2 billion by the Federal and State governments. On a percentage basis, the increase in local government expenditure was lowest of the three levels of government—131%. This comparatively smaller growth in local justice expenditure reflects the dominance of the municipal governments, whose direct justice expenditure rose only 106% from 1971 to 1979, compared to a 181% increase for counties.

Over 80% of municipal justice expenditure in all 9 years was for police protection. County justice expenditures were more evenly distributed: combined expenditure in the judicial, legal services and prosecution, and public defense sectors constituted between 37 and 39% of county justice expenditure; police protection expenditure between 32 and 35%; and corrections between 27 and 28%.

The police protection sector had the largest absolute gains in full-time equivalent employment at both the county and municipal levels.

Over the 9-year period, counties increased their share of total direct State-local justice expenditure from 29% to 33%; municipalities' share fell from 48% to 41%.

This publication is the sixth report presenting statistics on trends in public expenditure and employment for justice activities in the United States since FY 1971.¹ These activities are police protection, judicial activities, legal services and prosecution, public defense, corrections, and a residual category called "other criminal justice." This report presents expenditure data for fiscal years 1971 through 1979 and employment data for October of each year.

These data are extracted from a series of annual reports entitled Expenditure and Employment Data for the Criminal Justice System. Those annual volumes present the data in much greater detail for the 50 States, the largest Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's with a population of 2 million or more), the largest counties (population of 100,000 or more), and the largest cities (population of 50,000 or more).² Examples of detailed data contained in the annual volume are character and object expenditure categories, capital outlay and intergovernmental expenditure subcategories, total employment, and full-time employment. Expenditure and employment data are also shown for judicial activities by type of court, for miscellaneous judicial activities, and for corrections activities by type of institution, probation/pardon, corrections administration, and miscellaneous. (See Availability of Data section for information on how to obtain copies of these reports.)

¹A separate report covering justice trends for the years 1971 through 1978 was not published. Therefore, this report incorporates two additional years of data since the last published "Trends" report, which covered the period from 1971 to 1977.

²Once an SMSA, county, or city is selected for individual presentation on the basis of its population, the unit continues to be shown individually even though its population may later drop below the established criteria. This is to retain comparability in the presentation of individual unit data from year to year.

The annual survey of justice expenditure and employment, which provided the data for this report, was suspended beginning in FY 1980. The series will be resumed, however, with publication of comparable but less detailed data for FY 1980 and 1981 from an alternative source.

Although the annual series began with fiscal year 1967, caution should be exercised in comparing data in the first four volumes (FY 1967 through FY 1970) with data in subsequent volumes. Beginning with FY 1971, the survey sample of governmental units was increased by a third, and the number of units for which data are compiled in the field by specially trained agents more than doubled. Data collection further benefited from a growing familiarity with the justice systems in the various States and with individual governmental units within the States. Data from the FY 1971 through FY 1979 survey years are therefore essentially comparable because they were collected in the same way each year from the same sample of governments and were edited and processed in a uniform fashion. (See the section on Survey Methodology for more detail.)

Organization of this report

This report was designed as a ready reference for summary data on public expenditure and employment for justice activities in the United States over the 9-year period 1971-79. Federal, State, and local government trends are discussed in this introduction with accompanying tables and charts, followed by a brief description of survey methodology, data sources, and limitations.

Following the introductory text and the graphic summary are the main tables, which include a 9-year summary of "variable pass-through" data with an accompanying explanation of this concept (table 1) and 28 tables presenting Federal, State, and local government justice expenditure and employment data with corresponding percentage changes for the 9-year period (tables 2-29).

Definitions for concepts, categories, and terms used in this report are contained in appendix 1. Appendix 2 exhibits the mail questionnaires used in the 1979 annual survey.

Important definitions

As defined for this report, total expenditure includes direct and intergovernmental expenditure of a government or level of government for justice activities. In most expenditure tables, certain totals have been adjusted to exclude duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. For example, money paid by a State government to a county government within that State is reported by the State government as an intergovernmental expenditure and by the county government as a direct expenditure when it spends the money. Therefore, to arrive at a combined State-local government total that does not duplicate these amounts, intergovernmental expenditure amounts are deducted from the State-local total, because amounts are also reflected in the direct expenditures of the recipient governments. The same is true of intergovernmental payments between counties and municipalities within the same State.

Changes in the level of employment are expressed in this report in terms of full-time equivalent employment, a statistical measure that reports the total number of employees, full-time and part-time, discounted by applying average full-time earning rates. It is calculated by dividing the total payroll (full-time plus part-time) by the full-time payroll and multiplying the resultant quotient by the number of full-time employees.

The judicial, legal services and prosecution, and public defense categories include expenditure and employment data for both civil and criminal justice activities because available source documents for many governments do not segregate these activities for courts or agencies that handle both. Nor are the State and local government officials who provide the survey data able to make this break reliably and consistently. Therefore, in the absence of a consistent and reliable basis for proration, both criminal and civil activities are included for these categories to preserve uniformity in the collection and presentation of data.

It is also important to note that in this report all expenditure data displayed in the tables and analyzed in the text are not adjusted by a factor for inflation. Therefore, all dollar amounts are given in current dollars for the year indicated.

Summary of major findings

National trends (tables 2 and 3)

Total expenditure for justice purpose by Federal, State, and local governments rose steadily from $10.5 billion in 1971 to $26.0 billion in 1979, an increase of 148%. Over the same period, total general expenditure³ by governments for all government functions rose 109% (figure 3).

The 9-year period was characterized by high percentage increases in justice spending from 1971 to 1975 and by lower percentage gains but larger dollar increases from 1975 to 1979. For example, total justice spending rose $6.7 billion or 64% from 1971 to 1975, but $8.8 billion or 51% from 1975 to 1979 (table 2). As will be noted in subsequent sections, however, some individual justice activities at various levels of government had faster growth rates from 1975 to 1979.

Total expenditure by the Federal Government for justice purposes rose 181% from 1971-79, substantially more than the 119% increase in Federal general expenditure. Six-tenths of the increase in federal justice expenditure—108%—occurred during the 1971 to 1975 period.

State and county government justice spending increases substantially exceeded rises in total general expenditure (figure 3). State governments, which recorded the highest increase in justice spending of all government levels, 190%, had increases of 82% for 1971-75 and 59% for 1975-79. Similarly, county justice expenditure, which had a 78% increase from 1971 to 1975, rose 58% from 1975 to 1979.

Justice spending by municipalities rose 109% from 1971 to 1979, just 4 percentage points more than the 105% rise in total municipal general expenditure during the same period.

³Total general expenditure is all expenditure of a government or level of government for all government functions, including justice activities, but excluding utility system expenditure, liquor store expenditure, and insurance trust expenditure. Total general expenditure shown for the local level of government includes expenditure only of general purpose governments, and excludes expenditure of special districts and school districts.

From 1971 to 1975 only, municipal general expenditure increased 53%, compared to a 49% rise in municipal justice expenditure. This was the only instance in which general expenditure rose faster than justice expenditure during the 1971-75 and 1975-79 periods among all levels of government.

Full-time equivalent employment for justice activities at all levels of government rose 37% from 1971 to 1979. This was about 2¼ times the 16% increase in full-time equivalent employment for all governmental functions. As with expenditure, the highest percentage increases in justice employment occurred from 1971 to 1975. Unlike expenditure trends, however, all levels of government except State governments also recorded their highest numerical gains in justice employment from 1971 to 1975 (table 3).

Increases in justice employment by type of government ranged from 16% for municipalities to 60% for States. Federal, State, and county justice employment increased by 33, 60, and 56%, respectively, with the largest percentage gains in each case recorded from 1971 to 1975. States had the largest numerical increase in justice full-time equivalent employment, from 206,000 in 1971 to 329,000 in 1979, an increase of 123,000. About 66,000 or 53% of this gain occurred from 1975 to 1979. Justice employment of municipalities increased by 60,000 since 1971 and in October 1979 accounted for 38% of the 1,178,011 full-time equivalent justice employees, down from 45% in 1971. In contrast to State governments, 80% or 48,000 of the 1971-79 municipal justice employment increase occurred from 1971 to 1975 (table 15).

For all governments combined, expenditure increases in each of the justice sectors ranged from a 126% increase in police protection to a 434% increase in "other criminal justice" expenditure (table 2). The sharp increase in "other criminal justice" expenditure is mostly because of growth of intergovernmental payments under the criminal justice grant programs administered by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) at the Federal level and criminal justice planning agencies at the State and local levels. This increase is overstated to the extent that the grant payments reflected in the "other criminal justice" category are eventually expended in other sectors, such as police or corrections. Because of the bookkeeping methods of local governments, the amounts usually cannot be assigned to specific justice activities. It should also be noted that direct expenditure for this category for all 9 years combined accounted for only $2.7 billion, or less than 2% of the total direct expenditure for all justice activities. The second largest overall increase, 365%, occurred in public defense expenditure, reflecting State and local government response to judicial rulings concerning the right of indigent persons to counsel. In some States, counsel was also being provided to convicted persons still in need of legal services.

Although "other criminal justice" and public defense were the fastest growing sectors over the 1971-79 period, in no year did the two sectors together account for more than 5% of total expenditure. In contrast, police protection and corrections together accounted for at least 77% of total justice expenditure in each of the 9 years from 1971 to 1979 and showed the greatest increase in dollars expended (figure 5). Police protection direct expenditure rose $7.8 billion (126%) from FY 1971 to FY 1979, and correctional expenditure rose $3.7 billion (164%). These sectors also showed the greatest numerical gains in full-time equivalent employment from October 1971 to October 1979: 125,000 in police protection and 97,000 in corrections (table 3).

The monthly payroll for all justice employees jumped from $715 million in October 1971 to $1,697 million in October 1979 (137%). By type of government, monthly justice payroll increases ranged from 101% for municipalities to 203% for State governments. Federal and county payrolls increased by 144% and 161%, respectively (table C).

Payroll data for all governments in the 1971-79 period show that justice employees in the public defense sector drew the highest overall monthly salaries, followed by legal services personnel (table C). The high average salaries for public defense and legal services personnel can be explained by the fact that most of the employees in these sectors are attorneys with comparatively few lower-paid support personnel. The "other criminal justice" sector, ranking third in average monthly salaries from 1971 to 1975, dropped to fourth from 1976 to 1978 and to fifth in 1979; the police protection sector moved from fourth to third in 1977; and the judicial sector moved from fifth to fourth in 1979. In contrast to public defense and legal services sectors, the judicial sector includes a large number of support personnel whose rate of pay offsets the higher salaries of judges. Correction salaries ranked sixth and lowest throughout the 1971-79 period. Police salaries made the greatest gain in average monthly pay over the 9 years—77%.

Distribution of responsibility by level of government

In each of the 9 fiscal years covered in this report, local governments spent more for justice activities than the Federal and State governments combined. Table A shows that in FY 1979, for example, local governments accounted for 59% of all direct justice expenditure, whereas State governments contributed 28% and the Federal Government 13%.

Some shifts in responsibilities among the various government levels did occur over the 9-year period (figure 1 and table A). Both the Federal and State governments increased their proportionate share of total justice expenditure since 1971. The Federal share of total direct justice expenditure rose from 11.5% to 13%, and the State government percentage of justice expenditure steadily rose from 25.5 to 28.4. The State government gain in the total share of justice expenditure stems from increases in the judicial, legal services, and public defense sectors.

Local government share of justice spending dropped from 63 to 59%, because of a 7 percentage point decline in the municipality share of justice expenditure to 35%. This was partly offset by nearly a 3 percentage point rise in the county share of justice spending to 23.2% (table A). The overall decrease in the municipal share of justice expenditure was distributed among all activities. The relative gain made by counties in level of justice spending is primarily attributable to increases in the police protection, judicial, and "other criminal justice" sectors.

The distribution of justice expenditure by activity varies by level of government. Three of the activities—police protection, judicial, and legal services and prosecution—were supported mainly by local governments in all 9 years. State governments were the largest supporters of corrections. The Federal Government was the principal supporter of public defense from 1971 to 1973, but local government expenditures in this sector were highest from 1974 to 1978. Because of an 81% increase in Legal Services Corporation expenditure since 1977, the Federal Government again became the principal supporter of public defense in 1979.

Changes in the distribution of justice employment followed patterns similar to those of expenditure. As shown in figure 2 and table B, the municipal share of full-time equivalent employment dropped from 45 to 38% in the 1971-79 period, but county and State governments recorded gains. Federal justice employment remained at the same proportion throughout the period. Reflecting justice expenditure patterns, State governments showed sizeable gains in the proportion of full-time equivalent employment in the judicial, legal services, and public defense sectors.

Distribution of employment and expenditure within each sector is nearly identical in most cases. One of the few exceptions to this pattern is seen in the public defense sector, where the Federal Government accounted for more than 30% of the total expenditures but only 3% or less of the employees in each of the 9 years. This is because the Federal Government makes more extensive use of court-appointed counsel systems (in which fees are paid to private counsel to defend indigent clients accused of crimes) than do State and local governments, which more frequently hire employees directly to provide public defense services. Legal services provided by the Legal Services Corporation for counseling indigent persons in mostly civil matters comprised between 80 and 85% of Federal expenditure for public defense in each of the 9 years covered by this report.

The preceding analysis of total local justice expenditure and employment obscures significant differences between the county and municipal levels of government. Municipal governments' justice spending exceeded that of county governments by $2.3 billion in 1971; and by 1979, the justice expenditure of municipalities was $3.2 billion more than that of counties. The difference, however, can be attributed exclusively to the police sector where municipal governments outspent county governments by about 4 to 1 over the entire 1971-79 period. In FY 1979, for example, municipal governments spent $7.9 billion on police protection (or 85% of all their justice expenditure); this was 29% more than county governments spent on all justice activities combined. On a sector-by-sector basis, however, county governments spent substantially more than municipal governments for judicial activities, legal services and prosecution, public defense, corrections, and "other criminal justice." No one sector dominates county justice expenditure as police protection does municipal justice expenditure.

Federal trends (tables 4 and 5)

Total Federal justice expenditure increased by $2.6 billion, or 181% from FY 1971 to FY 1979. Sixty percent or $1.6 billion of this increase occurred from 1971 to 1975, when total Federal justice expenditure rose 108%. Federal intergovernmental payments to State and local governments accounted for 17% of the total 1971-79 increase, mainly because of expenditures in the "other criminal justice" sector. Nearly 93% of total Federal intergovernmental payments for justice programs is attributable to the activities of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), which distributed $5.5 billion to State and local governments from FY 1971 to FY 1979. LEAA disbursements, which had increased from $226 million to $836 million from 1971 to 1976, declined $207 million or 25% from 1976 to 1979, however.

Excluding intergovernmental payments and considering only direct expenditure (i.e., cost of salaries, materials, supplies, contractual services, and capital outlay), the increase in Federal expenditure was $2.2 billion, or 178%. Among the six justice sectors, the greatest proportionate increase in Federal direct expenditure, 481%, occurred in "other criminal justice." The overall increase in this sector from 1971 to 1979 reflected primarily the growth in the staff and operations of LEAA.

Although the "other criminal justice" sector became more significant in terms of total Federal justice expenditure, table 2 shows that still the largest share (about half) of Federal justice expenditure in 1979 was for police protection activities, including those agencies that enforce Federal law and those that provide security and police services to nondefense Federal property and buildings. Over the 1971-79 period, the police protection category showed the greatest dollar increase, rising from $805 million in FY 1971 to $2,059 million in FY 1979—an increase of $1,254 million.

Federal expenditure for corrections also increased strongly over the 9-year period, from $121 million in FY 1971 to $393 million in FY 1979, an increase of 224%. Although the remaining sectors—judicial, legal services and prosecution, and public defense—experienced some fluctuations in expenditures over the years, all three realized substantial increases from 1971 to 1979. Two of these three sectors—judicial and public defense—recorded much greater percentage increases in justice expenditure from 1975 to 1979 than from 1971 to 1975. Large increases in expenditure for Federal courts of general jurisdiction (U.S. District Courts) and for the Legal Services Corporation (counseling indigent persons in purely civil matters) accounted for these increases.

In contrast to the 3% decline in total Federal employment from 1971 to 1979 (2,799,455 to 2,708,272 on a full-time equivalent basis), Federal justice employment rose from 77,523 to 102,914—an increase of 33%. Approximately three-fourths of the rise of 25,000 in Federal justice employment occurred from 1971 to 1975, and two-thirds of this increase occurred in the police protection sector, which rose 16,605. After declining 2% from 1971 to 1975, Federal judicial employment rose 11% from 1975 to 1979.

In the same 9-year period, the Federal justice monthly payroll increased 144%, from $84 million to $203 million, and the average monthly pay for Federal justice employees rose 84% from $1,077 to $1,977. On a sector-by-sector basis, the highest paid Federal justice employees in October 1979 were in the judicial sector, averaging $2,408 a month, followed by public defense, corrections, legal services and prosecution, "other criminal justice," and police protection, in that order (table C).

*The Federal Public Defender Organizations program was begun in May 1971. Initial hiring, reflected in the October 1971 figure, concentrated on attorneys, hence the high average monthly salary. The October 1972 figure reflects the subsequent addition of lesser-paid clerical and support personnel, which lowered the average monthly salary.

State trends (tables 8, 9, 16-29)

Total State justice expenditure increased 190 percent, from $2.9 billion in FY 1971 to $8.5 billion in FY 1979. Percentage increases by sector ranged from 131% in police protection to 641% in public defense.

State intergovernmental payments to local governments showed a 347% increase, about double the 176% increase for State direct justice expenditure for the same period. In FY 1971, States distributed $239 million to local governments compared with $1,071 million in FY 1979. Most of this increase consisted of LEAA block grant funds channeled through State planning agencies.

Following initially high increases of 64% in 1972 and 40% in 1973, State justice intergovernmental payments continued to increase steadily, although at decreased rates. Since 1977, State intergovernmental expenditure has exceeded Federal intergovernmental payments for justice by an increasing margin (figure 12).

Intergovernmental justice expenditure of all States accounted for 12.6% of total State justice expenditure in 1979, compared to 8.2% in 1971 (figure 13). State payments for justice activities to local governments in 1979 ranged widely by State as proportions of total State justice expenditure, from 0.8% in Vermont to 25.4% in Maryland (figure 13).

State direct justice expenditure rose from $2.7 billion in FY 1971 to $7.4 billion in FY 1979—an increase of 176%. More than 60% of the dollar increase in State direct justice funds—$2.8 billion—occurred from 1975 to 1979 (figure 5).

The greatest percentage increase at the State level occurred in the public defense sector, in which States have been assuming a greater share of the responsibility for providing personnel and funds to defend the poor. States increased their direct expenditure for public defense by $111 million (641%) from FY 1971 to FY 1979 and increased their intergovernmental assistance to local governments for public defense from $1 million to $10 million. This sector also showed the greatest percent increase in full-time equivalent employment, 2,674 employees (272%).

As seen in table 8 and figure 5, the largest portion of State justice expenditure in all years was for corrections, which included the operation of the State prison system and, in many States, the operation of the probation and parole systems as well. In FY 1979, State direct expenditure for corrections was $3,531 million, or 48% of total State direct expenditure for justice activities, and State payments to local governments for correctional purposes amounted to another $293 million. This sector had the largest increase in direct dollars expended over the 9-year period from FY 1971 to FY 1979—$2.2 billion. The greatest numerical increase in full-time equivalent employment (54,974) at the State level for the same period also occurred in corrections.

State corrections capital outlay expenditure rose from a low of $99 million in 1973 to $358 million in 1979, an increase of 263% (figure 14). Rising at a faster rate than corrections direct expenditure, capital outlay corrections spending of State governments comprised 9.4% of total corrections direct expenditure in 1979 compared to 6.1% in 1973.

Police protection activities accounted for the second largest portion of State expenditure from 1971 to 1979. Expenditure in this sector increased by $1.2 billion (131%) for the 9-year period and, after corrections, showed the greatest numerical increase in full-time equivalent employment—22,220 or 32% from October 1971 to October 1979.

State expenditure for legal services and prosecution increased 315%, from $109 million in FY 1971 to $455 million in FY 1979. More than two-thirds of this increase occurred from 1975 to 1979. Judicial expenditure of State governments grew about twice as fast from 1975 to 1979 than during the 1971-75 period. About 42% of the total 1971-79 increase in judicial spending occurred in one year: 1978—because of the absorption of local court systems by State governments in several States.

Comparing October 1971 with October 1979, the monthly payroll for State justice employees increased 185%, from $165 million to $469 million. Table C shows that the average monthly pay for a State justice employee rose from $800 a month to $1,425 a month in that period—a 78% increase. Average monthly salaries in the police protection sector recorded the largest percentage increase, 88%. In October 1979, however, the highest paid State justice employees continued to be in the judicial sector, averaging $1,790 a month, followed by employees in legal services and prosecution, public defense, police protection, "other criminal justice," and corrections, in that order.

Local trends (tables 10-29)

The total dollar increase in local government justice expenditure from FY 1971 to FY 1979 was $8.7 billion, which exceeded the combined increase of $8.2 billion for the Federal and State governments (table 10). On a percentage basis, however, the increase in local government expenditure was lowest of the three levels of government—131%. Total local government justice expenditure grew 58% or $3.8 billion from 1971 to 1975 and 46% or $4.9 billion from 1975 to 1979 (table 10).

Local governments reported significantly less in the amount of intergovernmental justice expenditure, only $301 million in FY 1979 compared with $687 million for the Federal Government and $1.1 billion for State governments (figure 12). A large portion of Federal and State intergovernmental justice expenditure was grant funds, but local intergovernmental expenditure more often represented required payments to the State, participation in a multigovernmental project (e.g., a regional jail), or payment for services rendered by another government (e.g., police services or boarding of prisoners).

Direct expenditure increases for individual sectors since 1971 at the local level varied somewhat from those at the State level. The sector showing the greatest dollar increase was police protection (up $5.4 billion, or 120%), followed by corrections (up $1.3 billion, or 151%), judicial (up $902 million, or 99%), legal services and prosecution (up $659 million, or 223%), "other criminal justice" (up $202 million, or 1,037%), and public defense (up $188 million, or 369%).

Local full-time equivalent justice employment increased 29% or 168,000 from FY 1971 to FY 1979, with about two-thirds of this rise taking place by 1975. As with expenditure, the largest numerical increase in justice employment (86,162) over the 9 years occurred in the police protection sector; 70% or 61,000 of this increase occurred between 1971 and 1975.

An analysis of local government expenditure by individual levels of government shows that the comparatively slow growth in municipal justice expenditure accounts for the smaller overall justice spending increases of local governments as a group. Total direct justice expenditure of municipalities rose only 106% from 1971 to 1979, compared to a 181% increase for counties, which had the highest growth rate for any level of government. Also, the distribution of expenditure by counties and municipalities among the various justice sectors differs markedly. More than 80% of municipal justice expenditure in all 9 years was for police protection. County justice expenditures were more evenly distributed: combined expenditure in the judicial, legal services and prosecution, and public defense sectors constituted between 37 and 39% of county justice expenditure; police protection expenditure between 32 and 35%; and corrections between 27 and 28%.

Total county expenditure for justice activities increased 181% from FY 1971 to FY 1979, with $2.3 billion of the $4 billion county justice expenditure increase occurring between 1975 and 1979. Every county justice function recorded larger dollar gains from 1975 to 1979 than from 1971 to 1975—the only level of government to do so. The greatest 1971-79 dollar increase at the county level occurred in police protection, $1.3 billion, up 178%. The increase in the corrections sector was also substantial: $1.1 billion or 185%. The "other criminal justice" sector rose from $2 million to $161 million, reflecting the activity of county justice planning agencies and significant increases in capital outlay for the construction of multifunctional justice buildings. However, county "other criminal justice" spending in 1979 represents a 2-year decline from $177 million spent in 1977, primarily reflecting decreases in justice block grant funds distributed to local governments by the States. County public defense expenditure also increased dramatically (377%, or $155 million) as counties continued to expand their public defense staffs and/or increase their payments for court-appointed counsel systems. County expenditure for legal services and prosecution increased 238% ($409 million).

The police protection sector had the largest gain in full-time equivalent employment at the county level—34,408 or 50%—followed closely by the corrections sector with an increase of 32,859 or 67%. In both sectors, nearly 60% of the total employment increase occurred from 1971 to 1975. County police employees made the greatest percentage gain in pay, from an average of $764 a month in October 1971 to $1,331 a month in October 1979, a 74% increase (table C). In October 1979, the highest paid county employees were in the public defense sector, followed by employees in legal services and prosecution, police protection, corrections, judicial, and "other criminal justice."

Police protection expenditure of municipalities, (85% of municipal justice expenditure, $7.9 billion in 1979) rose $4.2 billion since 1971—the largest dollar increase among all justice sectors.

The largest increase in number of municipal justice employees on a full-time equivalent basis was also in the police protection sector: 51,754 more in October 1979 than in October 1971, an increase of 16%. More than 40,000 or 78% of this increase occurred from 1971 to 1975.

In contrast to the 1975-79 decline in police employment growth, average monthly salaries for municipal police continued to increase at nearly the same rate (33%) from 1975 to 1979 as from 1971 to 1975.

Municipal corrections employees made the greatest proportionate gain in average monthly pay over the 9 year period, from $824 in October 1971 to $1,475 in October 1979

(79%). Police employees made the second largest gain, increasing from $841 to $1,462 (76%). In October 1979, municipal employees in the legal services and prosecution sector drew the highest average pay, followed by police protection, corrections, public defense, "other criminal justice," and judicial.

Large counties and cities

Justice data on large counties (100,000 or more) and large cities (50,000 or more) published in each annual volume from 1971 to 1979 demonstrate the concentration of justice activities in the larger local governments. Although the distribution pattern of expenditure within each sector of the large counties and cities generally reflects the pattern for all cities and counties (figure 7), justice spending in these units is much higher than their share of the population. From 1971 to 1979, population in large counties ranged from 55 to 60% of the U.S. population but absorbed between 75 and 78% of total county justice expenditure. The large city units, containing a little over half the Nation's municipal population during the 1971-79 period, absorbed between 67 and 71% of total justice expenditure at the municipal level. As indicated by table C and figure 8, average monthly justice salaries in the large counties were substantially higher than the average for all counties, rivaling justice salary levels at the State government level from 1971 to 1979. Average monthly salaries of justice employees in the large cities were exceeded only by pay rates at the Federal Government level.

Per capita data and regional and State area rankings

Figure 10 presents for each State the per capita expenditures for justice activities in fiscal years 1971 and 1979. The per capita data were computed on the basis of the combined justice expenditures of the State and local governments in each of the two fiscal years and the estimated population of the State as of July 1, 1970, and July 1, 1978, respectively.

Per capita justice expenditure in the United States rose 131%, from $45 in 1971 to $104 in 1979. In both years, the District of Columbia showed the highest per capita expenditure for justice activities: $196 in 1971 and $322 in 1979. Among the States, Alaska led the Nation in per capita justice expenditure ($105 in 1971 and $269 in 1979), followed by New York ($85 and $174), Nevada ($78 and $172), California ($69 and $138), and Arizona ($48 and $138).

On a regional basis, the South led all other areas with a 153% increase in per capita justice expenditure, from $34 in 1971 to $86 in 1979. The North Central region recorded a per capita rise from $39 to $90—the second highest percentage increase (131%). The Northeast region's per capita justice spending rose 123% to $127, and the West recorded a 117% increase to $126. California, accounting for 55% of the West's 1979 population and 60% of its justice expenditure, had one of the lowest per capita increases, 100%. Excluding California, the per capita justice expenditure in the West region rose from $43 to $112, an increase of 161%.

In 11 States (Alaska, Delaware, Kentucky, Maine, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, and West Virginia), per capita justice expenditure of the State government equaled or exceeded that of its local government units. This represents an increase of five States over 1971.

In terms of actual dollar increases between 1971 and 1979, 7 of the top 10 ranking States are in the Northeast and North Central regions: New York, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, and Massachusetts (figure 9). The South led all regions, however, in both total dollar increase in justice expenditure ($4.0 billion) and percent increase, 184% from 1971 to 1979 (figure 9).

Figure 8 shows the distribution of total direct justice expenditure among county, municipal, and State governments within the United States as a whole and within each State area in 1971 and in 1979. Counties increased their share of total direct State-local justice expenditure from 23% to 27%, and State governments' portion of State-local justice spending rose from 29% to 33%. Justice expenditure of municipalities fell from 48% to 41% of the State-local total, with declines occurring in 46 of 50 States areas. In contrast, the share of justice funds expended by counties within State areas increased in 42 States and decreased in only 8. Also, State governments increased their proportion of justice funds spent in 32 States and recorded declines in 18 States. In 21 States, gains were made in the share of total justice expenditure by both the county and the State governments.

Survey methodology: Sources and limitations of the data

Survey coverage

The annual surveys through which basic figures for this report were collected covered the Federal Government, all State governments, and a representative sample of local governments within each State. Data were collected for:

- all county governments (regardless of size),
- all municipalities (and townships in the New England and Middle Atlantic States) having a 1970 population of 10,000 or more, and
- a sample of the remaining cities and townships of less than 10,000 population selected according to the relative size of their annual expenditure as reported in the most recent Census of Governments.

The survey panel for the FY 1979 survey included the Federal Government, the 50 State governments, and 11,878 local governments (the 3,042 county governments, 6,762 municipalities, and 2,074 townships).

Independent school districts and special districts are excluded from survey coverage because the "variable pass-through" provisions of the Omnibus Crime Control Act, which governed the conduct of the survey, required that the concept of "local" government be confined to units of general local government.

The survey period

From 1971 to 1976, the Federal and State expenditure data presented in this report covered the fiscal years ending June 30 for each year except for three States with fiscal years ending as follows: New York, March 31; Texas, August 31; and Alabama, September 30. Since 1977, the fiscal year for the Federal Government has begun on October 1 and ended September 30. (The Federal expenditure data for the fiscal transition quarter from July 1 to September 30, 1976, were not included in the Federal data). Since 1977, the fiscal year for the State government of Michigan was also for the 12-month period ending September 30.

In addition, there are some State agencies that operate on a different fiscal year basis from the rest of the State government. In such instances, figures shown are for the agency's fiscal year that ended within the State's regular fiscal year.

For local governments, the fiscal years reported are those that ended in the 12-month period between July 1 of one year and June 30 of the next (e.g., July 1, 1970, to June 30, 1971, for fiscal 1971). Most municipalities or counties end their fiscal years on either December 31 or June 30. The 1979 fiscal year reported for Washington, D.C., ended on September 30.

Employment data shown for Federal, State, and local governments are for October of each year.

Data collection

The annual survey was accomplished using two methods of data collection: Field compilation and mail canvass. Trained field representatives compiled expenditure and employment data for the 50 States, the largest counties (population of 100,000 or more), the largest cities (population of 50,000 or more) and selected smaller units, using the governments' own records and the definitions presented in appendix 1. All other units in the sample were canvassed by mail for expenditure and employment data. The response for field-compiled units in all years was 100%. The response from mail canvass units was:

- 80% for the FY 1971 survey year,
- 92% for FY 1973,
- 92% for FY 1974,
- 95% for FY 1975,
- 92% for FY 1976,

- 92% for FY 1977,
- 93% for 1978, and
- 90% for 1979.

The field survey efforts and mail canvass were supplemented by reference to a variety of published government documents such as budgets, financial statements, and audit reports. In some cases, such sources were the basis for breakdowns of totals into more detailed employment and expenditure figures.

Expenditure and employment data for the Federal Government were collected through a special mail survey, with telephone followup of Federal justice agencies in accordance with definitions used for State and local governments (see appendix 1).

Data limitations

The sample selected to develop local government figures is one of all possible samples of the same size that could have been chosen using the same sampling design. Estimates derived from these different samples would differ from each other and also from the complete census using the same data collection procedures. This variation among all possible estimates is sampling error. Because all State and county governments are included in the survey, State and county figures are not subject to sampling error.

The local government sample was designed to produce an estimate for each State of the portion of total justice expenditure made by local governments with a relative sampling error of less than one-half of 1%. For the Fiscal Year 1978 data, the errors were less than one-half of 1% in all but 13 States. However, in all 50 States, the errors were less than three-quarters of 1%, at the 95% confidence level.

The relative sampling error of the State-by-State estimates of FY 1978 local government justice expenditure was calculated at the two-thirds confidence level and found to be within 3% of the estimated totals for all States and less than 2% for 32 States. The results of the computation of standard errors for fiscal year 1978 local government totals on a relative standard error basis are summarized in table D.

Because State government figures are not subject to sampling variation, the State local aggregates shown for individual States are relatively more reliable than the local government estimates they include.

The estimated data are also subject to nonsampling error; i.e., the inaccuracies in classification, response, and processing that would occur if a complete census had been conducted under the same conditions as the sample survey. Every effort was made to keep such errors to a minimum through care in examining, editing, and tabulating the data submitted by government officials. Followup procedures were used extensively to clarify inadequate and inconsistent survey returns.

Readers should be generally cautious in comparing governments, because differences in functional responsibilities from State to State and government to government can affect the comparability of expenditure and employment data. For example, some State governments directly administer certain activities that elsewhere are undertaken by local governments, with or without fiscal aid, and the same variation in the division of responsibilities exists for counties and cities.

As noted in the section on "Survey Coverage," the survey panel includes only general local governments (counties, municipalities, and townships) and excludes independent school districts and special districts. Therefore, when justice expenditure and employment data are compared with "total" governmental expenditure and employment as in figure 1, the comparison is based on data for general local governments only.

Because of rounding, the detailed data in some tables may not add precisely to the totals shown.

Changes in survey methodology

As discussed earlier, this series of annual reports began with FY 1967. The survey originated in the Bureau of the Census as a special in-house study in which police protection, judicial, and corrections data for selected large governments were extracted from data compiled in the Bureau's regular annual finance and employment sample surveys. In the FY 1969 survey, prosecution and public defense were added to the original three justice categories, coverage was extended to the entire regular annual survey sample of counties and municipalities, and a mail canvass questionnaire designed specifically to elicit justice data was used for all but the largest governments, which were canvassed by field agents. These changes must be taken into account in making year-to-year comparisons using data prior to FY 1971.

The Federal expenditure data presented in all reports through FY 1970 were extracted from the Budget of the United States Government, and the Federal employment data were provided by the U.S. Civil Service Commission. Since FY 1971 Federal data have been collected by a special mail canvass.

For the FY 1971 survey, a new and enlarged panel of local governments was drawn specifically for the justice expenditure and employment survey to include all county governments and a larger representation of municipalities and townships, to produce more reliable estimates for use by LEAA in the allocation of block grant funds between State and local governments. The data presented in reports since FY 1971 and summarized in this report are therefore comparable, because they are derived using the same methods of data collection and processing. The only significant variations occurred in classification of certain expenditure items discussed in detail in the following section.

Changes in classification

In the FY 1971 report, police protection expenditure included amounts expended for traffic safety and related traffic engineering. Beginning with the FY 1972 report, these expenditures were excluded from the police protection figures. Also, data for special police forces administered by general purpose governments (such as airport police, park police, housing police, etc.) were included in the police protection figures if the force employed 10 or more full-time sworn officers with general arrest powers. Beginning with the FY 1972 report, data for these forces were included regardless of size.

In the FY 1971 report, correctional expenditure figures covered a number of drug and alcohol abuse facilities and programs administered by assorted agencies, departments, and private organizations receiving public funding. Beginning with the FY 1972 report, these institutions and programs were included only if administered by a correctional agency within the criminal justice system.

In many States, statutes either require or permit local governments to supplement the salary of State-paid judges of major trial courts. In the FY 1971 report, an attempt was made to count these judges and their total payroll at the State level only. This effort was not uniformly successful, however. Therefore, beginning with the FY 1972 report, judges actually receiving a check from both the State and local governments were counted as part-time employees at both levels.

Measuring the impact of these changes from year to year is virtually impossible, primarily because governments on the survey mail panel are requested to provide only summary data for each major justice activity. This prevents a year-to-year comparison of expenditures for the classification subcategories within each major activity. To a lesser extent, changes in governments' fiscal periods, accounting, and classification practices from year to year pose procedural difficulties in measuring the impact of changes in classification used in this survey.

Availability of data

The annual report, Expenditure and Employment Data for the Criminal Justice System was published for each of the fiscal years 1967 through 1979⁴ and Trends in Expenditure and Employment Data for the Criminal Justice System, was published for the periods, FY 1971-73, FY 1971-74, FY 1971-75, FY 1971-76, and FY 1971-77. Copies of the annual report for the fiscal years 1973 through 1979 and copies of all Trends reports are available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402; Department of Commerce District offices; and from the National Criminal Justice Reference Service, Box 6000, Rockville, Md. 20850. Data are also available on magnetic tape from the Criminal Justice Archive and Information Network, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106, (313/764-5199).

⁴The 1979 report was titled, "Justice Expenditure in the United States, 1979."

Section I. VARIABLE PASS-THROUGH DATA

The data in this table were developed to comply with the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Steets Act of 1968 as amended, which requires that the block grants made by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to each State be allocated between the State and local governments according to the ratio of State-to-local law enforcement expenditure from their own revenue sources. Although the block grant program was suspended, Table 1 of this report continues to present the variable pass-through data to allow for historical analysis with earlier data published in previous reports.

The concept of "expenditure from own sources" specified in the law and used in the data collection means that the expenditure figures from which the State-to-local ratio was developed do not include amounts expended from revenue received from other governments. For example, State or local government expenditure from sales or property tax revenue are included but not amounts expended from intergovernmental revenue, such as Federal grant monies. (It should be noted that this is the only table in this publication based on this concept. All other expenditure tables reflect expenditure from all sources.)

Specifically for local government, any expenditure from revenue received from another local government, or received directly from the Federal Government or from the State government must be excluded. Likewise for State governments, expenditure from revenue received from local governments or from the Federal Government must be excluded.

The following items were deducted from total criminal justice expenditure of local governments to arrive at local government expenditure from own revenue sources: Revenue received directly from the Federal Government for criminal justice purposes, State payments to local governments for criminal justice purposes, and payments from local government(s) to other local government(s) for criminal justice purposes. The same procedure was followed to arrive at State government expenditure from own revenue sources. Criminal justice revenue received directly from the Federal Government and local criminal justice payments to the State government were deducted from the total State expenditure for criminal justice. This procedure assumes that all intergovernmental payments received by a government will be expended during the same fiscal year they were received. While this may not be the case in a particular year, any discrepancy will cancel out over time.

- Represents zero or rounds to zero. ¹Revised.

¹The total line for each sector, and for the total criminal justice system, excludes duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount were tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount. No intergovernmental expenditures are shown for the same reason.

Note: The local governments portion of State and local governments data are estimates subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

- Represents zero or rounds to zero. ¹ Revised¹The total line for each sector, and for the total criminal justice system, excludes duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount were tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount. No intergovernmental expenditures are shown for the same reason.

¹ For each State, and the United States summary, the expenditure figures shown on the "Local, total" line and the combined State-local total line (the data shown opposite the names of the individual States) exclude duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount for one government is tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount.

² Data for municipalities, and the local governments totals which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

¹For each State, and the United States summary, the expenditure figures shown on the "Local, total" line and the combined State-local total line (the data shown opposite the names of the individual States) exclude duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount for one government is tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount.

²Data for municipalities, and the local governments totals which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

¹For each State, and the United States summary, the expenditure figures shown on the "Local, total" line and the combined State-local total line (the data shown opposite the names of the individual States) exclude duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount for one government is tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount.

²Data for municipalities, and the local governments totals which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

²Data for municipalities, and the local governments total which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

¹For each State, and the United States summary, the expenditure figures shown on the "Local, total" line and the combined State-local total line (the data shown opposite the names of the individual States) exclude duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount for one government is tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount.

² Less than half the unit of measurement shown.¹ For each State, and the United States summary, the expenditure figures shown on the "Local, total" line and the combined State-local total line (the data shown opposite the names of the individual States) exclude duplicative intergovernmental expenditure amounts. This was done to avoid the artificial inflation which would result if an intergovernmental expenditure amount for one government is tabulated and then counted again when the recipient government(s) ultimately expend(s) that amount.³ Data for municipalities, and the local governments totals which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

²Data for municipalities, and the local governments totals which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations.

Data for municipalities, and the local governments totals which include municipal data, are estimates subject to sampling variation; data for counties (boroughs, parishes) are based on a canvass of all county governments and therefore are not subject to sampling variation; see text for data limitations. Payroll amounts are in thousands of dollars.

Definitions of terms

Following is a glossary of terms, concepts, and categories used in this report and comments concerning their limitations.

The definitions are those applied in the field compilation of data for the 50 States, 349 largest counties, and 415 largest cities. These definitions were necessarily summarized for inclusion in the survey questionnaires (see appendix 2) sent to governments in the mail portion of the survey.

Government expenditure

Expenditure is all amounts of money paid out (net of any correcting transactions) other than for retirement of debt (including interest), investment in securities, extensions of loans, or agency transactions. It includes only external cash payments and excludes any intragovernmental transfers and noncash transactions, such as the provision of meals or housing of employees. It also includes any payments financed from borrowing, fund balances, intergovernmental revenue, and other current revenue. In several instances, two or more governments share the expense of maintaining a court or a justice agency. In these cases, the allocable direct expenditure amount is reported for each government in the appropriate category. When a government pays pensions directly to retired employees from appropriated funds, such payments are included as expenditure of the government concerned. However, State and local government contributions to retirement systems and various other employee benefits are not included in expenditure data, since the majority of governments make lump-sum contributions to plans covering all government employees and cannot report for justice employees separately. Neither in government's basic accounting records (from which criminal justice expenditure figures are drawn) nor in the records of their general-coverage employee benefit systems is there usually any breakdown of amounts contributed in terms of the various agencies or functions involved. Nor has an adequate procedure for calculating the proportion of such contributions allocable to justice employees been developed because of the wide variation in the coverage of various plans, employee status requirements, benefit rates, etc.

For those governments whose records reflect contributions of justice employees separately, separate data were obtained. However, these data are subject to the same variation referred to above, and neither the amount nor the quality of the data reported would permit any attempt to estimate total contributions for all similar governments in a given State. Given the problems involved, no estimation procedure seems feasible. Such data as were reported separately were therefore excluded from total criminal justice expenditures to provide a consistent data base for administering the "variable pass-through" requirement.

Expenditure is divided into two major categories by character:

1. Direct expenditure is all expenditure except that classed as intergovernmental and is further divided into two principal object categories:

a. Direct current, which includes salaries, wages, fees, and commissions, purchase of supplies, materials, and contractual services.

b. Capital outlay, which includes expenditure for the three subcategories below:

Construction: Production of fixed works and structures, and additions, , replacements and major alterations thereto undertaken either on a contract basis by private contractors or through force account construction by the employees of the government. Included are the planning and designing of specific projects, the grading, landscaping, and other site improvement, and provision of equipment and facilities that are integral parts of the structure.

Equipment: Purchase and installation of apparatus, furnishings, office equipment, motor vehicles and the like having an expected life of more than 5 years. This includes both additional equipment and replacements. Rentals for equipment, including rental payments that may be credited on the purchase price if purchase options are exercised, are classified as direct current expenditure. Equipment and facilities that are integral parts of constructed or purchased structures are classified respectively under construction or purchase of land and existing structures.

Purchase of land and existing structures: Purchase of these assets as such, purchase of rights-of-way, and title search and similar activities associated with purchase transactions.

The other object categories—interest on general debt, assistance and subsidies, and insurance benefits—are not applied to specific functions because they are not ordinarily available on a functional basis from government financial reports. In the few instances where bonded or mortgaged general indebtedness is identified for specific purposes, the interest payments are aggregated with other interest expenditures which make it virtually impossible to arrive at reliable and consistent breakouts of such data over a long period of time.

2. Intergovernmental expenditure is payments from one general purpose government to another, including grants-in-aid, shared revenues, payments in lieu of taxes, and amounts for services performed by one government for another on a reimbursable or cost-sharing basis (for example, payments by one government to another for boarding prisoners).

Total expenditure is direct and intergovernmental expenditure of a government or level of government for justice activities.

Total general expenditure is all expenditure of a government or level of government for all government functions, including justice activities, but excluding utility system expenditure, liquor store expenditure, and insurance trust expenditure. Total general expenditure shown for the local level of government includes expenditure only of general purpose governments, and excludes expenditure of special districts and school districts.

Government employment

Employees includes all persons paid for personal services performed, including all paid officials and persons in paid leave status, and excludes unpaid officials, persons on unpaid leave, pensioners and contractors. Under this definition are two classes:

1. Full-time employees, who are all persons employed during the pay period including October 15, 1979, on a full-time basis, including all full-time temporary or seasonal workers employed during this pay period, as well as persons having permanent status.

2. Part-time employees, who are persons employed during the pay period including October 15, 1979, on a basis other than full-time, and persons paid by more than one government.

Derived from these two classes is:

Full-time equivalent employees, which means the total number of employees, discounted by applying average full-time earning rates. This is calculated by dividing the total payroll (full-time plus part-time) by the full-time payroll and multiplying the results by the number of full-time employees, where both full-time and part-time employees and payroll are reported. Where only part-time employees and payroll are reported, full-time equivalent employees are calculated by dividing the total part-time payroll by the average full-time salary for the particular justice sector and type of government. Average full-time salary is calculated by dividing the full-time payroll by the number of full-time employees for the particular justice sector and type of government.

Payroll is the gross payroll before deductions and includes salaries, wages, fees and commissions paid to employees as defined above for the month of October 1979.

Governmental functions

Police protection is the function of enforcing the law, preserving order, and apprehending those who violate the law, whether these activities are performed by a police department, a sheriff's department, or a special police force maintained by an agency whose prime responsibility is outside the justice system, but which has a police force to perform these activities in its specialized area (geographic or functional).

Included in this activity are regular police services, the maintenance of buildings used for police purposes, and such specialized police forces (including public and private contract forces) as airport police, free and toll highway police, free and toll bridge and tunnel police, housing police, maritime police, park police, transit and other utility system police, college and university campus police, and alcoholic beverage control agents. Coroners and medical examiners are also included. Excluded are vehicular inspection and licensing, traffic safety and engineering, fish and game wardens, fire marshals, and the like.

The special police forces included in the data are only those which are part of general purpose governments. Security forces, building guards, school crossing guards, and meter maids without general arrest power were excluded. Those special police forces that are part of independent school districts or special districts are not included in the data, inasmuch as these districts are not general purpose governments.

In most States, sheriffs' departments are multifunctional agencies providing police protection, judicial, and/or correctional services. In order to allocate expenditure and employment data to the proper activity, the data for sheriffs' departments are prorated using factors developed from a special survey of sheriffs' departments conducted in 1973, or more current estimates of manpower distribution if available.

Short-term custody and detention are considered part of the police protection function. Data for institutions with authority to hold prisoners 48 hours or more are included in the "corrections" sector. Data for lockups or "tanks" holding prisoners less than 48 hours are included in the "police protection" sector.

Judicial activities encompass all civil and criminal courts and activities associated with courts such as law libraries, grand juries, petit juries, and the like. Since the names of courts with similar functions and legal jurisdiction vary from State to State and even within States, data have been categorized by types of court rather than by court name.

1. Appellate courts include courts of last resort and intermediate appellate courts. These are courts having jurisdiction of appeal and review, with original jurisdiction conferred only in special cases.

2. Courts of general jurisdiction are trial courts having unlimited original jurisdiction in civil and/or criminal cases, the names of which vary considerably. In many States, statutes either require or permit local governments to supplement the salary of State-paid judges of general jurisdiction courts. These judges were counted as part-time employees at both the State and local levels when actually receiving a check from both governments.

3. Courts of limited jurisdiction are courts whose legal jurisdiction covers only a particular class of cases or cases where the amount in controversy is below a prescribed sum or is subject to specific exceptions. Included under this category are probate courts, juvenile courts and other courts of limited jurisdiction.

4. Miscellaneous judicial includes data on judicial activities that could not be reported under any of the above court categories, such as judicial councils and conferences, court administration offices (where identifiable), law libraries, jury commissions, and grand juries.

Legal services and prosecution includes the civil and criminal justice activities of the attorneys general, district attorneys, State's attorneys, and their variously named equivalents; corporation counsels, solicitors, and legal departments with various names. It includes providing legal advice to the chief executives and subordinate departmental officers, representation of the government in lawsuits, and the prosecution of accused violators of criminal law. These activities are included whether performed by one office or several, because in some jurisdictions a single officer provides all legal services, whereas in others a prosecutor's office handles only criminal matters, and a separate attorney's office performs all civil legal services. The operations of various investigative agencies having full arrest powers and attached to offices of attorneys general, district attorneys, or their variously named equivalents are also included.

Public defense includes legal counsel and representation in either criminal or civil proceedings as provided by public defenders, and other government programs that pay the fees of court-appointed counsel. These include court-paid fees to individually retained counsel, fees paid by the court to court-appointed counsel, government contributions to private legal aid societies and bar association-sponsored programs, and the activities of an established public defender office or program. Employment data are included only for public defenders' offices, because fee-paid counselors are not considered government employees, nor are counselors working for bar associations or legal aid societies.

Corrections is that function of government involving the confinement and rehabilitation of adults and juveniles convicted of offenses against the law and the confinement of persons suspected of a crime and awaiting adjudication. Data for institutions with authority to hold prisoners 48 hours or more are included in this sector. Data for lockups or "tanks" holding prisoners less than 48 hours are included in "Police Protection." Correction includes the operation of prisons, reformatories, jails, houses of correction, and other institutions. It also includes institutions, facilities and programs exclusively for the confinement of the criminally insane or for the examination, evaluation, classification, and assignment of inmates and institutions and programs for the confinement, treatment, and rehabilitation of drug addicts and alcoholics if the institution or program is administered by a correction agency of the criminal justice system. Pardon boards and parole and probation agencies, including resettlement or halfway houses for those not in need of institutionalization, are included in the correction sector as a separate subcategory.

1. Correctional institutions are prisons, reformatories, jails, houses of correction, penitentiaries, correctional farms, workhouses, reception centers, diagnostic centers, industrial schools, training schools, detention centers, and a variety of other types of institutions for the confinement and correction of convicted adults or juveniles adjudicated delinquent or in need of supervision, and for the detention of those adults and juveniles accused of a crime and awaiting trial or hearing. When an institution maintains a prison industry or agricultural program, data on the cost of production or the value of prison labor used by agencies of the same government, if identifiable, are excluded (and classed as expenditure for the function using the product or services). Expenditure for the manufacture, production, sale, and distribution of goods produced for sale or use outside the government are included under this heading.

a. Institutions for men includes identifiable expenditure and employment data for institutions exclusively for adult male offenders.

b. Institutions for women includes identifiable expenditure and employment data for institutions exclusively for adult female offenders. Where there is no separate women's prison, women offenders are either maintained in a prison complex that also houses other offenders or are boarded in private facilities or institutions in another State. No attempt was made to prorate data on institutions housing more than one type of inmate, but where females are boarded in private institutions or in another State, available expenditure data were tabulated. Employment data were not tabulated because the personnel were employees of another government.

c. Institutions for juveniles are those institutions identified by the 1975 Juvenile Detention and Correction Facility Census as housing primarily juveniles and in some States, "youthful offenders." These institutions include those under the control of a juvenile court, a probation department, or a youth authority or other similarly designated administrative body, as well as independently administered institutions. Also included are government payments to private agencies for the detention or treatment of delinquent juveniles.

There is considerable variation from State to State in the legal definition of a juvenile, particularly in regard to the age at which a person is no longer considered a juvenile. Institutions for juveniles have been classified individually in accordance with the laws and age designations of their respective States.

d. Other and combined institutions are those institutions holding a combination of inmates. Where expenditure or employment data for physically separate institutions for juveniles, adult females, and adult males were not separable by institution or type of institution, the entire amounts were included under this category.

2. Correctional administration consists of data for the overall administration of the correctional system, including data on the central administrative office (for example, the department of corrections or a youth authority). Data on the administration of individual correctional institutions or probation/parole/pardon agencies are included in the appropriate subcategory if it was possible to deduct them.

3. Probation, parole, and pardon includes data on probation agencies, boards of parole, boards of pardon, and their variously named equivalents. Although probation agencies frequently function under the administration of the general jurisdiction court, the data are presented separately under corrections after having been deducted from the judicial data, because of the correctional nature of the probation function. If the probation, parole, and pardon activities, or any of them individually, were part of the correctional administrative office, data were deducted where possible and shown separately here, and the balance was shown under the correctional administration category. The overlapping character of probation, parole, and pardon activities prevented any further breakdown of these data.

4. Miscellaneous correction includes expenditure and employment data that could not be classified under one of the other subcategories.

Other criminal justice activities, shown in some tables, includes expenditure or employment data that are not elsewhere classified, that cut across more than one category, or that are not allocable to separate categories; e.g., expenditure on a general curriculum in educational institutions, the operation of State criminal justice agencies, crime commissions, etc. Such data are included in the totals, where they are not shown separately.

Part I – SPECIAL POLICE FORCE

Does your unit (as described in the address box on the front of the questionnaire) employ directly and/or by contract a special police force? A special police force is defined as a group of law enforcement officers with general arrest powers, regardless of geographical jurisdiction, other than regular police agencies. Such forces usually service a special area or jurisdiction; e.g., campus police, park police, transit police, harbor police, airport police. Although a special police force may cooperate with the regular local police force, it is administratively independent.

☐ Yes – Please complete the questions below

If applicable, enter here the name of the firm or police agency with whom you contract for police services

☐ No – Please disregard the remainder of this questionnaire and return in preaddressed envelope

Important

- If you contract exclusively for police services and have no officers employed directly by your unit, fill out only parts III and IV below.
- If you employ sworn police officers directly, fill out parts II, III, and IV below.
- If you contract for police services from sworn police officers and also employ sworn police officers directly, fill out parts II, III, and IV. However, do not report payroll for employees under an outside contract; instead, report only the annual expenditure for contractual services under either current operations (if the contract is with a private agency) or under intergovernmental expenditure (if payment for police services is made to another government).
