INTRODUCTION

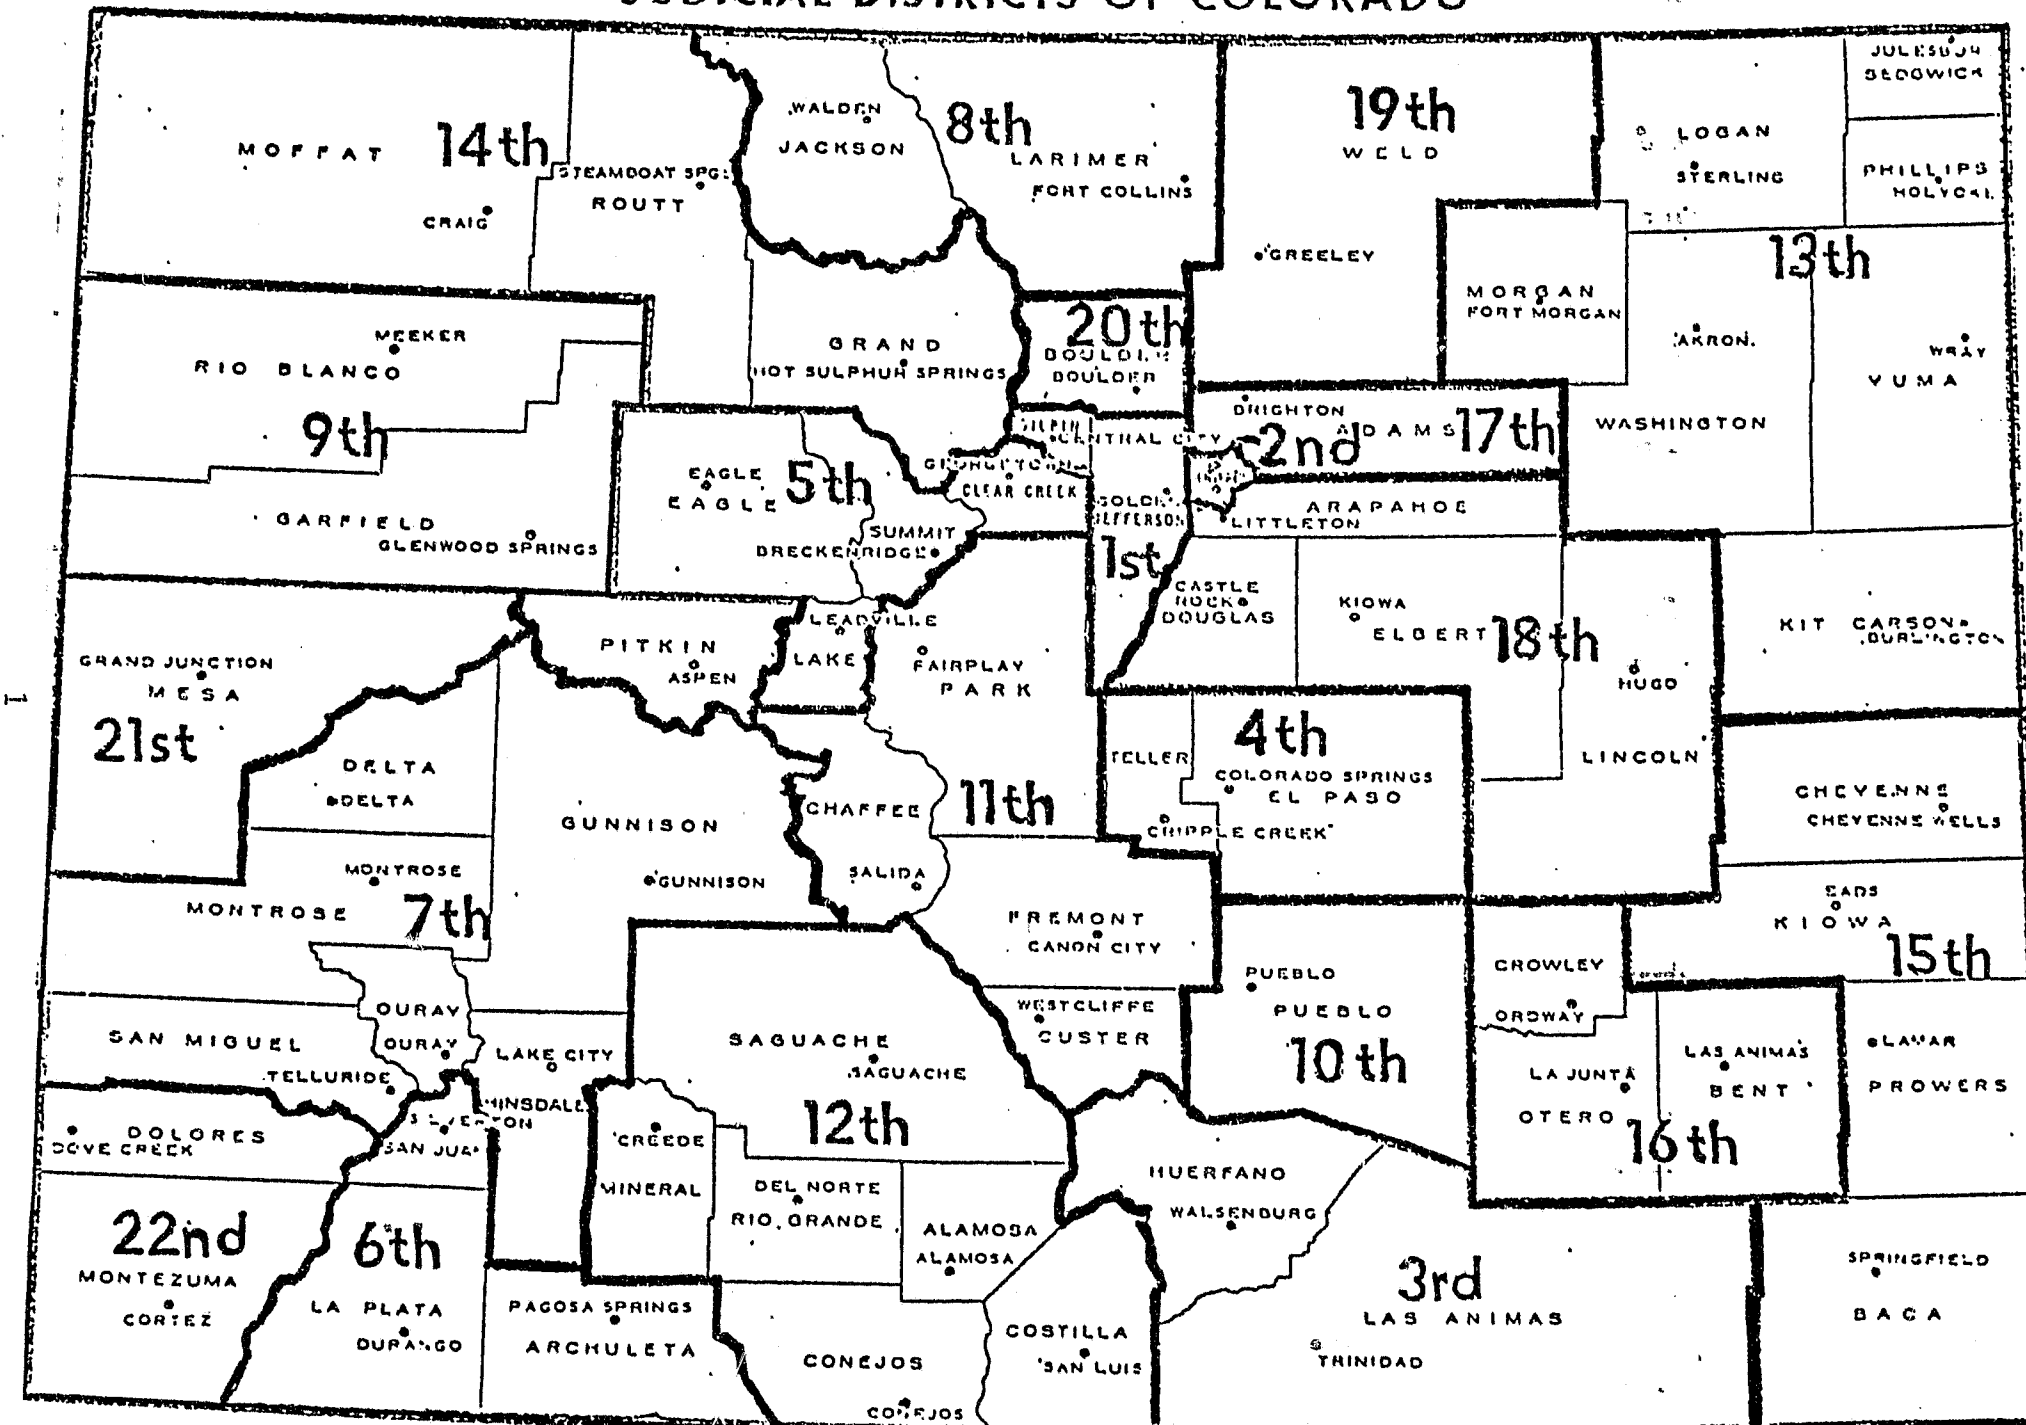

The Management Reference Manual provides statistical data on the Division of Youth Services (DYS) FY 1983-84 population. In addition, comparative data on population trends and client characteristics are given for the past three fiscal years.

This manual includes the most often requested information on DYS client populations. Further breakdowns or cross-tabulations of these data, additional year-end summary data, as well as monthly data generated since July, 1982, are available through special request to the Planning and Evaluation Unit, Division of Youth Services, 4255 South Knox Court, Denver, CO 80236. The telephone number is (303) 761-3707.

¹Effective February 1, 1983, coding procedures for the Detention Record System (DRS) were implemented in order to track the number of youths screened out (intakes not admitted) from being admitted to a DYS Detention Center.

The DYS policy for determining whether a youth is to be classified as an Admission or not is summarized below.

The initial intake screening of a juvenile should be done prior to placing a youth into the secure program. If it is determined that a youth can be released to parents or transferred to another program in a reasonable time, the youth should be pat searched and should remain in the intake area (holding cell or waiting room) until picked up. These youths should not be strip searched, showered or placed in routine contact with other youths admitted to the secure detention program.

The DYS policy for determining whether a youth is to be classified as an admission or not is summarized below.

The initial intake screening of a juvenile should be done prior to placing a youth into the secure program. If it is determined that a youth can be released to parents or transferred to another program in a reasonable time, the youth should be pat searched and should remain in the intake area (holding cell or waiting room) until picked up.
